Beitzel Video Productions opened six months ago in Grantsville by Doug and Tammy Beitzel. Although they've only been at the Grantsville location for the past six months, Doug has been enjoying video for over 12 years and has been shooting professionally for the last six years. Tammy attended Cazenovia College in New York and Penn State, majoring in theater production and design. Both enjoy the art of video.

Beitzel Video Productions specializes in wedding videographing, but also offers editing services; picture to film transfers; filming for parties, senior promos, sporting events, business promos, music videos, and rehearsal tapes; and tape dubbing service. BVP films on location just about anywhere, and is set up to copy high quantities of VHS tapes.

The Beitzels are friendly professionals who love the art of video. BVP relies on good camera work and professional editing to give the finished product the customer wants. BVP works hard to capture every detail of an event, so it can be relived over and over again. They also offer lifetime warranties with their Fuji tapes.

BVP keeps growing and growing, and the Beitzels say it is good to book an event well in advance. They already have wedding contracts booked for the 1998 season. The company has filmed over 150 weddings, have season-long sporting contracts with local schools, and have done work for the History Channel. BVP has filmed in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, New York and Ohio. They even have clients as far away as Japan and South Africa.

The Beitzels are really excited about the future, and are looking at expanding onto the Internet. BVP has an e-mail address: BVPvideo@mindspring.com, and their business location, at P.O. Box 493, Grantsville, MD 21536, can be reached by phone at 301-895-4322.

The Kathryn M. Daugherty Scholarship for Education Majors is open to individuals majoring in education, with preference for elementary education. This is a three-year program which provides a minimum of $500 each year, beginning with the recipient's sophomore year. A grade average of 3.0 or better, must be maintained in order to remain eligible.

The Dallam Scholarship for History Majors provides $750 to a junior or senior woman majoring in history. Applicants must have maintained at least a 3.0 grade point average and be enrolled for a minimum of six credit hours each semester.

State Jobless Rate Increases; County's Lower

The Maryland unemployment rate rose from 4.4 percentin August to 4.7 percent in September as the labor market exhibited normal seasonal employment patterns. Summer workers exited the labor force and Marylanders in education resumed employment for the fall semester.

Meanwhile, Garrett County's jobless rate dropped slightly, from 10.6 percent in August to 10.5 percent in September. The Sept. 1996 rate was 8.4 percent.

"Although the monthly unemployment rate had a seasonal increase, which is normal for September, Maryland also experienced job growth over last year," said Eugene A. Conti Jr., Secretary of the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation (DLLR). "Additionally, we are encouraged by the fact that the state's unemployment rate is lower than it was in a year ago in September, and has consistently declined for several years."

Across the state, unemployment rates, remained the same or dropped in more than half of Maryland's 24 jurisdictions. Local statistics included levels as low as 2.4 percent in Montgomery County, 2.7 percent in Howard County, 2.8 percent in Calvert County, and 2.9 percent in Queen Anne's County.

During September, employers continued to trim their seasonal work forces. The number of employed people declined as anticipated, falling by about 23,400. While the labor force also receded, employment declines out-paced those in the labor force, causing the number of unemployed to rise to 131,065.

The number of jobs reported by Maryland employers was higher during September, an increase fueled primarily by recalls in education and transportation services. These gains, coupled with hiring in general merchandise stores, food stores and business services, diminished the impact of seasonal cutbacks in a number of industries and that of a temporary furlough in auto-related industries.

Native Peoples Organization To Help The Needy

The Appalachian Woodlands Band of Native Peoples, a new organization led by Chief Calling Eagle, have set a goal to provide Christmas items for at least 12 families of the Appalachian region, including the West Virginia and Maryland areas.

The purpose of the newly formed non-profit group is to help people of the Appalachian region discover and revive their native heritage through history information, crafts, and other modes.

"Our main focus is on people, and we stand ready to help in times of need," a spokesperson said.

Donations for the Christmas project will be accepted in the form of money, food, clothing, toys, blankets, and other items. Persons who can help are asked to call 301-746-5664 in Maryland or 304-789-2766 in West Virginia. Checks can be made payable to the Appalachian Woodlands Band of Native Peoples. Contributions will be tax-deductible.

Jars for donation collections will be distributed to businesses throughout the region, the spokesperson stated. Plans and other goals of the group will be announced at later dates.

Letters may be sent to P.O. Box 525, Friendsville, MD 21531.

GCC's Lantz Receives State FFA Award

Willie Lantz, agriculture instructor at Garrett Community College, was awarded the FFA Honorary State Farmer Degree at the FFA State Convention in Gaithersburg recently. The honorary degree is awarded to recognize individuals who have helped with FFA.

Each year Lantz and his GCC Agriculture Management program students sponsor a regional FFA competition for students in agriculture mechanics, crop judging, and horticulture, in addition to assisting the FFA at the Garrett County Fair and the tractor driving contest.

In accepting the award, Lantz commented that he hopes to get more involved with the FFA in the future, and to bring more high school students interested in agriculture careers to events at the GCC campus.

GCC's dean of academic affairs, Dr. Lillian Mitchell, had high praise for Lantz's achievements, saying "You are to be commended on the dynamic leadership you exhibit within Garrett County as well as the initiative you demonstrate in your role in leading the Agriculture Management program at GCC and Institute for Applied Agriculture."

Rabbit Production Program

Since July 1996, West Virginia and Maryland rabbit producers have been working together to develop and stabilize the small meat animal market. As the group became more organized, it developed into a marketing cooperative called Mountain Pride Cooperative. With the aid of a USDA grant, the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service has hired a full-time person to assist in market development.

As a result of the co-op's organizational process, it became apparent that rabbit production techniques should be taught to improve production efficiencies. Expertise in rabbit production technology is very limited. However, some resources within the West Virginia University Extension Service have been identified. On Monday, Nov.17, at 6:30 p.m., Ron Swope, Marion County extension agent and Larry Campbell, Tucker County extension agent, will present an evening program at Preston High School.

Anyone interested in learning about the basics of rabbit production is invited to attend. Please contact the Preston County Extension Office at 304-329-1391 to register. There is no fee, but we would like to know how many are planning to attend.

The Preston High School is located just ½ mile south of Kingwood on the east side of state Rt. 26. If traveling from Interstate 68, take exit 23, Bruceton Mills to Kingwood.

GCC's Workforce Adventures Binds People Together

By Joaa Crawford

What were 50 employees of the Discovery Channel and 65 senior managers of Columbia Gas doing in the woods and fields of New Germany State Park on two recent October days? A visitor to the area would have seen teams of six or seven individuals moving in unison through the low ropes course or hovering over a compass and map to determine the quickest path to the next control point. The groups were participating in team building activities designed and presented by Workforce Adventures of Garrett Community College.

. ON A WORKFORCE ADVENTURE recently in New Germany State Park were these employees of the Discovery Channel, under the watchful eye of Workforce Adventure facilitator and Adventuraaporta major Alexa Furth at the far left. The Garrett Community College program haa been bringing together employeea of varioua corporationa and govemment agencies for tha paat two yeara with taam-building activitiea dealgned to lncraaae effactivanaaa of team membara in the workplaca. See atory.

According to Dawn Beitzel, coordinator of the program administered by the Continuing Education and Training Division of the college, Workforce Adventures utilizes experiential learning and team building activities to foster personal and professional growth and to increase the effectiveness of team members in the workplace. "The trust, communication, and problem solving skills learned in the exercises translate into a more cohesive and productive work team," Beitzel says, "but while participants are learning, we make certain that they are also having fun."

Beitzel explains experiential learning as "learning by doing," involving activities that present mental, emotional, and physical challenge. Workforce Adventures offers a variety of activities from which potential participants select the ones best suited to their needs All activities are conducted by qualified facilitators who hold various certifications, ranging from EMT and First Responder to High and Low Ropes Challenge Course instructor, Swiftwater Rescue, and Wilderness Rescue.

Activities that have been conducted for corporations and government agencies during the two years Workforce Adventures has been in operation include but are not limited to experiential learning and team building with low ropes initiatives, team building with orienteering, and high ropes challenge course, as well as other customized programming activities.

The low ropes initiatives focus on establishing teams that work on problem solving activities with a variety of props where members figure out solutions as a team, thus establishing cooperation and trust. Two frequently used activities are the trolley and the spider web.

Orienteering, often referred to as the "thinking sport," involves finding one's way with a map and compass through unfamiliar territory to a pre-selected destination. According to Beitzel, the sense of competition becomes very important in this sport as teams interpret a map and read a compass to determine the quickest way from control point to control point. The object of the sport is to find and record as many control points as possible in the least amount of time. Beitzel cautions that what appears to be the shortest distance between two control points is often not the quickest. Participants must read the map and interpret symbols to determine the faster route.

The high ropes challenge course is described as "an exciting and powerful outdoor experience designed to foster self-discovery, confidence and team work." The course consists of a carefully structured series of events that incorporate physical, psychological, and social challenge. Activities might range from traversing a ravine on a cable bridge to scaling a smooth 12-foot wall.

Following each outdoor activity session, participants are led through a debriefing during which they articulate what they learned, verify their conclusions, and reflect on their experience. Evaluations completed by all of the participants have indicated that they had a positive, productive and enjoyable experience. Comments such as "It got you involved. Much more effective than a classroom," "It challenged us psychologically as well a physically," "It was fun and a learning experience" are frequent.

Lowell Bender, associate dean of Continuing Education at GCC, sees the need for training provided by Workforce Adventures. "More and more businesses are discovering that team building efforts result in better communication and more productivity in the workplace," he says.

Persons desiring further information about Workforce Adventures may contact Beitzel at GCC by calling 301-387-3136.

Group That Honors 1st U.S. Veterans

Garrett County DAR Chapter Observes 30th Anniversary

On Tuesday in cities and towns across the nation ceremonies were held in honor of war veterans of America. There is a national group dedicated to the memory of one particular group of American veterans: those soldiers and patriots of the American Revolution. The group is the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) and the local chapter of the organization marks its 30th anniversary this year.

Members of the DAR must be directly descended from these very first American veterans, who engaged in the struggle to achieve independence as a nation. To establish lineage, applicants must have proof of birth, marriage, and death for each generation.

Throughout the country and across the state there are many chapters of this organization dedicated to preserving the heritage of those early patriots.

It was 1965 when the wheels started turning that would result in the establishment of the Garrett County chapter, Youghiogheny Glades. Officers of Maryland DAR contacted a local resident, Clara Bell Briner, and asked her to assess the level of interest in women of the county in forming their own chapter.

Briner made phone calls and brought state officials together with the women who were interested in the effort. This initial meeting was held in her home. Thus began the process of Garrett County women proving their lineage of descent. Because of the role she played in this phase of development, Briner has been referred to as the mother of the Garrett County chapter of DAR.

Another citizen noted for her role in establishing the group was the late Ruth Calderwood, who held the position of organizing regent. Originally a member of E Pluribus Unum, the Washington, D.C., chapter, Calderwood had transferred to the Potomac Valley chapter, Keyser, W.Va. when she moved to Garrett County.

With the creation of the Garrett County branch, Calderwood transferred to join other members of her community in developing the group. The first organizational meeting was held Dec. 7, 1967, in the community room of the First National Bank.

It was Calderwood who suggested the name Youghiogheny Glades for the unit. The name was accepted by the new members. In 1992 she became a 50-year-member of the DAR.

Another pioneer in the group, Mary K. (Paugh) Kovach marked her 50th year in the DAR in 1993. She served as the second regent of Youghiogheny Glades.

The growing membership set up a committee to assist others in proving lineage by transcribing grave markers in Garrett County cemeteries. By 1977 the members had transcribed 14,000 grave markers. In 1987 the chapter published Maryland's Garrett County Graves. The volume contained 20,000 entries.

The introduction to the book recognizes the contributions of the late Alice Proudfoot, who had chaired the first cemetery committee.

Since its founding, the Youghiogheny Glades chapter has placed markers on graves of Revolutionary War veterans throughout the area. Essay contests have been sponsored by the DAR, and donations made to Drane House restoration efforts and the Garrett County Historical Society.

Over the years, DAR members have initiated efforts in the county to educate others in the history and traditions of the area and the nation.

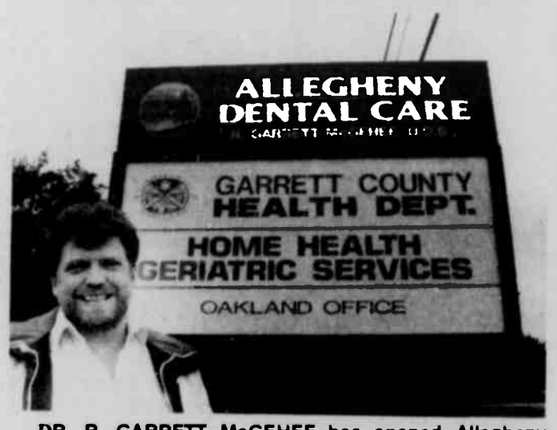
Allegheny Dental Care



DR. R. GARRETT McGEHEE has opened Allegheny Dental Care on Garrett Highway north of Oakland. His office can be reached by calling 301-334-5200.

Allegheny Dental Care has opened at 14719 Garrett Highway, Rt. 219, north of Oakland, to offer a full range of professional dental services for the entire family. Dr. R. Garrett McGehee, who has been in practice for 18 years, says his office is comfortable and relaxing, and his caring staff do their utmost to put even the most anxious or frightened patient at ease. Dr. McGehee and his staff, dental assistant Brenda Rhodes and secretary/receptionist Brenda DeWitt, provide preventive care and counseling, cosmetic dentistry, general dentistry and emergency treatment. His office welcomes most dental insurance plans. The staff will discuss required treatments and their costs before treatment begins.

Dr. McGehee completed his studies at the Medical College of Virginia and opened a practice in Arlington, Va., where he worked for 18 years. Dr. McGehee and his wife Karen have five children and live in the Oakland area. They attend Pine Grove Church of the Brethren.

"An attractive smile is one of the best assets an individual can possess," Dr. McGehee said, and added that regular, professional dental health care can make a smile healthier and brighter. He stresses that good dental hygiene is an important ingredient in overall health care, and that routine dental check-ups help prevent gum disease, cavities and other serious dental problems which can lead to systemic health problems.

Dr. McGehee says, "You owe it to yourself and your family to have quality dental care." The doctor says he and his staff provide professional, caring dentistry. They take pride and extra time in preventing dental disease, improving the appearance of the patient's teeth, and protecting his or her smile.

Allegheny Dental Care has convenient office hours, including Saturdays, and can be contacted for an appointment by calling 301-334-5200.

MEDICARE COSTS INCREASE FOR 1998

The 1998 increases in the hospital costs payable by Medicare beneficiaries--the Part A hospital insurance deductible and the Part B medical insurance premium--were announced this month. The deductible and the premium are recalculated each year to reflect changes in the costs of health care or changes in Medicare law.

The Part A deductible for beneficiaries admitted to hospitals in 1998 will be $764, an increase of $4 over this year's $760. The monthly Part B premium will remain at $43.80. These relatively modest increases for 1998 reflect increases in Medicare spending lower than previously projected.

The Part A deductible is a beneficiary's only cost for up to 60 days of covered inpatient hospital services during a benefit period. A benefit period begins when the beneficiary enters the hospital and ends when he or she has been out of the hospital or a skilled nursing facility for 60 consecutive days. The Part A deductible is based on the rates that Medicare pays hospitals for inpatient care.

For hospital stays longer than 60 days, a beneficiary will be responsible for $191 per day for the 61st through 90th days, and $382 per day for the 91st through 150th days.

When a beneficiary needs therapeutic care in a skilled nursing facility after at least three consecutive days of inpatient hospital care, Medicare pays 100 percent of covered expenses for the first 20 days. The beneficiary is responsible for $95.50 per day for the 21st through the 100th day.

Part B Medicare helps beneficiaries pay for the services of doctors and other medical practitioners, hospital outpatient services, independent clinical work, and durable medical equipment and supplies. The premium is determined by a formula, set in law, to cover 25 percent of current estimated costs.

Neubert Finalist In Distinguished Scholar Program

Eric Neubert, a senior at Northern High School, has been selected as a finalist in the Maryland Distinguished Scholarship Program. In recognition of that achievement, he and his parents, Cathy and John Neubert, have been invited to attend Distinguished Scholar Recognition Day, to be held at Morgan State University in Baltimore.

The purpose of the Distinguished Scholarship Program is to attract Maryland's best students to colleges in their own state. Distinguished Scholars are selected on the basis of rigorous academic standards. The program identifies and honors highly able Maryland high school juniors who are exceptionally talented or who have clear potential for superior academic achievement in higher education, and it encourages these students to attend Maryland colleges or universities.

Of 3,600 applicants, Neubert is among just 350 scholars chosen on the basis of superior academic achievement or superior artistic talent. The Maryland Higher Education Commission encourages Maryland institutions of higher learning to contact Distinguished Scholars about educational and scholarship opportunities for outstanding students. Many of those institutions will be represented at Recognition Day.

Neubert, who resides in Grantsville, is a distinguished honor roll student at Northern and has won numerous awards for his academic and extracurricular activities. He has been listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students for three consecutive years, has been named to the National Honor Roll, is a National Merit Semi-Finalist, and has received a National Science Merit Award.

The student is a member of the Northern Garrett Marching Band and the varsity soccer, basketball, and track teams.

He is a member of the American Institute for Aeronautics and Astronautics and hopes to attend a national university, where he will major in both astronautical engineering and international relations. He would like to obtain a position as an international representative for an aerospace company, government agency, or consulting firm.

Saturday Declared "America Recycles Day In Maryland"

The Maryland Recyclers Coalition (MRC) will be the state sponsor of America Recycles Day, a national event organized by public-private partnerships to encourage participation in recycling and buying recycled products. The day is slated for Nov. 15, and Governor Parris Glendening has declared that day also as America Recycles Day in Maryland.

Maryland residents can support America Recycles Day by pledging to step up their recycling efforts and to buy recycled products. The theme is "Keep Recycling Working: Buy Recycled," emphasizing the importance of not only recycling, but of purchasing recycled items. Citizens can obtain and complete a pledge card to commit to recycling. The cards are available through the MRC, and persons may call the organization at 410-974-4478, or visit MRC's website at <www.marylandrecyclers.org> and download a card. They will also be available at Garrett County collection sites.

When completed, the pledge cards should be mailed to the Maryland Department of the Environment, 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, MD 21224-6617. A drawing of the cards will be conducted, with the winner receiving an American Green Dream House, a house constructed of recycled materials. The recipient will also be given the funds to purchase land for the house.

Additional prizes on national, state, and local levels will be awarded, including a family trip to Disney World.

National sponsors for America Recycles Day include the Steel Recycling Institute, the United States Environmental Protection Agency, The Home Depot, Union Camp, and the U.S. Postal Service. Maryland sponsors include Bell Atlantic, BG&E, Maryland Environmental Services, the Maryland Department of the Environment, MRC, Black and Decker, and Giant Food Stores.

MRC's mission is to promote sustainable reduction, reuse, and recycling ("the three R's") of materials otherwise destined for disposal, and to promote and increase the purchase of products made of recycled materials.

Library Fines, Fees To Change

The Board of Trustees of the Ruth Enlow Library has approved changes to rates charged for late and lost books and materials.

Effective Dec. 1, fines for children's books and materials will be charged at a rate of $.05 per day, $.25 per week, or a maximum of $2 in fines. The increase in fines for children's books and materials will be in effect at all five branch sites of the Ruth Enlow Library system.

A processing and handling fee will be added to all books not returned to the library.

The members of the board of trustees said that they look forward to use of library materials by community residents and prompt return of all items borrowed.

Women's Club Sets Wednesday Lunch At Wisp

The Oakland Christian Women's Club will be hosting a luncheon at the Will O' The Wisp Restaurant on Wednesday, Nov. 19, beginning at 11:30 a.m., with the theme "Coming Home."

The guest speaker for the event will be Joanne Smisko of Wexford, Pa., who will give a talk titled "Heart Felt Gratitude." Beth Colville of Terra Alta, W.Va., will present "Holiday Cards," a rubber stamp project, as a special feature. Dave Martin is to be the guest musician.

A free nursery is available for guests with young children. Reservations for the luncheon and nursery may be made by contacting Penny Hughes at 301-387-7488 no later than Sunday, Nov. 16. The cost of the luncheon is $7.50 per person, and reservations that are not kept must be honored.

AAA Cooks Up International Dining Events

The Area Agency on Aging, of Garrett County Community Action, will be offering weekend and evening dinners featuring the cuisine of other nations.

These dinners will be scheduled in addition to the regularly held nutrition site luncheons currently offered to seniors around the county. Available on a fee for service basis, these international dinners will provide another social opportunity for older citizens.

"This is an effort to reach Garrett County senior citizens, those age 55 and over, who do not already take advantage of our traditional nutritional program," an AAA spokeswoman said. "Of course, we hope to see some of our regular participants at these functions," she added.

The plan for 1998 is to spotlight foods from different countries at monthly dinners to be held in Oakland and Grantsville. The December menus will feature eastern European cuisine.

A dinner will be held at Grantsville Senior Center, Friday, Dec. 12, 5-7 p.m. The meal will include cekla salata (Hungarian beet salad), pushka, (Slovenian wedding soup), golumki (Polish-style cabbage rolls) noodles Romanoff, zoldbab (Hungarian green beans), roll, kuchen (German apple cake), and coffee and/or iced tea.

On Sunday, Dec. 14, from noon until 2 p.m. the Mary Browning Senior Center will serve uborka salata (Hungarian cucumber salad), borscht (Ukranian beet soup), golumki (Polish-style cabbage rolls), kluski (Polish potato dumplings), zoldbab (Hungarian green beans), roll, rhamkuchen (German cheese cake) and coffee and/or iced tea.

The cost per person for each dinner is $8.95 (by ticket only). The AAA spokeswoman emphasized that the price includes beverage and dessert, and there will be no gratuity.

Diners are welcome any time during the two hour interval set for each dinner.

Tickets are available at Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland, Flowery Vale Senior Center, Accident, Grantsville Senior Center, Grantsville, and the AAA office at 104 E. Center St., Oakland.

To order tickets by phone, persons may contact AAA at 301-334-9431, ext. 142.

The AAA is seeking volunteers to assist in planning menus and preparing various ethnic foods for future dinners. Those interested in volunteering may contact the agency.

BUCKWHEAT DINNER

On November 22 from 11 a.m. umil 7 p.m., the Mt. Lions Club will be serving its annual buckwheat cake and sausage dinner at the Mt. Grove Conmunity Building. Donations will be $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and younger. The public is welcome.

GATHERING SEED

"Gathering Seed from a Medieval Mother Root" was the theme for the November 7 World Community Day fellowship held at the Amboy United Methodist Church. Following the luncheon held in the seasonally decorated fellowship hall, the ladies and gentleman present viewed a slide show about a recent trip to China taken by Alice Penzo and her sister Laura Frye. Mrs. Frye presented the lecture and slides, telling of their trip up the Yangtze River through the three gorges which will be flooded by the hydroelectric dam now being constructed. There were pictures of cities and rural areas, and much information as to changes in life there.

The worship program then centered on the women of the Middle Ages who gathered and saved for posterity the "seeds" of music, art, poetry, dance, and drama, and gave their lives to the Lord and his works: Mechtild of Magdeberg, Catherine of Siena, Julian of Norwich, Hildegard of Bingen, Teresa of Avila, Joan of Arc, and to a more modern saint, Sister Marjorie Tuite, who "generously and clearly embodied the Word."

An election of officers was held in which Patricia Stemple was elected president and Tammy Parsons the vice president. Jean Winters remains secretary-treasurer. The next observance will be World Day of Prayer to be held the first Friday in March 1998 at the Aurora St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The local harvest of amaranth seeds was also displayed, harvested from plants grown of the seeds provided at May Fellowship Day.

NEED A HUG?

Eglon Homemakers Club learned to savor tiny delights in their life in the "Some Days I Need A Hug" lesson presented by Sandra Hauser at their November 4 meeting held in the home of Ruth Teets. The hostess provided the devotions using "Inspiring One Another" as her theme based on Hebrews 10:24--"Let us provoke one another to love and do good." She also read a poem, "Let Us Give Thanks," and closed with a prayer from Peter Marshall.

Plans were made to serve a Mt. Lions Club dinner on December 4. The next meeting will be December 2 at the Eglon Memorial Building beginning at 10 a.m. Each member is asked to bring cookie dough to bake, a gift of under $5 value to exchange, and lunch will be provided. Each member is also asked to bring a decoration for the room or table.

The meeting concluded with the serving of refreshments by Rebecca Teets and Florence Minnig. Others in attendance were Linda Lewis, Mary Rembold, Avenell Parsons, Nina Layman, and Jean Winters.

FIRST AID GIVEN

Two members of the Mt. Grove Volunteer Fire Department answered an emergency call Thursday evening to provide the Heimlich maneuver to Robert Scott, who was choking on some food. He was subsequently taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by a Tucker County ambulance. His wife reports that he is much improved.

Tomorrow Is Lung Cancer Awareness Day

Lung cancer strikes more West Virginians than any other cancer, and survivors and their physicians want the public to take notice.

The first National Lung Cancer Awareness Day is tomorrow, Friday, Nov. 14. The Alliance for Lung Cancer Advocacy, Support and Education (ALCASE), a national nonprofit organization dedicated to helping patients and families affected by lung cancer, organized the Lung Cancer Awareness Day.

West Virginia's lung cancer rates are above national averages - mortality rates for women are the sixth highest in the U.S., and for men, seventh highest. Nearly 180,000 new cases and 160,000 lung cancer deaths are expected in the United States this year.

"More people die each year from lung cancer than from breast, prostate, and colon cancer combined, yet there have been no races for a cure, no ribbons worn in recognition of the disease, no months, weeks or even days dedicated to raising lung cancer awareness," says John Rogers, MD, co-director of WVU's Multidisciplinary Lung Cancer Clinic.

"Early diagnosis is very important. Unfortunately, by the time patients start experiencing symptoms, the disease is advanced," says Dr. Rogers. "Quite obviously, this is a disease that warrants our attention, and we can and must do everything we can to focus more attention on it."

Research is bringing improvements in treatment. According to Rogers, chemotherapy in conjunction with radiation and surgery has shown promising results. "Only through increased federal funding, can we hope to produce the kind of research that is needed," he says.

WVUs Lung Cancer Clinic brings together specialists from several WVU departments one day a week to give patients "one-stop" access to a comprehensive diagnosis and treatment service. It is the only such clinic in West Virginia, treating more than 144 patients per year.

"In addition to offering them the most comprehensive treatment in the state, we are very much involved with experimental trials in lung cancer treatment sponsored by the National Cancer Institute, the Eastern Cooperative Oncology Group and Vanderbilt University," says Rogers. The physicians are also studying the area of positron emission tomography (PET) scans in diagnosis and staging of lung cancers.

Lung cancer is also a concern of the entire region, where tobacco use is an ingrained tradition. A WVU Lung Cancer Clinic spokesperson added that over 15% of its patients come from Garrett County alone.

Bronze Replica Of Preston Academy Available For Sale

Main Street Kingwood announces the latest edition of the Kingwood Historic Bronze Replica Series. The newest addition to the five set series is the Preston Academy Building built around 1843. The initial production run of the Academy will be limited to 25 replicas and will be available for Christmas, according to Brian Ward, coordinator of Main Street Kingwood. A larger run will be available in the spring. The replicas cost $50 each, plus sales tax.

The Kingwood bronze replica series also includes Kingwood Elementary School, the Preston County Courthouse, the James C. McGrew House, the First Presbyterian Church, and Wesley United Methodist Church. These replicas are still available for Christmas, but only a few of each design are available, according to Ward.

To order the Preston Academy Building, persons may stop by Bowyer's Furniture on West Main Street in Kingwood, or call the store at 329-0777. Earlier editions may be viewed or purchased at the Calico Cat, Mary's Restaurant, or Bowyer's Furniture, all in Kingwood.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

Date: November 13, 1997
Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development Community Development Administration
100 Community Place
Crownsville, Maryland 21032-2023
410- 514-7446

On or about December 1, 1997, The Maryland Community Development Administration Housing Development Programs (the "Agency") will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to release funds under the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act of 1990 [(Title II, PL 101-628, "HOME investment Partnership Act" (HOME)], for the following project:

Overlook North, $900.000
High Street, Oakland
Garrett County, Maryland

The Agency proposes to assist in financing a reconstruction of an existing project for rental housing and single family lots with HOME Program funds The project will offer affordable housing opportunities for low- and very low-income households in Garrett County.

Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI).

The Agency adopted an Environmental Review Record (ERR) to document the environmental effects of the project. The Agency has determined that the Request for Release of Funds (RROF) for the project will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of human environment and accordingly the Agency has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. (PL 91-190).

The FONSI Is based on the following:

During Construction of the project, the adverse environmental Impact will be temporary and limited to construction noise and dust. It has been determined that the site meets all Federal, State and local environmental requirements and is acceptable for this proposed activity.

The ERR for the HOME project documents the environmental impact of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. The ERR Is on file at the above address and Is available for public examination and copying upon request between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday. No further environmental review of such project is proposed prior to the RROF to HUD.

Public Commants on FONSI

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision not to prepare an EIS for the proposed HOME Project are Invited to submit written comments for consideration by the Agency at the above address. All such written comments should be received at the cited address on or before November 28, 1997. All such comments so received will be considered and the Agency will not RROF or take any administrative action on the project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

Raquaat for Ralaaaa of Funds

The Agency Is certifying to HUD that the Agency and Tonna Phelps, In her official capacity as Administrator of Development Assistance, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts If an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making and action; and that those responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon Its approval the Agency may use HOME funds and the Agency will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

Objactiona to Ralaasa of Funda

An objection to the release of funds will be accepted by HUD, but only if it is on one of the following bases; (I) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer; or (ii) that Agency's ERR for the project indicates omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental raviaw procass; or (III) no opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800; or (iv) another Federal Agency has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality.

Objections to the release of funds must be prepared and submitted to HUD in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and should be addressed to the HUD Maryland State Office, City Crescent Building, 10 S. Howard Street, 5th Floor, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after December 17, 1997, will be considered by HUD unless because of unforseen delay, the request for release of funds was received after the date mentioned at the beginning of the Notice. Since this is possible and would cause a change in the objection period, objectors should contact the Agency to verify the date of the last day of the objection period.

Shaffer To Begin Coursework In Cosmetology

Deni Lynn Shaffer of Oakland will begin her cosmetology studies at the Morgantown Beauty College in Morgantown, W.Va., next week.

Shaffer's coursework will involve nearly a full year of class lecture and applied learning in all facets of styling and care of hair, nails and skin. The 2,000-hour program will prepare Shaffer for the Maryland state cosmetology licensing exam.

The daughter of Dennis and Cheryl Shaffer of Oakland, Shaffer is a 1997 graduate of Southern High School and has most recently been employed at Visible Changes beauty salon. She hopes to return to Oakland to pursue her career and to open her own shop in the future.

Local Students Help Lions With Sight Project

Fifth grade students at Dennett Road Elementary School, assisted by their teacher, Alan Skidmore, recently spent a Saturday morning sorting and counting used eye glasses that were collected in former U.S. mailboxes, transformed into special containers by members of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club. The boxes are placed in front of Proudfoot's and Gregg's pharmacies in Oakland and Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake.

The students pictured at right, plus other fifth grade students from Irene Sigel's class last year, sorted, counted, and boxed over 2,500 pairs of good used glasses, along with many lenses, hearing aids, five letters, two post cards, and a cash donation of $13.56.

After collection, sorting, and counting, the glasses are delivered to Lions District 22-W Sight Conservation Committee chairman Robert Davis, who further screens and grades the prescriptions so they may be fitted and used by persons from families in need. They are sent to deprived and depressed areas in the United States and to third-world developing countries.

Last year, from District 22-W alone, 228,000 pairs of glasses were collected and made available to persons in need, according to Wayne Johnson, vice district governor of 22-W and a member of the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park club. "Sight conservation is the major purpose of Lions Clubs International," Johnson explained. "This is done not only by collecting eye glasses, but also by assisting people in each club's locality with exams, glasses, and equipment, as well as supporting research through Lions Vision Research and the Wilmer Eye Institute at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore."

Johnson added that the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park club spent over $6,000 last year for sight conservation in the local area. "Funds this year are being disbursed on a case-by-case basis," he said, "to make sure that those most in need are helped. Because of the larger number of requests, we have had to limit the amount of assistance."

Johnson encourages local residents to continue to support the program. "We hope that those who have prescription glasses not being used will place them in one of the three collection boxes, so someone who now has a sight problem might see the beauties of our world," he said.

Helping Johnson coordinate the collection of used glasses locally is fellow club member Paul Shockey.

STUDENTS ASSIST LIONS - Those fifth grade students of Dennett Road Elementary School recently donated a Saturday morning to sort and count used eye glasses that had been collected in special Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club receptacles in the area. The effort is part of the club's and Lions Clubs International's on-going project of sight conservation, which provides good used eyewear to persons in need and also financial support for eye research. Pictured in the front row, from left, are: Billy Georg, Aaron Louden, and Cassie Skidmore. Standing, same order, are teacher Alan Skidmore, principal Gary Galloway, Bryan Crosco, Tyler Livengood, Corey Tressler, Matthew Skidmore, and Lindsey Strubin. Pictured below are the boxes of glasses that were prepared by the students. See story for details.

Oakland Chapter Honors Deputy

Wilda Hile, Deputy Grand Lecturer of Maryland was the honored guest when Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, met Tuesday at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple in Oakland.

Ted Raynovich, Worthy Patron, called the meeting to order and all joined in the pledge of allegiance and the singing of the national anthem. Worthy Matron Thelma Henshaw opened with a reading, "Blossoms of Love," and greeted Hile. She also recognized Past Patrons, officer, members of the chapter, and Brothers holding Masonic honors Ted Raynovich, Delmar Sliger, and Reaford Purbaugh.

A program titled "Child of the Land" was performed and a gift was given to Hile, who was making her official visit. The next meeting will be Nov. 18, and a Thanksgiving program will be presented.

Henshaw's closing was "Walk Not In Fear" and refreshments were served by Elizabeth McComas and Kim Livengood.

Alzheimer's Study Seeks Participant Family Caregivers

An Alzheimer's family study, funded by the National Institutes of Health and based at the University of Maryland at College Park, is seeking participants.

This study focuses on the day-to-day experiences of husbands or wives who are providing home care for their spouses with Alzheimer's disease or similar dementia disorder.

Volunteers for this study are asked to make an initial phone contact with the study group. Later, an interviewer will return the call to the volunteer to make an appointment.

The interview will concern the helping activities undertaken by the spouse and the effects on that individual of being a caregiver. There will also be a brief telephone interview with adult children who have some involvement, however limited, in the care of the parent.

A spokesperson for the research group said that in previous studies the volunteers appreciated the opportunity to talk about their caregiving experiences, and their participation can be assistance to others in similar circumstances.

"The caregivers have an important story to tell, even if they think there is nothing special about their experiences," the spokesperson said.

Anyone wishing to participate in this family study may call the Alzheimer's Family Study group at 301-405-7707 or 1-800-398-1297.

November is National Diabetes Month

Diabetes is caused by a relative or absolute lack of insulin. There are actually two types of diabetes. Type I, also called insulin dependent diabetes, was once referred to as juvenile onset diabetes. It tends to show up during the teenage age years. With Type I diabetes the body does not produce insulin. Type II diabetes (non-insulin dependent) typically occurs during the middle adult years. Some insulin is present. Although either type can occur in anyone, the chances of getting Type II diabetes increase if one is female, overweight, or has one or both parents who have diabetes.

In the United States an estimated 13 million persons have diabetes. However, some 8 million Americans do not know that they have the condition. Public health officials are now stressing the importance of testing and early diagnosis of the disease. A commonly used diagnostic procedure is the fasting plasma glucose test. It requires fasting (not eating) for 8 hours prior to the test. If you have experienced excessive thirst, hunger, or urination, or if you have recently experienced unexpected weight loss, you may want to talk to a physician about taking the fasting plasma glucose test. An international group is now recommending that all adults be tested for diabetes by age 45.

In Loving Remembrance of
Gina Renai's 38th Birthday

Generous, loving, sweet and kind,
Interested in every life she touched.
No one ever asked so little and yet gave so much,
Always had others on her mind.

Remembered all important days,
Enjoyed making others smile.
Never too busy to listen,
Always willing to go the extra mile.
Inner beauty she displayed.

This was my beloved daughter,
Who left this life when it had just begun.
She is much loved and remembered,
And missed by everyone.

Lovingly remembering my beautiful daughter,
Gina Renai Humberson Freeman,
on her birthday November 15.
She left this life May 9, 1994.

County Appoints Mental Health Needs Committee

The Garrett County Commissioners have taken action to establish a planning committee for creating a private, non-profit organization to respond to local mental health needs. This is in response to the ongoing changes in mental health care and also to assist Garrett Countians in knowing where to turn for help, according to a report from Fred V. Tola, the appointed coordinator of the committee.

The start-up committee, which is to organize the planning group, is being headed by the county's administrative officer Monty Pagenhardt and includes persons from the Alliance for the Mentally Ill and the Mental Health Advisory Council, the Department of Social Services, the Garrett County Health Department, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and Lighthouse, Inc.

The committee recently hired Tola as coordinator. He has 15 years of planning experience and has taken part in state-wide planning meetings on community health services, according to the report. He also played a part in establishing Hospice of Garrett County.

The start-up committee will work to establish a community-based group -- a CSA, or core services agency. This is in response to changes in the mental health care sector. CSAs have the responsibility of managing the availability of services and funding needed care for specific persons, the seriously mentally ill and seriously mentally disabled. These changes have come from state and national policies on reimbursement and pressures for moving patients from state institutions to environments as close to home as possible, Tola said.

The Mental Hygiene Administration (MHA of Maryland) has adopted the mission of promoting access by vulnerable persons to community-based and unified care. Therefore, MHA offers funding for a CSA to identify populations in their jurisdictions who need mental health care, to manage and fund these services, and to assure that the delivery of care is available both in amount and quality that maximize the use of public dollars, Tola stated.

"As a result of this," Tola reported, "Garrett County

WISP IN CAHOOTS WITH MOTHER NATURE - Yes, she provided the cold temps and about six inches of real snow, while the wily Wisp workers have added their own mountainous piles of the fake-but-fun stuff. As a result of the 'round-the-clock hard work of snowmaking technicians, the local ski area will officially open tomorrow, Nov. 21. The rope tow will be up and running and skiers can get their snow-legs back by warming up on Belly Flop, the beginner area. The opening of Squirrel Cage is tentative, according to communications manager Derek Versteegen, who said the technicians will be working on Saturday to get the popular slope ready. Friday hours will be from noon until 9 p.m., and Saturday's will be 8:30 a.m. until 9 p.m. The resort will be open Sunday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. For more information, persons can check Wisp's website at <http://www.wisp-resort.com>. Hit-And-Run Driver Strikes Fratz's Vehicle

The vehicle driven by Gary E. Fratz, member of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners, was struck by a hit and run driver last week, according to a report by the Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry.

Fratz was reportedly traveling northbound on Sand Flat Road Nov. 13 around 9:50 p.m. At that time, Charles R. Housley was southbound on Sand Flat Road and failed to reduce speed in response to bad weather and road conditions, the police said.

Housley's vehicle allegedly slid across the icy road, struck the Fratz vehicle, stopped momentarily, and then fled the scene. The Dodge Ram driven by Fratz left the roadway, struck a ditch, and was disabled.

The officer on the scene reported that within about 20 minutes he was able to locate Housley. Inquiries resulted in the officer receiving information that Housley was wanted under an existing warrant at the time of the hit and run incident.

Housley was arrested and placed in the Garrett County Jail. He was released the following day on a $1,000 bond.

BERKEBILE NAMED CHIEF DEPUTY - Gary Berkebile of Accident, shown here with his wife Nancy, has been named the new chief deputy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office by Sheriff Dick Sanders. The 25-year Maryland State Police veteran has most recently been employed as a part-time bailiff for the Garrett County District Court. "I'm looking forward to serving the citizens of Garrett County again," said Berkebile, who assumes office on December 1. "I'm very excited by the opportunity Sheriff Sanders has offered me in serving as chief deputy."

GCSO Names Gary Berkebile Chief Deputy

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has announced that Gary A. Berkebile has been appointed Chief Deputy by Sheriff Dick Sanders.

Deputy Chief Berkebile, who lives on a farm near Accident with his wife Nancy and their two daughters, Lacie and Becky, retired as a sergeant after 25 years of service with the Maryland State Police, the last 22 of which were at the McHenry Barracks. During his tenure with the state police he served as a road trooper, criminal investigator, and supervisor.

"Gary Berkebile brings with him experience, honesty, knowledge, and a strong work ethic," commented Sheriff Sanders. "As a Garrett County resident and a law enforcement officer for the last 22 years, he knows the citizens of this county and their concerns for a safer community," said Sanders.

All Clear After Last Week's SHS Fumes Incident

Southern High School was found to be free of any traces of carbon monoxide or other hazardous fumes after an incident last week resulted in 78 students and five adults being transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment.

When several students had complained of headaches and nausea, members of the school staff and the Garrett County Board of Education evacuated and ventilated the building.

It was quickly discovered that exhaust fumes had entered the ventilation system from a truck left outside the building with its engine running. Once the air was determined to be clear and safe, students returned to their regular classes while those who continued to experience symptoms were transported for treatment.

No one was reported to be hospitalized as a result of the incident.

Ice On Roads Named Factor In Accident

Ice on the road surface was linked to an accident last week that sent two people to the hospital.

A report filed by Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, stated that on Nov. 13, Lisa M. Brode, 68, Frostburg, was westbound on Route 40, west of the Allegany County line around 4 p.m. At the same time, Sharon N. Ashby, 52, Frostburg, was reportedly eastbound on Route 40 at the same location. Brode's vehicle was said to slide on ice on the road, cross the double center line and strike the vehicle driven by Ashby.

Both drivers were transported by Frostburg Ambulance Service to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

No charges were filed in the mishap.

Loss Of Control

Wind gusts contributed to a driver losing control of his vehicle on Friday morning, police said.

Richard W. Ferris, Pittsburgh, Pa., was westbound on Route I-68 around 6:50 a.m. when a gust of wind at an overpass swept his vehicle across the lane and into the median. Ferris reportedly lost control of his car, traveled up an embankment, overturned, and came to rest in the eastbound lane of I-68. The driver was ejected from

Put Highway On County Line, Say Edwards, Hafer

State Delegate George Edwards and State Senator John Hafer have come up with a suggestion that they feel could please the residents of Garrett and Allegany counties, and their respective business communities, who are currently debating the merits of a proposal to construct a new north/south interstate highway through the region.

Edwards and Hafer put forth their proposal at an informational session about the 1998 General Assembly held at Garret Community College on Saturday. The two elected officials proposed that the state and citizenry study locating a new interstate that would run roughly along the Garrett/Allegany county border.

"Our idea is to construct a new interchange on I-68 roughly halfway between the Finzel truck scales and Route 36 in Garrett County, with a new road then leading south, not north, from there which will meet Route 135 just west of McCoole," Edwards said later.

"The road would continue south across the Potomac River from there, and could probably run west of Keyser on down to connect to Corridor H, but that would be up to West Virginia," he said.

The GCC audience contained members from groups who have been lobbying both for and against construction of a new interstate in Garrett County.

"We've listened to a lot of input on a north/south highway in the area for many years," Edwards said, "and we're putting this idea out on the table for discussion because we think that this proposal will benefit both Garrett and Allegany counties, as well as neighboring counties in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

"It would be a way to bring the entire region together," Edwards continued, as he named off what he sees as the positives of the proposal. "This route would be fed by southbound traffic from Route 219 North that would come east along I-68, and by southbound traffic from Route 220 North that would come west along I-68, directing traffic from two different areas to the new road.

In addressing potential economic benefits for Garrett County, which proponents of a Continental One NAFTA highway have made their main selling point, Edwards said: "This new proposal would benefit the region as a whole, five counties in three states. In Garrett County we feel that the industrial parks of both Oakland and Grantsville will benefit from greatly

Truck Accident Takes Life Of Lake Area Man

Jeffrey Kirk Roszell, 30, a resident of the Deep Creek Lake area, was killed instantly last week in an accident on Garrett Highway at Mayhew Inn Road.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that on Nov. 13 at 1 p.m. Roszell was in the rear of a 1996 International truck, which was stopped in the parking lot of Garrett Automotive. The report stated that the operator of the vehicle, Edward R. Grove Sr., Oakland, was unaware that Roszell was in the cargo area and pulled out into the northbound lane of Route 219.

As the truck moved onto the roadway, Roszell attempted to exit the cargo area through the side door, fell onto the road, and was run over by the rear tires of the vehicle.

No charges were filed and investigation continues, according to the police.

Roszell was born April 20, 1967, in Baltimore, a son of William E. Roszell III and Sharon (Moore) Roszell.

He was employed as a mechanic, was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, and was an avid hunter, bowler, and softball player.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, William E. Roszell IV, Oakland, and Edward M. Roszell, Friendsville; and his maternal grandmother, Olive Moore, Baltimore.

Friends were received at the Durst Funeral Home, Oakland. A service was conducted at St. Mark's Lutheran Church on Monday, Nov. 17, with the Rev. Michael Robinson officiat-

Smith Faces More Rape Charges In Series Of Attacks

An Oakland man who was arrested two weeks ago on initial charges of rape and the attempted rape of two women now faces a total of 19 various rape, sexual assault and assault charges involving five area women, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The charges faced by David Allan Smith, 31, continue to mount as more victims come forward. Currently held on a $150,000 bond, Smith is now charged with three counts of second-degree rape, two counts of second-degree attempted rape, two counts each of second- and third-degree sexual offense, three counts of fourth-degree sexual offense, two counts of indecent exposure, and five counts of second-degree assault.

Sheriff's detectives state that within the next several weeks they anticipate charging Smith with sexually assaulting as many as three more women.

In other sheriff's news, an vehicle accident on Route 219 at Foster Road at 4:45 p.m. Tuesday evening resulted in injuries to one person, who was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also assisted on the scene. Further details were unavailable as of the time The Republican went to press today.

Two Arrested In Connection With Area Burglaries

Detectives at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office have arrested two local men in connection with two burglaries in the Paradise Point area. Charged with burglary, theft, and destruction of property are Shawn Michael Blackwell, 21, Oakland, and Kevin Alan Lipscomb, 19, Swanton.

These men are also reportedly suspects in nine other residential burglaries in the same area.

Following Blackwell's arrest, a search warrant was executed at his residence, which reportedly resulted in the recovery of numerous property items from homes along Paradise Ridge Road and the surrounding area.

Blackwell is also wanted in the state of New Jersey on other burglary charges, according to the sheriff's office report.

Two victims in this case are Vincent Piccirillo and Charles Meyer, whose homes were burglarized late last month.

BACK TO SCHOOL WITH THE ARTS - District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards recently went "back to school with the arts" for a performance of the Entertainers of Grafton High School, who presented a song-and-dance "Musical Salute to the '70s" to approximately 1,000 Garrett County students form Southern High School and four elementary schools in Oakland. The two performances of the visiting Entertainers were funded through a collaborative endeavor of the Garrett County Board of Education, the Garrett County Arts Council, Southern High School, and the parent-teacher organizations of Crellin, Kitzmiller, Loch Lynn, and Red House elementary schools. Carole Ann Lovett, reading resource teacher at Crellin Elementary School, coordinated the presentations. In the above photo, Helen Earles, president of the Garrett County Arts Council, is shown presenting Delegate Edwards with a copy of "The Arts and Children: A Success," produced by the Maryland Alliance for Arts Education. The publication provides data and cites studies indicating that exposure to the arts is beneficial to children. Photo by Steve Schlosnagle.

Charges Stetted In Case Of Town Parking Lot Nap

Charges stemming from an Oakland man's arrest for lying in the Oakland town parking lot while intoxicated were placed on the stet docket in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

The charges of disturbing the peace and endangering his own safety while intoxicated with alcohol faced by Charles Edward Friend, 58, Oakland, stemmed from Friend's arrest by the Oakland Police in August. The stet ruling means that the charges can be recalled for trial within the next 365 days if the court deems it necessary. A condition of the stet is that Friend is banned from sleeping in any roads.

Brian Christopher Durst, 20, Grantsville, was found in violation of a probation order stemming from a previous marijuana possession conviction. The judge ordered Durst's probation was revoked, and a jail sentence of 28 days was reimposed.

Ricky Scott Moats Sr., 34, McHenry, was found in violation of a probation order stemming from a previous conviction of acting as a contractor without a license. His allowed time period of paying back restitution to the complainant was extended for the period of his probation.

A petition of violation of probation faced by Maria Lynne Atkinson, 20, was dismissed, and her probation was terminated. The Friendsville woman has paid full restitution to the complainant in a previous battery, destruction of property, and felony theft case in which she drew a probation before judgment on the charges.

These cases involving the following individuals were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office, and the charges were dismissed: James Bryant Thomas, 26, Mtn. Lake Park, charged with felony theft; Edward Michael Finn, 27, Pittsburgh, Pa., charged with transporting a loaded handgun in his vehicle; and David Richard Armstrong, 24, Swanton, charged with marijuana possession.

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol (DUI) convictions were handed down from the bench recently.

James Lee Glover, 25, Addison, Pa., was convicted on one charge each of DWI and DUI. He was fined $100, handed a four-month sentence with all but four days suspended, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

David Patrick Shaffer, 39, Swanton, was convicted of DUI and was fined $355, handed a three-month sentence with all but four days suspended, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Willard Thomas Hostetler, 40, Confluence, Pa., was convicted of DUI and fined $255, handed a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Mark Stephen Vrable, 35, Latrobe, Pa., was convicted of DWI and was fined $155, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

BPW HONORS WOMAN OF THE YEAR - At a recent meeting of the Garrett County Business and Professional Woman's Club, Karen (Spiker) Myers, a local entrepreneur, was named Woman of the Year as well as Employer of the Year for her "outstanding support of women, both personally and professionally," according to a spokesperson, who added that this is the first year the club has ever honored the same woman for both awards. Myers is shown above, center, accepting the awards from Sandy Flockhart, left, and Phyllis Trickett, right. A special award was also presented to Martin Heise, food service director at Will O' the Wisp, shown below, left, for his "years of support and service to the many organizations of the county." He is pictured with June Hesselbach.

Gary Wayne Ford, 44, Oakland, was found in violation of DWI probation and his probation was revoked with a 20-day sentence reimposed.

James Bryant Thomas, 26, Oakland, was found in violation of DWI and his probation was revoked with a four-month sentence reimposed.

#214's Miller Legionnaire Of The Year

American Legion Post #214 Grantsville recently honored Ivan Miller as its Legionnaire of the Year for 1997. A Purple Heart recipient, Miller is a World War II veteran who served in the European Theater as a rifleman with Ninth Infantry Division. Miller joined Post #214 as one of its charter members 52 years ago, worked as post steward from 1950 to 1966, and remains active in its activities to this day.

Hundreds of Grantsville residents from their 40s to their 60s would likely recall that Miller and his wife Mildred hosted a teen dance at the Post building on Friday nights from 1954 to 1966. In turning Post #214 into Grantsville's version of American Bandstand, the Millers gave local teens the chance to do the stroll, the twist, and the locomotion to 45s by such musical acts as The Platters, Little Richard, Jerry Lee Lewis, Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, and the Beatles.

"We would average 150 kids a dance," Miller reminisced recently, "and most of the time we would have a jukebox that allowed kids to pick their own songs to dance to; however, once in a while we would bring in a band for special occasions, and 200 or more kids would show up," Grantsville's own Dick Clark said.

LEGIONNAIRE OF THE YEAR IVAN MILLER of Grantsville displays the plaque American Legion Post #214 presented to him recently as they honored him with this year's award. The plaque adds to Miller's distinguished roll call of awards and medals, which include the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantryman Badge, and the Bronze Star. The medal closest to his heart, however, is displayed on his ring finger: the wedding band that united him with his wife Mildred 50 years ago.

"The jukebox dances were free admission," Miller continued, and laughingly added that "when we had a band we'd have to charge a whole 10 cents. The bands would usually give us a break on their fee because they liked the kids. There was a band from Oakland that was especially good, and they would always open their show with the song "Boney Maroni," which the kids loved.

"We'd allow anyone between 13 and 19 years old in as long as they agreed to abide by the rules. Out of 150 kids at a dance we'd never have to ask any more than just four or five to leave, and usually when we had to put them out the first time they'd never cause a problem again, I guess because the dance was that important to them," Miller said.

"Those were some fun times," Miller recalled. "Once a 20-year-old man came to the back door during a dance and told me that he felt terrible because he was one year too old to get into the dances anymore, and one year too young to do some other things," Miller laughed.

Just a walk down the street in today's Grantsville can rekindle memories of those times for Miller and some of those dancers he might happen to meet who remain teenagers at heart.

"Some of the kids from those days still stop and talk when they see me, and some have introduced me to their kids and grandkids. It's a great feeling every time that happens," Miller said.

School Activity Review Committee Postpones Meeting

The meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education School Activities Review Committee, originally scheduled to be held Nov. 25 at Garrett Community College, has been postponed.

Readers are asked to disregard the story published on page B-1 of this edition of The Republican.

The meeting will be rescheduled for some time in December, and further information will be published following the Thanksgiving vacation.

ACE Meeting To Address Program Of Assessment

A meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education's Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 25, at 7 p.m. in Room 315 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett Community College. CTBS testing as part of the Accountability and Assessment Program will be a topic for discussion. The public is invited to attend.

Local Man Goes Back To Jail, Term Reimposed

A Mountain Lake Park man who apparently violated his probation is back in the Garrett County jail. Joseph R. Kisselovich, 42, did not contest the probation charge brought by the Office of Parole and Probation.

Judge Fred A. Thayer heard the case and reimposed the originally suspended five-year term, and then suspended all but 18 months. He also ordered the defendant to be on five years of probation following his release.

Kisselovich was convicted in 1993 of resisting arrest and driving while intoxicated. He was sentenced at that time to a total of six years, with five years suspended. The probation violation charge was incurred by him in August, apparently after a drug test showed evidence of cocaine use. He is also accused of failing to pay the complete amount of court costs.

The defendant apparently faces another violation of probation charge, but the hearing for that incident has been continued.

Mayberry Files For Office Of Comptroller

Republican Tim Mayberry, Boonsboro, recently announced his candidacy for the office of Maryland State Comptroller. This marks his second bid for the office, as he won 40% of the vote in 1994 against incumbent Louis L. Goldstein, who has held the office for 39 years.

During a visit to Garrett County this week, Mayberry outlined his "Maryland Business Building" campaign with members of the local business community.

Describing himself as a "non-politician," Mayberry is a former vice president of Citibank, Bank of Baltimore and American Security Bank. Experience as a consultant to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation give him a background in "fixing broken financial institutions with assets greater than the entire annual Maryland budget," according to his spokesperson.

"I am running on a dollar-specific, ten-point program to save $200,000 each year out of comptroller office reform alone," said Mayberry.

The 41-year-old had upset his primary challenger, GOP National Committeeman Richard Taylor in 1994 and had achieved 40% name recognition on a total outlay of $17,000, according to a press release.

Indicating that he does not attack Comptroller Goldstein, Mayberry said Republicans and Democrats alike tell him they think "40 years for one man in one office is enough."

Mayberry has also said that most campaign spending is "obscene," and has announced his intent to run a low-budget grassroots effort that offers "facts, not fund-raisers."

According to Mayberry, the citizens of Maryland pay more taxes than those in 46 other states, yet is always in a "fiscal crisis." He states that Maryland, with its constitutional balanced budget requirement, "wavers between disaster announcements and sudden found money surprises. Over and over, the projections change, and we never really know where we are."

MOST BEAUTIFUL MEYERSES HONORED BY STATE - Bill and Hazel Meyers, residents of Friendsville, were honored recently at the 11th annual "Maryland's Most Beautiful People" Volunteer Awards Ceremony, held in Annapolis. The Meyerses joined heroes from throughout Maryland who were recognized for their good works in their own communities by Governor Parris Glendening and other state officials. The Meyerses were chosen for Garrett County's Most Beautiful winners based on their continued service to veterans through work with the Disabled American Veterans and other organizations. They were also recognized for their service with the Friendsville Lions Club, of which both are members and have served in various leadership positions. Bill is a decorated veteran, having received the Order of Purple Heart Medal, and Hazel at one time worked as a missionary on an Indian reservation and later ran a nursery school for working mothers. The couple experienced the untimely death of a daughter and are now assisting their son-in-law in rearing their grandchildren. The couple was nominated by Paul Shockey, along with numerous Lions Club members and county citizens. Pictured at the Nov. 4 Annapolis ceremony, left to right, are James T. Brady, secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic Development; Louis Goldstein, state comptroller; Hazel Meyers; Frances Hughes Glendening, Maryland's First Lady; Bill Meyers; Garrett County Commissioner Chairman Roger Glotfelty; and Spencer Schloanagle, mayor of Friendsville.

Warming the Children...

When we received a call from Mack Stewart a few weeks ago asking us if we would like to participate in his Warm the Children project, we had many questions and a number of reservations. Was it legitimate? How much of the money collected would be used to cover "administrative" costs? Was the amount of work on our part too overwhelming? Would it be successful? Would it damage some of the other holiday charity efforts already established?

When we found out that Mack, the founder of the program, is a retired newspaper man, and that he and his wife receive no money in return for their efforts (other than a nominal sum from the participating newspapers to help them cover postage and other expenses), our interest increased dramatically. Every smgle penny donated for this project goes directly to purchasmg clothing for local children in need.

The program has been successful and is well established in many states, but ours is the first in the state of Maryland, and since Garrett County has the harshest winters in the state, it seems most appropriate that we are the first.

As to our concern about "competing" with other charitable programs, particularly the annual Rotary Christmas Project, we now believe that Warm the Children will complement the Rotary effort nicely, and will provide some additional needed items for families.

We believe that the great majority of people served by charitable programs are truly in need, and we encourage them to sign up as beneficiaries of Warm the Children. Of course, there are a few isolated cases of dead-beat parents who take advantage of such programs. So another feature of Warm the Children that attracted us is the fact that it directly provides for the children, who are all innocent victims of their particular situations. The parents usually cannot wear the coats, boots, gloves, and various other items of warm clothing that are purchased; they simply don't fit. Care is also taken to ensure that the items cannot be exchanged for other things (i.e. cigarettes).

Finally, our "would it be successful" question was answered when we opened our very first envelope that was addressed to Warm the Children and pulled out a check for $1,000 - yep, that's three zeros. The donor, whom we cannot thank enough, wants to remain anonymous.

So, all those who wish to participate are encouraged to send their tax-deductible contributions (checks should be made out to Warm the Children) to our office at P.O. Box 326, Oakland. We will publish a running list of those donors on a weekly basis, excepting, of course, those who wish to remain anonymous.

Please help us keep Garrett County's children warm.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

My name is Laura Bonser and I wanted to thank Shaffer Ford for sponsoring the Shaffer Ford Spurs soccer team this year. My team and I had a lot of fun and appreciate it a bunch! Thank you again. We had a great year! I hope you sponsor our team again.

Your soccer player,

To the Editor:

Kudos to Ken Bauer of CONHOG for his eloquent defense of Mother Earth and Garrett County against the highway/development juggernaut. I was equally impressed with his quick response to the ridiculous assertion that the pfiesteria problem downstate is somehow connected to dead deer up here on the mountaintop.

Ken's incisive, issue-oriented comments at Saturday's "pre-legislative session meeting" held at the GCC auditorium were right on the mark. His deep concern for all life was very evident. Ken Bauer is truly a true-hearted person. The people of Garrett County are indeed fortunate to have such a person working on their behalf.

To the Editor:

The Garrett County Board of Education members want to express our thanks and appreciation to all who came to the rescue of everyone at Southern High who were overcome by fumes this past week.

Thursday evening at the MD Rural Health Association Town Meeting, I heard a lot of talk about the teamwork from the Health Dept. to the Hospital as they went into a priority code one. Doctors were called in from all areas, and employees called in from days off.

There was teamwork by ambulance staff, who came from all over to give assistance at Southern High and transport students to the hospital. Teamwork by the fire departments, and rescue squads, was all coordinated by the county Emergency Management System.

We also want to recognize all the staff at Southern High who maintained order and calm at the school, while a number of administrative departments from the board office came in to help out however they could. Finally, we want to commend our new superintendent, Dr. Wendell Teets, for his leadership in the face of this crisis, as well as with the bus accident earlier this fall. Thank you all!

To the Editor:

It seems appropriate to observe a moment of silence (and for sore of us a sigh of relief) today for "No Mo' Joe!" That's the theme of a Hock funeral held in Baltimore today for Joe Camel. This is also the day of The Great American Smokeout, sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

Joe Camel did an excellent job of hooking our kids on tobacco. Just look around almost anywhere and you can see a lot of underage tobacco use in our communities. A lot of kids can hardly wait until they are off school grounds before lighting up, and many who use smokeless tobacco don't even wait that long.

That evidence alone is one of many reasons why adults who use tobacco should try to quit doing so. Like it or not, every single adult and every single older brother or sister is a role model for younger kids. If one's own health isn't enough reason for anyone to quit using tobacco, then surely the health of our younger siblings, our kids, and our unborn children should be.

So please try to quit today, and then tomorrow, and then Saturday, etc. It's worth the effort.

Hopefully,
Donna Aspinall

P.S. Hey, Roberta, I'm thinking of you and have my fingers crossed. Good luck!

To the Editor:

In reading the papers and attending a couple of meetings, I really think that Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards have the right idea concerning the proposed highway; to take a different and shorter route basically on the border between Garrett and Allegany counties.

As Edwards has stated, it's cheaper than building two roads and it would be fair to the residents of both Garrett and Allegany counties, as well as neighboring Pennsylvania.

There are those, such as the members of CARE, who are opposed to the highway, regardless of its location, saying it is a waste of money and that it would damage the historical heritage of the county. This is hogwash! The improvements are badly needed.

Lots of time you have to wait for the stoplights in downtown Oakland to make two cycles before you can proceed. Have you seen the large trucks that use 219 and just about take up all of the road?

In my book, anyone who is against improvement should just go back to the farm or the small town they came from, and let the people who have been elected and have done an outstanding job address this issue.

Thank you,
Charles C. McIntyre

P.S. What a strange world this would be if we all had the same ideas and know-how!

To the Editor:

For several months, the Community Relations Committee of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation has been planning a luncheon and gift show for Friday, Nov. 14. As committee members awoke last Friday, we were discouraged by the horrible weather. Ice everywhere! Each of us was sure that the benefit was doomed. How surprised we were when more than 100 guests appeared at the doors of Silver Tree Inn to enjoy a marvelous afternoon of wonderful food, companionship, and great gift ideas! Hearty Garrett Countians, at their best, showed up with snules on their faces, ready to have fun.

The committee wishes to thank each guest for coming out on such a dreadful day. We also wish to give a big thank you to all the merchants who arrived early to set up and stayed to take down their displays. Each display was beautiful! A special thanks to Elaine McDonald for the time and effort she put into making the luncheon so special and for providing the space for the merchants to display their gift ideas.

We are very fortunate to have such a wonderful hospital serving Garrett County. The equipment that has been purchased by the G.C.M.H. Foundation over the past years has helped to keep our hospital ready to serve our community with the latest in technology.

Again, thank you!

Sincerely,

NATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK

We are thinking and talking about schools and education all the time at our house, with three students and one teacher around the supper table each night. Most of what we say to each other has to do with the immediate issues of homework and tests, faculty room conflicts, and how far off the HVAC system is on any given day.

We do shift into meatier subjects (like what is school for, anyway). For me, spending time in the classroom as an observer to a process in which I was involved for 20 years as a student (I was a slow learner) stimulates my grey cells in thinking about education.

The biggest thing of which we ought to remind ourselves (and the more directly involved we are, the more we need to remind ourselves) is whatever else we do we need to make sure that schooling does not interfere with education.

This is all the more important to state over and over again because there are many people who think that schooling is education. There are many proofs that this is not so, but the most decisive and damning proof is that, over my lifetime, the amount of schooling Americans have received has increased and the amount that Americans have learned has decreased.

A lot of people don't like this fact, and try in various and sundry ways to explain it away, but it just does not go away. Every time we are faced with a new set of statistics telling us that the average high school graduate knows less than the average graduate of the year before, politicians and educrats tell us we need more schooling.

Some will read what I have just written, and conclude that I am against schools or school teachers. Let me say emphatically, I am very much for school to the extent that it promotes learning.

Nonetheless, I recognize that there is a problem when some of my working class parishioners who left school after the eighth grade know more than kids today who, upon graduation from high school, may have already had 15 years of schooling.

I know society has changed. Teachers have an increasingly difficult and varied job to do (many of them are more social worker than teacher--of necessity). The fact remains that the more we school, the less we know. It should be painfully clear that the answer to the problem of knowing less is not schooling more.

The answer is also not more tests. President Clinton tells us that one more test will help us learn more. That ought to be grounds for impeachment on the basis of pure stupidity. The result of standardized tests is that school systems teach to the tests rather than teaching to life.

What is the answer? One part of the answer is to stop changing things in school. I know some things have to change. I do not like computers, for instance, but they are here to stay, and, therefore, they must be incorporated into the school curriculum. But change only what has to be changed.

Kids spend more time unlearning things than their grandparents spent learning. There is a sense in which a dozen years of a bad curriculum will do less harm to the process of learning than will switching from one good curriculum to another every other year.

Stability is essential to learning. Life is unstable enough in late 20th century America without destabilizing the schools themselves where learning is supposed to be undertaken.

St. Paul admonished us to "hold on to that which is good." But when you are in a hurricane, you just have to hold on period. That is where I think we are in the American education establishment. For awhile, anyway, we need just to hold on.

To the Editor:

November is National Hospice Month. Hospice of Garrett County would like to take this opportunity to better acquaint you with our Hospice program.

Research has shown that, if given a choice, most terminally ill patients would choose to spend their final days surrounded by loved ones in an atmosphere filled with love, comfort, and care. Unfortunately, many people in Garrett County are not aware that such an option is available to them. That option is hospice.

Many people do not fully understand the nature of hospice care. Hospice is a comprehensive, medical directed, team-oriented program of care that seeks to treat and comfort patients and their families at home or in a homelike setting. It is a philosophy of care that accepts death as a natural part of life, and seeks to neither hasten nor prolong the dying process.

Hospice of Garrett County is dedicated to ensuring that your loved ones die with dignity and without pain. When we enter this world, we are surrounded by love, comfort, and care. Don't we deserve the same when we leave? We provide the care necessary for physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. Call hospice at 301-334-5151 because all stages of life are important -- some just require extra attention.

We invite you to come to our open house this Sunday, November 23, between 2 and 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served by Jackie Johnson and Barbara Donalson.

Sincerely,
Brenda Butscher

To the Editor:

As cafeteria workers at Southern High School, we had first-hand knowledge of the events leading up to the problem at the school last Thursday. We believe that, despite the unexpected magnitude of the event, all parties involved did a great job. We are proud of our fire and rescue personnel, our staff, the administration, and our local hospital.

We wanted to say this publicly because we know that there will be some negative comments. We were in the school and know how things were handled; when you hear negative comments from people, ask them where they were.

When the fumes were noticed, the fire alarm was activated to get the students out of the building. Due to the cold, they were soon

Red Card or Red Flag?
By Melodee Hill

It has always seemed to be my fate to live in a houseful of men. I grew up living with five men, four brothers and my dad. My mom was there, but always busy with babies so she never really seemed to be one sex or the other, just a busy bee darting from one smelly flower to the next. Besides, when you're little I don't think you really see your parents as male and female, they are just bigger and in charge (most of the time). My brothers were, and still are younger than I (the dirty dogs!), so a lot of the times I was the designated sitter and in the clean-up position. Now that we are older, I seem to be the SHORT-stop, unless I suddenly have a growth spurt and... now wait a minute, that's enough of the sports analogy.

Currently, I live with my husband (male), two sons (male adolescents of undetermined species), an outdoor cat and an inside dog who have taken their maleness to a higher plane (actually they left it at the vet's) and a fish so aggressive it has to have a bowl all by itself. I guess this must mean it is hermaphroditic, otherwise where would the pet store get the next generation of little Saddam Hussein fishes? I prefer to think of this fish as male, since he has the very unfeminine name of "Blub." To me this sounds more like the condemned fish's last words than his name, but then, what do I know, I'm just the female who feeds him and the dog and the cat and the... you get the idea. Which brings me around to the reason why I enjoy being around so many males. This could actually be a first for me, where a tangent actually brought me back around to my original idea! And to think, you were there! Oh, yeah, back to the reason.

First, I'll have to ask all the males to stop reading now because it's just going to be boring girl talk from now on and I don't think I can manage another sports analogy for at least two more paragraphs. It was a mistake to use one in the beginning because it probably got your attention like a referee's whistle and now I want you to go sit on the bench. Darn, I did it again. Really, just boring girl talk about the funny things the males I live with do from day to day. If you keep reading you won't think these things are so funny when you see your own friends and relatives doing them and I don't want to be responsible for ruining anyone else's good thing.

Have those males stopped reading yet? Good. You females know that when I said "funny things" they do, I didn't mean crack-me-up, ha-ha, I really needed that, kind of funny. I really meant the odd, strange, drive-me-crazy kind of funny things they do every day. Over the years I have tried to develop a philosophy to put a positive spin on this sort of stuff. I have come up with the theory that the males I live with do these sort of things to make me feel good about myself. They are trying to make me feel smart, organized and competent.

For instance, I am the only one in the house that knows how to work that terribly complicated system we use for replenishing the empty toilet paper dispenser. They just don't seem to grasp the idea of putting pressure on the little roller, removing the empty cardboard and replacing it with a full roll of paper that is conveniently located in the cabinet under the sink. Also, I am the only one who can figure out how to fold a shirt so that it doesn't look like it spent the last week jammed into a shoe. Guess who knows where everyone's shoes, gloves, books, jackets, etceteras are, every minute of every day? I have to admit I'm falling behind on this one; last week I couldn't find that etcetera for a couple of days.

Another interesting discovery I've made is that when you flip that little switch on the wall the opposite way, and some of ours are round and you have to turn them (this really confuses them), the lights go out! They purposely leave the lights on in the morning when they leave for the day, just so I can start my day off feeling so clever as I traipse around the house flipping, or turning, one switch after another. I guess I'm lucky that they are so thoughtful and want to boost my ego so much and so often. that sometimes I feel like Muhammad Ali. Uh-oh, I guess the males are back. Hey guys, it was just a joke! A fumbled attempt at humor, there's no need to sack the quarterback. Wait a minute. Time out! That does it--it's the penalty box for you! Got room for me?

taken to the gym (after it had been checked out). After rescue personnel monitored the rest of the building, students were allowed to go back to class. Students indicating any level of distress were taken to the hospital for observation. Yes, there were some who took advantage of this, but judging their level of illness is a physician's decision, not that of a school official.

Perhaps, after the confusion of the event, parents can more calmly reflect on the decision to transfer students to the hospital. To contact every parent for permission would have been impossible and had the potential of jeopardizing the lives of students. Having qualified doctors make the decisions they are trained for was the only logical option.

Although some will refuse to admit it, the school acted in a responsible manner, putting the needs of students first.

To the Editor:

The Jacob Armacost Fund has been created to help offset the expenses incurred by the family of Doug and Donna Dell Armacost for their son Jacob. On June 18 of this year Jacob fell into the family pool and nearly drowned. Thanks to the CPR skills of Donna and the immediate care provided by the medical community Jacob did not lose his life. However, due to circumstances, this young boy has a very long and difficult road to recovery. Expenses not covered by insurance are great, and the eventual home care will be a very long and costly experience. The fund has been established for this reason.

This fund has been set up as a charitable foundation with tax exempt status. Neither the Armacost family nor the fund will pay tax on the proceeds or the interest that the proceeds will accrue. The fund is currently seeking 503c status with the IRS so that the gifts and donations to the fund will be tax deductible for donors. The fund will be administered by a board of directors, which will not include any immediate family, but will however, be advised by the family as to its direction.

Our objective is to solicit monetary donations from business, other organizations, and individuals with an initial goal of $100,000. Please help us with a generous donation. This farm family has untold expenses in a year when crops will be poor at best. These are the type of expenses that can easily ruin a family, and in this case the lives and futures of a family of seven. (Jacob has 4 older sisters.) Your help with donations to the fund could mean the difference in the type of care that can be afforded. Your help will certainly mean a difference in peace of mind when it comes to paying bills that the insurance company will not.

If you wish you gift to be anonymous to the family, the fund will honor that request. If you would like to send your best wishes, so the family knows you participated, your name will be submitted to the family but not the amount of your contribution.

We hope that you understand the urgency and the need of this family. We hope that you will give with your heart.

Thank you for your consideration.

To the Editor:

This letter is long overdue, but not forgotten, and is definitely from the heart of the ICES exchange students (International Cultural Exchange Services) and their host families throughout Garrett County!

We would like to thank the principal, staff, and faculty, and Garrett County Arts Council for providing the ICES exchange students the opportunity to attend the Dracula ballet in Pittsburgh recently. This was an opportunity that some of the students may never have in their life again and, because of the generosity and kindness of your hearts, for many it was a dream come true.

All the students at Northern High School have reported to the national office in Atlanta that they feel they live in the most beautiful place in the whole United States. They love their school very much as well as their host families. Thank you all for providing these four ICES students attending Northern High School the opportunity to come to the county of Garrett, the state of Maryland, and the United States. This has been a life-long dream for most of these students and you helped make this possible for them. You includes the principal at Northern High School, the staff and faculty, the host families and their children, the community and county. It is you who have opened your arms and your hearts to help these students feel welcomed, loved and a part of your communities. Thank you!

To the Southern High School principal, guidance counselor Beverly Serpone, and all the wonderful teachers and staff members - your help and understanding and open hearts have helped the three young men attending your high school this school year, feel very welcome to their school and to their communities in the southern end of the county.

With one student from Germany, one from Hungary, and one from Russia, your patience, endurance, and understanding will never go forgotten or unappreciated. These students have also reported to love their host families very much, and ironically, that they each have the best host family there could ever be, and that the school has made them feel very welcomed with the students, and the teachers help to adjust to a new school environment.

We thank you also for giving these young people this life-long dream and opportunity to share a small part of their lives with you, but, we are sure, a part of their lives they will never, ever forget!

Thank you Garrett County for being such a loving, caring, and giving county. It's not a wonder it is called the "Secret of Maryland." Thank you host parents - without your willingness to host these young people, this opportunity would not have been possible for them. If there is ever anything we could do for you, whether it be teachers, principals, Garrett County Arts Council, or host families, never hesitate to contact me at 1-800-981-6801.

Since I was born in Garrett County, you will always have a very, very special place in my heart.

I was thrilled when I first read The Republican this week. The "Warm The Children" campaign warmed my heart and Mary S. McEwen's "On A Tangent" column was hilarious! I laugh through the whole column as I relive and think of the past so many years ago when we were rearing our two sons.

Jeffrey Wilson's "View From My Window, Painting the Garage" was equally entertaining. I laughed and

(For Lou Stouffer)

The month my mother married Santa was, naturally, December, and he sped her away in a snow-covered sleigh, the wonderful widow
wearing white fur and dreams.

Each time I come home doll clothes dance in the dryer and trucks are racked on their backs awaiting his touch.

While watching Disney, we visit and stitch and reply to requests addressed to Santa on computers once merely a dream.

We wander white worlds of innocence and purity, once again children dancing
"Ring around the Rosey" before learning the meaning of ashes, ashes.

His dreams are our beacon toward which we soar as he watches o'er us to make sure
we never all fall down.

laughed as I read these two columns. The cartoon was very good as well.

I appreciated the editorial very much, but as I read the latest ex-sheriff's further revealed duplicity, I can't help but wonder now, when will the next shoe fall? It raises many questions for me. Where is the accountability of the county's financial office? What did whoever was handling those memos from the state think? Memos are not checks that were supposed to be coming first to the financial office! If I handled my finances like that, I'd have been on the street 65 years ago. Where is the auditing process for all the departments of the county? And none of the county employees were aware? Some of the checks were from the Garrett Co. Treasurer's office, so they had to come back there eventually; they had to be signed by Sines, who was not a sheriff after his September resignation, so how could he sign checks that had Garrett Co. Sheriff's Office on them and they being deposited to his private account? Sloppy accounting does not cover this mess!

I read the letters to the editor with great interest. Thomas Doyle is excellent! I, too, think and wonder a lot about our economic development and or the lack thereof! I wonder often if the average taxpayer can continue to afford what some say will improve the economics of our county. Some cost us taxpayers instead of helping!

To me the "Continental One" through Garrett Co. plan is a huge multi-billion $ pork barrel that the new senatorial chairman of transportation (federally) has envisioned which even "Newt" can't support! Maybe he'd rather the billions went to the tobacco industry, so we'd have higher, impossible health bills. How much more of this asinine "helping" us taxpayers can we tolerate before there is a march on Washington and the whole impossible mess? It has happened once before in my lifetime. It's overdue again!

This is my opinion.

Thank you,
Louise V. Harvey

To the Editor:

This week, November 17-23, is American Education Week. During this week we are celebrating the role that public education has played, and continues to play, in helping all Americans to have the opportunity to be the best they can be. Most of us realize and appreciate the valuable role our teachers, counselors, and administrators perform as they work with our children on a daily basis. This is the group who most frequently comes to mind when one thinks about American Education Week. Our Garrett County schools would definitely not be the quality they are, nor be providing the opportunities and challenges that are happening every day, if it were not for the dedication and caring of excellent teachers and administrators in this county. These individuals are to be commended and thanked by each of us.

There is another group of people providing services without which our school system could not operate. Yesterday, November 19, was National Education Support Personnel Day. Who are public school education support personnel? What jobs do education support employees do in our public schools? They are the individuals who do everything except hold a certified employee position. Education support employees are the assistants, bus drivers, cafeteria workers, custodians, and secretaries who work with our teachers and administrators daily to educate the youth of Garrett County.

Instructional assistants work with teachers to provide our children with individualized instruction and to provide teachers with the time to teach. Nurses and nursing assistants assist with illnesses in the schools, administer medications, and promote quality health practices for everyone. Bus drivers maintain and operate the largest public transportation fleet in our county, the daily transportation system for the majority of our students. These buses safely transport our county's most valuable resource - our children - from home to school and back every school day.

The maintenance personnel keep the school physical plants clean and working properly. The food service workers provide our children with meals, daily preparing and serving more meals than even the fast food restaurants. For many of our children, these meals may be the best or only one they eat each day. The secretaries and other clerical workers deal with the paper work associated with running one of the largest businesses in the county.

If you know someone who works in our county's school, take a moment and thank him/her for the job well done, whether he/she is an administrator, teacher, counselor, nurse or a member of the support staff.

Quality pubuc education - it's everyone's job!

Sincerely,
Irene D. Sigel, President
Garrett County Education Association

THE THEME WAS THE NEED TO BE "DRUG FREE" during the recent observance of Red Ribbon Week at Crellin School. Students participated by wearing red, decorating classroom doors, creating drug-free posters, and viewing a performance by "Pandora's Box. the passenger side of the car.

Ferris was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted for treatment. No charges were filed in the incident.

Negligence/DWI Factor

Police reported a one-vehicle accident Monday that injured the driver and a passenger.

According to the report, Forest L. Morris III, 36, Cumberland, was traveling on the ramp from Finzel Road to Route 40 at 10:46 p.m. when he fell asleep, causing the vehicle to travel off the road, strike a guardrail, and overturn.

Morris and his passenger, Earl Robinette Jr., were taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital.

Police charged Morris with driving while intoxicated and negligent driving.

Failed to Reduce Speed

Wednesday evening, failure to reduce speed was reported as the cause of an accident on Route 219 at Trader's Landing.

Police said that at 5:45 p.m. Edward Roszell, 36, Friendsville, had stopped his vehicle in the northbound lane of Route 219 while preparing to turn left into a parking lot.

Wayne Lee Bowser, 68, Friendsville, who was also traveling northbound on Route 219, reportedly failed to notice the stopped Roszell vehicle. He also failed to reduce speed to avoid a collision, police reported. He was charged in the incident.

Roszell and a passenger in the Bowser vehicle, John Baluch, 85, Addison, Pa., were both taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital. Roszell was treated and released. Baluch was admitted and reported to be in stable condition.

WORKING OUT FOR HOPE - Neither rain nor sleet nor snow could stop the energetic rhythm of Saturday night's fund-raising event at Southern High School to benefit the House of Hope. About 300 people were present to enjoy to the entertainment and watch the workouts on the floor of the gym. Coordinated by Brenda Brosnihan of Brenda's Body Shop and sponsored by the board of directors for the House of Hope, the evening's activities brought in $6,000 to support the efforts of House of Hope in its 20th year of providing services not available elsewhere in the community for short-term assistance to people in the community when no agency can help or when those agencies have exhausted their resources. Spectators Saturday night were treated to performances by the Northern and Southern high school's cheerleaders, dance and aerobic teams from Brenda's Body Shop, a fashion show featuring clothing from Little Expressions and models from the Town & Country Learning Center. Antics of the Pittsburgh Pirates Parrot kicked off the entertainment. He is pictured above left dancing with Brenda, and at right he changes the mood by covering her with silly string. Brenda is pictured lower right leading a work-out group through their paces.

EVERYONE'S A WINNER! Over $6,000 was raised on behalf of the House of Hope at Saturday night's Workout for Hope, coordinated by Brenda Brosnihan of Brenda's Body Shop. Hundreds of people turned out at Southern High School to work and to watch. Prizes donated by local businesses were awarded to those who brought in the most donations. The winners gathered to present this large check. Pictured kneeling in front are, left, Abbigayle Smith, first place youth, and Amanda Frentz, third place youth. Standing left to right are Sister Joanna, House of Hope, Brenda Brosnihan, Renate Gaither, third place adult, Christa Smiley, second place adult, Sister Mary Ann, House of Hope, and Amanda Sisler, second place youth. First place adult winner Linda Alkire, Terra Alta, W.Va., was not present for the picture.

After an "incredible journey" that lasted about five weeks, "Baby" the cat has been reunited with his family. We extend our appreciation to all who helped with this happy ending.

Long & Foster Will Award 50 Scholarships

Karen (Spiker) Myers, associate broker and manager of A&A Realty Long & Foster, announced this week that among the benefits of A&A's recent affiliation with Long & Foster is the awarding of $50,000 in college scholarships for deserving high school seniors.

As part of its 30th anniversary this year, Long & Foster will award $1,000 one-time scholarships to 50 students throughout the company's service area, beginning May 1. Long & Foster consists of 116 real estate offices throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

The scholarships are designed to reward "well-rounded" seniors who will be entering an accredited four-year college or university and who demonstrate financial need. The program was created by Long & Foster founder and president Wes Foster, who sees it as a way to give something significant back to the communities that have made his real estate company one of the most successful in the country.

Foster also knows firsthand the importance of scholarships, noting that he would not have had the opportunity to attend Virginia Military Institute (VMI) without a scholarship.

"I never had very much growing up, so the VMI scholarship gave me the chance I needed," Foster said. "As a result, I feel very committed to helping students get to college. Many times, well-rounded students have special financial needs."

He said that the objective of the Long & Foster scholarship program is to help students who show potential for life-long leadership get started in college. A selection committee composed of local members of academia will select the final scholarship winners by April 15, 1998.

To be eligible for one of the scholarships, high school seniors must have at least a 3.0 grade point average, demonstrate financial need, indicate positions of leadership they have held, describe school and community organizations in which they are involved, and indicate whether or not they have held part-time and/or summer jobs while in high school.

Foster said that he believes being involved in one's community and giving of one's time to groups that need help are an important part of a student's education and excellent training for future leadership.

"The fact that they care about the community and the people who live there will help them later in life," he said. "Compassion and empathy for others is one of the hallmarks of a successful individual."

Scholarship applicants will also be asked to write a short essay on either their most significant high school experience or their expectations for college. Applications are available in the guidance offices of both Southern and Northern high schools, or by contacting the A&A Realty Long & Foster office by telephone at 301-387-4700, or via the office's web site at www.longandfoster.com/scholarship.

A hard copy of the application and the required attachments must be mailed to the following address:

Freshman-Dominated Laker Team To Open Season Friday

A young Garrett Community College women's basketball team will open its season Friday when the Lakers travel to Pittsburgh to take on the Community College of Allegheny County-North Campus. The tip-off is scheduled for 6 p.m.

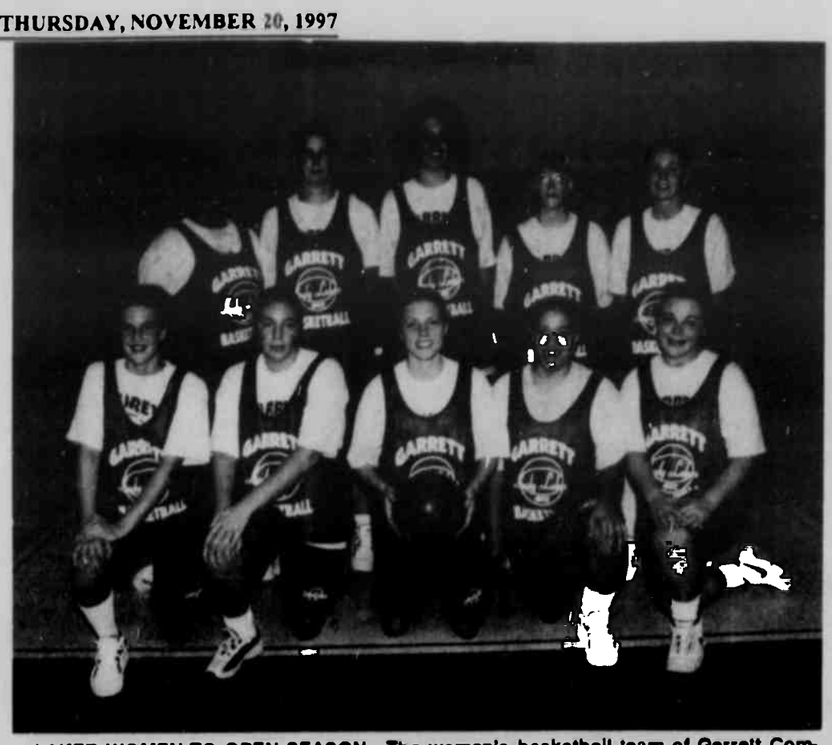
The team consists of nine freshman and only one sophomore, with Ann Wellham returning as head coach after a 10-year hiatus from the position. She enters her seventh year at the helm, and she previously coached the team from 1981 to 1987. Assisting Wellham are Lewis Marks and Bill Teter.

The only familiar face from last year is that of Shelly Landman of Connellsville Area High School. Prior to last season she had little organized basketball experience, but has "improved tremendously," according to Wellham.

Rounding out the squad are nine new recruits, including Mindy McCarty, Mary Walters, Stephanie Quattro, Chrissy Lambert, Marika Washington, Erica McBride, Lakeyshia Monroe, Andrea Barrick, and April Sister.

Mindy McCarty, a three-sport standout at Northern High School, averaged 15.3 points and six rebounds for Coach Harv Speicher's Maryland State I-A second-place Husky team. She ranked sixth in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League in scoring and was a first-team WMIL selection. Other honors include being named to the all-star team in the Richard E. Doub Classic and Northern High's Most Valuable Player.

"Mindy did an outstanding job for us at point guard," said Speicher. "Her greatest asset is her quickness with the ball. She has the ability to blow by defenders and make things happen offensively."



LAKER WOMEN TO OPEN SEASON - The women's basketball team of Garrett Community College, which features an all-freshman roster with the exception of one, plus the return of head coach Ann Wellhem, will open its season this Friday evening on the road at CCAC-Allegheny in Pittsburgh. Playing for the Lakers this season and pictured above are, kneeling, from left: Mary Walters, Stephanie Quattro, Erica McBride, Marika Washington, and Shelly Landmen; and standing: Lakeyahia Monroe, April Sisler, Andrea Barrick, Mindy McCarty, and Chrissy Lambert. Rounding out the squad are nine new recruits, including Mindy McCarty, Mary Walters, Stephanie Quattro, Chrissy Lambert, Marika Washington, Erica McBride, Lakeyshia Monroe, Andrea Barrick, and April Sister.

Mindy McCarty, a three-sport standout at Northern High School, averaged 15.3 points and six rebounds for Coach Harv Speicher's Maryland State I-A second-place Husky team. She ranked sixth in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League in scoring and was a first-team WMIL selection. Other honors include being named to the all-star team in the Richard E. Doub Classic and Northern High's Most Valuable Player.

"Mindy did an outstanding job for us at point guard," said Speicher. "Her greatest asset is her quickness with the ball. She has the ability to blow by defenders and make things happen offensively."

Elkins High standout Mary Walters is coming off a phenomenal season in which she earned recognition as the captain of the All-State second team. She averaged 17 points, five rebounds, six steals, and nine assists per game. She recorded seven double-doubles, three triple-doubles, and one quadruple-doubles last season, and set the school one-game record of 16 steals her junior season.

Stephanie Quattro, of Tucker County High School, was a member of the 1996 and 1997 West Virginia Class AA championship teams, and was selected to play in the West Virginia versus Maryland All-Star game. She also excelled academically, was a member of the National Honor Society, and was an All-American Scholar selection.

Chrissy Lambert averaged 16 points, 11 rebounds, and five assists for Harman High School. For three consecutive years she was named All-Conference, Most Valuable Player, and to Who's Who Among American High School Athletes. In 1995 and 1996 she was an All-State selection, and in 1997 she received All-State Special Honorable Mention.

Martinsburg High standout Marika Washington averaged seven points, six assists, and 2.5 rebounds per game. She was named All-Area, Honorable Mention All-State, and was a Sectional All-Tournament selection.

Erica McBride averaged 12.7 points, five rebounds, and three assists for Hampshire High School and Coach Lyndon Willis. The 5'7" guard compiled an impressive list of honors that includes All-Tournament, All-PVC, Most Valuable Player, and Class AAA All-State Honorable Mention. In addition, she was selected to play in the W.Va. All-Star Classic and was named Athlete of the Week by the Hampshire Review.

Lakeyshia Monroe, a 5'9" forward from Logan High School, averaged 6.5 points, 8.2 rebounds, and 3.2 blocked shots per game. In 1996 and 1997 she was an All-Star selection, and All-Conference pick in 1996.

Garrett is anchored at the center position by two 6-foot-plus players. Andrea Barrick, a 6'2" center from Keyser High School, led the team her junior year in rebounds and was named Most Improved Player. She attended the Metro Index and Bob Kirk basketball camps, and was a member of the National Honor Society. Six-footer April Sister was a standout for Preston High School, where she averaged 12 points and eight rebounds per game. She attended West Virginia University basketball camps.

"This year's squad should prove to be competitive in the Maryland JUCO and NJCAA Region XX," stated Coach Wellham. "We have a well-rounded group of student athletes with previous state tournament experience, which will help us jell as a team."

After Friday's opening game, the Lakers will take a Thanksgiving holiday break. They will play their second game and home opener Monday, Dec. 1, when they host Frederick Community College.

Lakers Nipped In Title Game By Three-Pointer At Buzzer

With just seven seconds to play in the championship game of the annual Rob Michael State Farm Insurance Basketball Tournament, it appeared as though the Garrett Community College Lakers would successfully defend their tourney title; however, a three-point jumper at the buzzer by Dundalk's Brandon Hopson dashed the Lakers' hopes. Hopson's shot erased the Lakers' two-point lead and gave the Lions an 81-80 victory.

The Lakers earned a spot in the finals by defeating Beaver Campus of Penn State on Saturday, 73-60, while Dundalk made the finals by topping Potomac State, 94-79. The loss was the first in four starts for the Lakers, who hosted Montgomery-Takoma Park last night (see separate story).

In the win over Beaver, Rob Wheeler and Lionell Sewell led the Lakers' balanced scoring effort with 13 points each, while All-American candidate Jerome Adams was right behind with 12 points and two steals, Michael Fields recorded 11 points and two steals, and Eric Papcun also reached double figures with 10 points.

Sewell also recorded four assists and two steals, and Wheeler led the team in rebounding with 13.

The Lakers trailed 36-29 at halftime, but rallied in the second half to tie the score at 49-49. Garrett's biggest lead was 13 points with just over four minutes remaining in the game.

Pacing Beaver was Jason Kopec, who had a game-high 16 points and nine rebounds, while Justin Voithofer finished with 13.

Beaver led in rebounds by a 48-39 margin.

"Ricky Berkeley and Eric Papcun really picked up our defensive game in the second half," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson.

Leading Dundalk over Potomac State in Saturday's other first-round game were Tyree Canty and Shavery Garrison, who netted 22 and 21 points, respectively. Samuel Venney scored 19 to lead the Catamounts' offensive effort.

The Lakers also battled back from a deficit in Sunday's game with Dundalk, as they were down by as many as 11 points in the first half, but were on top by one at halftime, 37-36.

Garrett then fell behind again early in the second half, 48-40, but recorded eight unanswered points to tie the score at 48 apiece.

A lay-up by GCC's Timmy Pitcher with just seven seconds left in the game gave the Lakers an 80-78 advantage, but Hopson responded with a three-point bucket at the buzzer to give Dundalk the one-point victory and the tournament title.

"We were out-matched size-wise," Coach Gibson said, "and to lose on a desperation shot at the buzzer after such a great effort by our guys in the second half was really tough."

Fields, who was a standout athlete for Allegany High School and a former Area Player of the Year, finished with a game-high 23 points for the Lakers.

The Garrett players recorded 13 three-point buckets, with Jerome Adams hitting five of them and finishing with 16 points. Rob Wheeler had 13 points and a game-high 15 rebounds, while Josh Bunnell netted 12 points, all of which were scored on long-range shots. James Washington finished with five assists and five steals.

The Lakers were out-rebounded by a 47-36 margin.

Tyree Canty, Hopson, and Shavery Garrison led the Lions' scoring effort with 18, 17, and 16 points, respectively. Rashad Howell, who grabbed 11 rebounds, also reached double figures in scoring with 12 points. Robert Williams likewise pulled down 11 rebounds.

Potomac State won the consolation game by topping Beaver, 83-70, behind a 24-point effort by Samuel Venney and a 20-point performance by Derrick Bush.

Jason Kopec scored 13 points to lead five Beaver players in double figures.

GAME-WINNING SHOT? This jumper (above left) by Garrett Community College's Timmy Pitcher with just seven seconds left in the championship game of the Rob Michael State Farm Insurance Tournament gave the Lakers a two-point lead; however, it was not the game-winner, as Dundalk's Brandon Hopson nailed a three-point desperation bucket at the buzzer to hand the Lakers their first defeat of the season. Putting the ball up in the photo at right is GCC's Michael Fields, former star at Allegany High School, who led the Lakers in scoring during the tournament with a two-game total of 34 points. Also in the photo for the Lakers are Rob Wheeler, left, and #35 Jerome Adams, far right. Wheeler was the second-leading scorer for the Lakers in the tourney with a total of 26 points. All Lakers Gain Experience In Win Over Takoma Park

After being nipped at the buzzer in the championship game of the annual Rob Michael State Farm Insurance Tournament Sunday afternoon (see separate story), the Garrett Community College Lakers bounced back last night and upped their overall record to 4-1 with an easy 87-66 JUCO victory over visiting Montgomery-Takoma Park.

The Lakers took control of the contest early on and jumped out to a 12-2 lead by the 16:37 mark of the first half, ultimately allowing Coach Dennis Gibson to give playing time to everyone on the GCC roster. Eleven different players scored for the Lakers, with Michael Fields, Jerome Adams, Rob Wheeler, and James Washington leading the pack with 16, 15, 14, and 10 points, respectively.

Wheeler had the hot hand in the opening moments, as he recorded nine of the Lakers' first 12 points. A scoring burst just before and after halftime put Garrett in total control, as they held just a seven-point advantage (37-30) with three minutes to play before intermission, but scored 22 unanswered points to take a commanding 59-30 lead by the 14:53 mark of the second half.

The biggest lead of the game for the Lakers was at the 9:53 mark when the score was 72-39.

While Gibson was pleased with the win, he was concerned about the fact that the Lakers turned the ball over 33 times.

"Because we played so many people, it was difficult to really establish any kind of rhythm," Gibson said, "but it was nice to be able to give everyone some playing time."

Besides leading the team in scoring, former Allegany standout Michael Fields also recorded seven rebounds, six assists, and three blocked shots. Wheeler and Eric Papcun also each finished with seven rebounds, as Garrett out-boarded the visitors by a 52-48 margin.

Leading Takoma Park with a game-high 18 points was Ronald Simpkins with 18 points. Teddy Greene finished with 10 points, while Donald Coates and Jeremy Barnes each pulled down eight rebounds.

The Lakers will play again Saturday when they travel to Penn State-New Kensington, with tipoff slated for 2 p.m. Their next home game will be Tuesday when they host Frederick CC.

New "Star" to Shine Over Garrett County Memorial Hospital During Holidays

This year's holiday season will be even brighter with the addition of a new star to adorn the top of the Foundation's fourth annual "Tree of Lights."

Your gift of $5.00 per light will help fund patient care equipment and will allow you to dedicate a light in memory of a loved one, in recognition of someone special or to make a gift for someone this holiday season.

The special lighting celebration will be held on Thursday, December 4, at 7:00 p.m. in the Hospital's Community Services Center and is open to the public. The celebration will feature a special Christmas story by Dr. Gail Herman, Christmas caroling and refreshments.

Please join the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation in the true spirit of giving during the holiday season.

DNR Antlerless Deer Hunting Permits Filled

Maryland Department of Natural Resources wildlife director Josh Sandt announced today that no more applications will be allocated for antlerless deer permits for Garrett County (Zone 2).

"We had 181 antlerless deer permits for Garrett County to issue and those have been filled," stated Josh Sandt. "To date, we received 536 applications for Garrett County. However, there are more than 300 antlerless deer permits still available for Frederick County (Zone 1)."

Hunters may obtain only one antlerless deer permit. Antlerless deer permit holders can hunt antlerless deer during the last two days of the deer firearm's season, Dec. 12 and Dec. 13. If the hunter does not use the permit on these two dates, then the permit is valid for the late segment of the deer muzzleloader season, Dec. 20, 1997 to Jan. 3, 1998.

Hunters Brave Cold At Savage Sight-In Day

Local hunters tuned up their firearms and their resistance to the cold as they took to the Department of Natural Resources' Savage River Shooting Range last Saturday for the first annual free rifle sight-in day. The shot-pocked paper targets told the tale of what they might expect to bag if a clear shot presents itself during a future hunt, while temperatures in the 20s and biting winds gave the shooters a taste of the weather likely during the upcoming deer rifle season.

Dozens of men and women took aim during the free sight-in day, planned and coordinated by local DNR personnel, at the range off New Germany Road. "We had a number of people come in to shoot today," said DNR park ranger Rick Lewis, "and a lot of curious people just came by to see what's here. There's been a good response to the range since it opened, and the numbers of people using it have been increasing steadily," he said.

"This range is great," commented John Rinker of Mtn. Lake Park, who sighted in his 30.06 Remington on Saturday. "It's nearly impossible to find a place to target shoot anymore." Similar praise came from Jim Minogue, who volunteered along with Bruce Schlisser to lend technical assistance to any shooters who requested it. "It's a good place to shoot, and a place where you can meet people with similar interests and talk about shooting and hunting," Minogue said.

Deer Firearms Season To Open Saturday, Nov. 29

Maryland of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin reminds Marylanders that the state's two-week deer firearms season will open Saturday, Nov. 29, and close on Saturday, Dec. 13. Deer hunting is one of Maryland's most popular hunting traditions, with an estimated 100,000 hunters expected to go afield on opening day of the 1997 season.

"Maryland's deer population is not only an important natural resource but it is also a valuable economic benefit to the state," Griffin said. "Deer hunting contributes more than $210 million to Maryland's economy and creates an estimated 3,250 full-time and part-time jobs across the state."

Firearm deer hunting is the most popular hunting activity in Maryland, Griffin said. Nine out of every 10 hunters will be afield during Maryland's deer firearms season. The 1996 season produced the second highest firearms deer harvest on record, with 39,048 deer checked. Deer hunters should expect another excellent firearms season this year, he added.

Seven out of 10 deer hunters use private lands for deer hunting. Eighty-six percent of deer taken during 1996 came from private lands. Private landowners recognize that deer hunting helps to manage deer numbers and to reduce deer damage to agricultural crops and other property.

Persons hunting on private property are reminded that they need written permission of the landowner.

Hunters should refer to the deer hunting section of the Guide to Hunting and Trapping in Maryland 1997-98 for detailed information concerning deer hunting regulations. The publication is available at all DNR sport license agents and DNR Regional Service Centers.

Deer hunters are also reminded that Maryland Law requires that deer hunters must wear fluorescent orange clothing. Fluorescent orange promotes hunting safety because it is a color not found in nature. DNR encourages all deer hunters to wear it for their own protection and the safety of other people. Deer hunters are required to wear: a cap of a solid daylight fluorescent orange color; or a vest, jacket, or jacket containing back and front panels of at least 250 square inches of a solid daylight fluorescent orange color; or an outer garment of camouflage fluorescent orange worn above the waist which contains at least 50 percent fluorescent orange color.

A person who hunts deer on his/her own property is exempt from this requirement.

Quality Employee of the Quarter

Eric Price, Piedmont, has received the Luke mill's Quality Employee of the Quarter award for 3rd quarter 1997. He has worked at the mill for 11 years and currently works in the Lower Paper Mill as a Coater Operator on No. 7 Paper Machine.

Eric is an extremely conscientious worker who is always looking to improve quality. He has offered many suggestions related to quality, including identifying the second coater water system on No. 6 Paper Machine as a possible source of contamination. Per Eric's suggestion, filters were installed in the water line and a water treatment program was started—both of which have had a very positive impact on No. 6 PM's quality and reduction in customer complaints.

Eric has been involved with the Lower Paper Mill ISO 9002 quality system for several years, takes an active part in writing training manuals, and participates in the Internal Audit Program.

He is known as "MacGyver" in the machine room because he is always inventing gadgets to improve the operation.

Congratulations, Eric!

Osteoarthritis of the Knee: New Treatment

Osteoarthritis (OA) is an inflammatory condition of the joints in which cartilage (cushioning material at the ends of bones) wears away or deteriorates. This causes swelling and pain because the bones are allowed to rub together. It occurs most often after age 55, is seen on the x-rays of more than 80 percent of persons over the age of 65, and is considered the most common form of arthritis. Symptoms of OA include joint pain, morning stiffness, and loss of mobility or range of motion. The usual treatment consists of oral and/or injected steroids, pain relievers, such as Ibuprofen and other nonsteroidal antiinflammatory agents.

A new treatment may offer some benefit over conventional arthritis medicines. The new treatment is a synthetic form of hyaluronic acid, a naturally occurring viscous material that lubricates and protects the joints. Two companies have received U.S. Food and Drug Administration ap-proval to market a natural hyaluronate and a more viscous hyaluronate for relief of OA symptoms. According to Pharmacists Letter, studies have shown that these products reduce pain and functional impairment associated with OA of the knee. Both drugs are injected into the knee, once a week for 2 to 4 weeks. It may take a few weeks for beneficial effects of the injections to occur.

pened, the closest DNR public shooting range was at Green Ridge State Forest in Allegany County," Minogue continued. "That's a heck of a long way to travel to find a safe place to shoot. I was a member of the initial planning committee for this range, and it was seven years in the planning, but well worth it," he said.

"DNR and the community worked together to get this range up and going," ranger Joe Stevens commented. "Funds from the purchasing of hunting licenses helped pay for it, and we had volunteer help from groups like the Friends of New Germany State Park, and the woodshop class at Northern High built us our fine shooting benches. We're looking at the possibility of putting in ranges for trap and skeet, as well as archery targets in the future," Stevens added.

Minogue, owner of B.J.'s General Store on Savage River Road and a member of the Friends of New Germany State Park, commented that "The great response by the public, who have all been observing safety rules and keeping the range clean, is a good sign that we're on the right track by providing something people want to use and want to see taken care of."

"The sight-in day has gone over pretty well," said ranger Joe Stevens, as the cracks of rifle fire echoed through the valley. "Next fall we'd like to have two free sight-in days just prior to rifle season, one on a weekend and another one on a weekday, because we know that many hunters have to work on weekends."

For specific information on the DNR Savage River Shooting Range, which is available to the public for a nominal fee 365 days a year, interested persons may call the Savage River State Forest Office at 301-895-5759.

improved north/south access, and it would be a big plus for the Westvaco plant to have improved access close by. Lots of Garrett County residents work at and for Westvaco in a number of different capicities, and what helps the region's largest employer will help Garrett County and the region as a whole," he said.

"We also feel," Edwards continued, "although this needs to be confirmed by environmental engineers, that such a road along our eastern border could help address some of the problems caused by acid mine drainage in that area by sealing off the leaking mines. It could also conceivably alleviate some of the flooding problems in the Georges Creek area," Edwards said, "and take traffic congestion out of Lonaconing and other communities along Route 36 without having to build bypasses."

The realities of the tightening federal budget play into Edwards' thinking as well. "Costwise, I'm sure our new proposal would be cheaper than building two interstate highways south from 1-68, which would never happen," he said, "but that's the scenario we're faced with when Garrett and Allegany counties get into a competition for federal dollars to build a new road south from 1-68 in each county," he said.

"Both Route 219 north and Route 220 north are already planned [for an upgrade to interstate highway status to meet 1-68] as part of the Appalachian Regional Commission's Appalachian Development Highway System, and both should still be completed for the region to benefit," he said.

Edwards said that this proposal does not preclude improving Route 219 in stages in Garrett County as outlined in the Consolidated Transportation Plan. "This proposal is not to say that we drop the long-standing idea of making incremental improvements to Route 219 south through Garrett County as the need is determined through traffic counts and safety studies," Edwards commented. "The first and foremost priority for Route 219 remains the construction of an Oakland bypass."

Edwards noted that his and Hafer's proposal will likely meet the same close examination from both potential highway supporters and potential opponents as the concept of Corridor One has had in both Garrett and Allegany counties recently, but encourages all parties to maintain an open mind in considering the new idea. "Nothing can happen without federal money, and we need to find out if the federal government will put money into anything running south from 1-68," he said. "If we present a route than can benefit the region as a whole we have a better chance of getting federal assistance and getting a highway built."

David Moe, co-president of the local Chamber of Commerce and a major booster of building Continental One through Garrett County, agreed. "Edwards and Hafer are correct in that only one new Interstate will be built south from 1-68 due to the cost of road construction in our mountainous terrain," he said. "Their proposal is an interesting compromise that bears study and has merit for the state highway administration to take a serious look at. I would support it if it gained the state's approval."

Others disagree. Dana Shimrock, speaking on behalf of the Continental One NAFTA Highway Opposition Group, said that "Our position hasn't changed as a result of the

Matthews Home To Be Included In ARC Tours

This year's "Home for the Holidays" house tours, an event that benefits the local chapter of the American Red Cross, will include the home of Joe and Rose Matthews, located west of Oakland along Old Crellin Road. The five-house tour event will take place on Friday, Dec. 5, 4-9 p.m., and Saturday, Dec. 6, 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The family's original home was a 20x40 foot ranch style house, built in 1972 and consisting of three bedrooms, one bath, a living room, and kitchen. A 24x36 foot addition and overall renovation, designed by Rose, was done in 1982. This involved a new kitchen, dining room, and living room, all with an open cathedral ceiling. The two-car garage and furnace room are located on the lower level.

The house initially had aluminum siding, but this was removed and replaced with log siding to match the 1982 addition. A 100-year-old hand-carved oak stairway was salvaged from an old farm house about to be demolished and was placed in the Matthews home. Fieldstone collected on the family's property was added to the lower level by Joe.

The kitchen, designed by Rose, was featured in a 1989 issue of Country Woman magazine, as well as in local articles. The house also features a sun room with skylights. All areas of the home will be open for the tour.

The house is located at 1786 Old Crellin Road, and is situated on two and a half acres of land with extensive flower gardens and stone landscaping.

Tickets are $5 for the five-home tour and are available at Flowers By Webers, Arrowhead Market, and Proudfoot's, Englander's, Deep Creek, and Gregg's pharmacies. An article featuring the final home will appear in the next issue of The Republican.

MATTHEWS ABODE TO BE ON HOLIDAY TOUR - The home of Joe and Rose Matthews will be featured in this year's American Red Cross "Home for the Holidays" house tours. It is a ranch-style house that has been renovated extensively in the past several years, with much of the design created by Rose. The kitchen was highlighted in a 1989 issue of Country Woman magazine. The house tours are slated for the first weekend in December. See story for details.

THE JACKAL

Rated R

Modern-day action/adventure films share a common problem. In order to be exciting enough to hold the audience's interest, they have to be incredible. And this film is exactly that: not credible. Don't get me wrong; it's very exciting. There's a lot of action, a relatively intriguing plot, and adequate acting, although acting is not really needed for this type of feature. But the script is so full of unlikely events, you have to be really devoted to your love for gunfire and special effects to swallow it.

In director Michael Caton-Jones's loosely based remake of Fred Zinnemann's The Day of the Jackal (1973), the classic theme of using a criminal to catch a criminal is employed. Russian and American detectives, headed by Carter Preston (Sydney Poitier), make a deal with maximum security inmate Declan Mulqueen (Richard Gere) to help them find a cunning killer-for-hire known only as the Jackal (Bruce Willis) before he assassinates someone very important. We don't know exactly who the intended victim is, but the Russian official who hired the Jackal has a vendetta and a reputation for "very public, very bloody" revenge. So while Willis's character is running around the globe collecting the weaponry he'll need to do the job, the detectives and Mulqueen, whom they don't trust very much, are running around the globe trying to intercept Mr. J. Of course, Mulqueen has an old score to settle with Jackal, so this is his reason for participating in the deal.

For a master-of-disguises known for his discretion, the Jackal certainly causes a lot of unnecessary commotion at times. When he is being tailed by the detectives, he nonchalantly pulls into a parking garage, and then does so much tire-squealing that no one could possibly mistake his whereabouts or that he's up to no good. When he is spotted by Mulqueen on a boat dock, rather than walking casually away, he opens fire--drawing attention from the other detectives as well as many passers-by. He is continually shooting innocent people for no good reason. The film has other ridiculous plot developments, like the high-level detective (Diane Venora) who is shot and is allowed to die 20 minutes later, surrounded by cops, with no medical help. And the slightly retooled baseball-bat scene stolen shamelessly from The Untouchables.

Although there are some genuine thrills and some very cool music, this film is mainly run-of-the-mill action/adventure fare: lots of loud, meaningless violence with high-tech weapons. If you like that, live it up. ★★½

ANASTASIA

Rated G

In his several-year run against the Disney titan, animation producer Don Bluth has turned out some respectable contenders, such as An American Tail, All Dogs Go To Heaven, and The Land Before Time. But now he has really come into the big leagues. Teaming up with co-producer Gary Goldman, Bluth has delivered a masterpiece that is absolutely on a par with recent Disney greats like Beauty and The Beast and Aladdin, except for one thing. I'll get to that in a minute.

Featuring an all-star cast of voices headed by Meg Ryan and John Cusack, Anastasia is packed with emotion, action, comedy, and better than average vocal characterizations. Not to mention epic production numbers, exquisite computer animation, and incredibly detailed background paintings. The film is so rich with subtle references and clever adult-oriented humor that I would almost recommend it for grown-ups more than children. but. of course, there is plenty of juvenile hilarity to go around. Another great element is the music, with a rich score by David Newman and several great songs by Stephen Flaherty and Lynn Ahrens.

This is based (very loosely) on the true story of the grand dutchess Anastasia of Russia, the youngest child of Tsar Nicholas Romanov, who was executed along with the rest of his family by the Bolsheviks in 1917 during the Russian Revolution. The real Anastasia was presumed dead for many years as well, but evidence later suggested that the 8-year-old girl may have escaped into anonymity. In this version, "Anya" (Ryan) turns up at an orphanage, unaware of who she is because of a blow to the head suffered during her escape. After coming of age and leaving the orphanage, she meets up with a young man named Dimitri (Cusack), who, along with his friend Vladimir (Kelsey Grammer), has been planning to train some young lass to "act" like the long-missing grand dutchess. Then he would return her to the remaining royal family, Anastasia's grandmother in Paris (Angela Lansbury), and collect the substantial reward. Trouble is, others have tried to scam the wealthy dowager before, and she's completly fed up. Still, Dimitri and Vladimir convince Anya she's got nothing to lose, and before their long voyage from St. Petersburg to Paris is over, Dimitri is convinced she's the real thing.

Meanwhile, the evil Rasputin (Christopher Lloyd), who has a grudge against the Romanov family, has sold his soul for the power to "get" the dutchess. He and his not-so-willing accomplice, a bat named Bartok (Hank Azaria of The Simpsons fame), provide loads of comic relief, and at times some real terror, to the plot. Azaria's voice characterization is hilarious, reminiscent of a Tim Conway character from the old Carol Burnett Show.

The one flaw I mentioned is that the character animation is a little rough, as is the blend between traditional and computer generated artwork. Close-up faces do not move quite as smoothly as Disney's, but this does not have anything to do with technique or talent, it's about MONEY. Perhaps the film could have used a few more frames per second, but that surely would have added several zeros to the production cost. Obviously, most of this picture's audience will not notice, since they are accustomed to the terrible animation now prevalent on Saturday morning cartoons.

All in all, this is one of the best animated features I have ever seen, Disney or otherwise. Since it is based on a true story, and not loaded with talking animals or magic kitchenware, it has an adult feel, a simple reality. If you like animated features, or ever have, then absolutely do not miss this movie. ★★★★★

Edwards and Hafer proposal; we are still opposed to a new interstate highway, including this idea. We appreciate that these elected officials are listening to their constituents, as it proves that public opinion can have an impact, and it makes it all the more important for Garrett County's citizens not to become complacent. We need to be sure that this is not just an attempt to neutralize opposition. It continues to remain important for citizens to express their views to federal, state, and local officials," she said.

"Our group will provide an informational meeting on the Edwards and Hafer proposal," Shimrock continued, "we will announce a date and location in next week's paper. This meeting will be for anyone interested in finding out more details of this proposal."

Garrett County Conservative Action for a Rural Environment (G.C./CARE), released the following statement: "The Edwards and Hafer proposal is unacceptable. G.C./CARE is opposed to the construction of a NAFTA highway regardless of its location, because we view it as an unnecessary waste of taxpayers' money and more importantly because it is another assault on the natural, historic, and rural heritage of the citizens of this county. We believe that time spent on the promotion of a new highway could be better spent looking into some of the programs available to the people of Garrett County to stimulate the jobs market," the statement said.

At Saturday's meeting and in interviews that followed, Edwards stressed repeatedly that "nothing will happen without federal financial assistance. We're looking at March or April before we'll know about that, and then we can decide how we proceed from there. As always, even if federal funds are made available, 'no-build' remains an option that must be discussed as well," he said.

Goldstein Says Income Tax Revenue Reveals Good Maryland Economy

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says state income tax revenues continue to show healthy growth, reflecting higher employment, increased wages, and the continued growth of the stock market. For the first three months of fiscal year 1998 (August, September, and October 1997), personal income tax revenue totaled $810.3 million, an increase of 8% over the same period a year ago.

In remarks to the Prince George's County Contractors Association in Temple Hills Saturday, Goldstein said the new income tax figures are another cause for optimism about Maryland's economy.

Employer withholding of state income tax continues to show strong growth of 8%, reflecting growth in wages, overtime, and employment. Estimated tax payments and final payments made with tax returns filed with six-month extensions also showed exceptional growth, suggesting that nonwage income, such as capital gains, bonus income, and stock options, continued to be strong as well.

"The Business Advisory Panel, which provides input to the Board of Revenue Estimates, of which I am chairman, concurs with our assessment of the economic outlook," Goldstein said.

The panel represents different sectors of the state's economy, including finance, insurance, retailing, construction, and transportation, among others.

The Board of Revenue Estimates, which will report its revenue projections to Governor Glendening on December 15, is forecasting personal income growth of 5.4% in 1997, 4.9% in 1998, and 4.7% in 1999. The board is also projecting employment growth of 2.2% in 1997, 1.6% in 1998, and 1.2% in 1999.

"The gradual slowing of growth in employment and personal income result from the low unemployment rates we are experiencing after seven years of national expansion. There are fewer new workers to hire as a result of the strong, tight economy," Goldstein said.

Goldstein told the contractors that Maryland employment gained about 2.2% during the first nine months of 1997, keeping pace with the national average, with the greatest growth in construction, business services, and communications. "Maryland's construction employment has rebounded since early 1996, rising at an average pace of almost 7% over the past four quarters," he said.

The comptroller noted that today Maryland is in a better situation than her sister states when it comes to federal employment because the rate of decline in federal employment has been lower in Maryland than the rest of the nation for the past year. "This is in large part because of the relocation of civilian and military personnel from other states to the Patuxent Naval Air base in St. Mary's County," he said.

School Activities Review Committee To Hold Meeting

There will be a meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education School Activities Review Committee on Nov. 25 beginning at 1 p.m. This meeting will be held in room 315 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett Community College. Members of the community are welcome to attend.

In the event that school is closed or an early dismissal occurs on the date, the meeting will be rescheduled in December.

NEATNESS COUNTS

It's an old saying but nowhere is it more applicable than here in our pharmacy. For every drug package has to be carefully marked and then stored alphabetically in its exact proper place under the right protective conditions. Our pharmacy counter is always kept antiseptically clean, so that there is no chance of a drug becoming contaminated while we are filling your prescriptions.

Neatness also counts when it comes to people, and that is why all of the people in our pharmacy make it an extra point to be well-groomed from their fingernails and shoes to their lab jackets.

Framed In Glory

"This is an original work of art. There is not another like it. Oh, I must find just the perfect frame."

Yes, what is the perfect painting without the perfect frame? It must be surrounded by magnificence in order to achieve the desired effect. Often, the frame is a work of art in and of itself, carved and gilded and uniquely fitted to the work it will hold.

Just as the most beautiful canvas is incomplete without a frame, we are incomplete creations unless we are surrounded by the glory of God...held in the perfection of His loving hands. It is only then that we are the best that we can be, showing the world that the joyous beauty of the Creator surrounds us, adorning our individual uniqueness as a creature of God.

Worship the Creator this Sabbath and go into the world transformed...framed by the glory of God.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ACTHOUSE

YOUR PART OF THE GAME

November 23, 1997

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 4
Devotional Reading:
Nehemiah 9:6-15

Those who know me, I believe, characterize me as a person who perseveres. (Some have stated it less delicately than that!).

I don't think I was born with perseverance. I think, rather, that early in my early life I decided that perseverance was absolutely necessary in life.

I remember when I was a Boy Scout reading an article in Boys Life, the official scouting magazine. I still remember the title of the article. It was called, "A Guy As Game As That," and it was a story about a young man who went to Notre Dame and wanted to play football there, although he was not a natural athlete and was relegated to "the scrubs." Then, along came World War I and he joined the army. During the war he was badly wounded. But, when he later returned to Notre Dame, he didn't let that stop him from making the team and earning his letter.

What called that influential article to my mind was coming across a quotation from a writer named Hulbert from his book Forty-Niners: "The finding of gold is luck; you will not be held blameable if you are unlucky. But making the journey, overcoming obstacles, fighting your way through, that is a matter of grit, not luck. Do that, get there, and you are absolved, you have mastered the part of the game that depended upon you." (Quoted by Irving Stone in Men To Match My Mountains.)

YOUR PART

"A Guy As Game As That," whom I so much admired as a boy, did exactly that: he mastered the part of the game that depended upon him. He couldn't control the circumstances of his life, the degree of his athletic ability was determined by his genes, but he took charge of the one thing that was in his control: he persevered.

Perseverance is also a Christian virtue. We are called to persevere, not for the sake of perseverance alone, but because we are in God's hands. We cannot persevere without trusting the providence of God.

Perseverance is what the story of Nehemiah is all about. Nehemiah persevered despite the obstacles that confronted him. He got the people to persevere even when the task seemed almost impossible. Their enemies laughed and jeered and that's enough right there to make lots of people quit. But Nehemiah met every one of these obstacles and stuck to his commitment.

IN THEIR MINDS

Their perseverance was to be found, not in their genes, but in their minds. "So, we built the wall; and all the wall was joined together to half its height. For the people had a mind to work" (4:6). Sticking to it began in the commitment they made. They mastered the part of the game that depended upon them: persevering—and God would do the rest.

But that was not the end of the matter. Their enemies, they learned, were plotting to stage a surprise attack upon them. Their enemies reasoned that the Jews could not both build the wall and guard against attack. The Jews themselves realized that, but Nehemiah set in motion a plan whereby half the people would work at building and the other half would stand guard. Would it work? They didn't know, but they stuck to it. They did their part and God did his.

That is really all that God asks of us—to do our part, to persevere, regardless of the obstacles. If we do, God will do his part.

AdventureSports Slates Winter Camping Courses

Two winter camping experiences to northern areas are being offered by the AdventureSports program at Garrett Community College during the January intersession, according to Mike Logsdon, program director.

Both trips are scheduled from January 5 to 18 and will include three one-credit courses. The groups will spend the first several days on the GCC campus before departing for their destinations.

Steve Tomb, assistant professor of AdventureSports, will lead and instruct one group going to the High Peaks Wilderness Area of the Adirondacks in New York. Students who participate in this experience will earn a total of three credits in ice climbing, mountaineering, and winter camping. The other trip, to the Base Camp of the Boy Scouts of America at Ely, Minn., will be led by Paul Shogren, adjunct instructor of AdventureSports. During this experience students will earn credits in dog sledding, winter camping, and wolf ecology.

Both experiences will stress winter outdoor living skills, especially sleeping warm and staying warm. Everyone will carry their own gear, including food, sleeping bag, and part of the group gear. Tomb explains that each group will take one extra light stove for every four persons, plus many dehydrated foods such as potatoes, oatmeal, and dried snacks that do not add much weight to their packs.

When the two groups return to Garrett County following their winter camping experience, they will get together at GCC for a Sunday pot-luck social and critique of their trips.

Anyone desiring further information about the winter camping experience may call the AdventureSports office at 301-387-3013.

Macy's Parade flying high on NBC

By Kelly Barclay
©TVData Features Syndicate

Al Roker

Ushering in the holiday season as surely as an after-Thanksgiving sale, the 71st annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade marches through New York and into the homes of millions of viewers Thursday, Nov. 27, on NBC.

The grand production, which started in 1924 with several Macy's employees, has escalated into perhaps the most famous parade in the world. This year, it is hosted by Katie Couric, Al Roker and Willard Scott.

"We're on the network live for three hours," says producer Bill Bracken. "It gives us a tremendous responsibility (to get things right)."

To ensure good footage, 15 cameras are positioned at various points along the 2 1/2-mile parade route. Although there are no cameras on the balloons as in past years, NBC's Chopper 4 will be providing aerial photographs.

"We work closely with the technical team," Bracken says. "We try to innovate with better cameras, better lenses." He adds that Chopper 4 is the greatest photographic innovation the parade has seen yet.

"At the beginning of the broadcast, the helicopter will be positioned near the Empire State Building," Bracken says. "It will start with a shot of the Statue of Liberty, and pull (back) out to Herald Square (where the parade culminates)."

Al Roker will be positioned uptown at the parade's kickoff on Central Park West, interviewing celebrities. Meanwhile, at Herald Square, various segments from Broadway musicals are scheduled to be performed.

"We usually have four (different musicals) in the first hour," Bracken says. "This year's line-up includes performances from the cast(s) of Titanic, Chicago and Street Corner Symphony."

He says Macy's planning of the parade starts as soon as the previous year's parade ends.

"Macy's worries about the floats and the marching bands; they start right away," Bracken says. "(NBC's) involvement doesn't start until summertime meetings with Macy's about the lineup. We consider Broadway shows and start talking about talent."

The hallmark of the parade, however, is the huge balloons. New ones this year include children's PBS character Arthur and a three-character balloon: Tommy, Chucky and Tommy's dog, Spike, from Nickelodeon's Rugrats.

A famous part of the festivities is the legion of Macy's employee volunteers who make up the 4,000 balloon handlers, dancers, escorts and clowns. The hundreds of employees working as clowns must participate in "clown college" at Macy's headquarters a week and a half before Thanksgiving Day, where they spend a full day of training in how to be Macy's clowns.

But not everybody can be in New York on Thanksgiving to see the balloons and clowns up close, and that's where NBC steps in.

According to Bracken, "viewers get the best view and close-up feeling."

Bracken, whose 1996 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade broadcast won an Emmy for outstanding special class program, says he is excited about the three-hour broadcast.

"We don't get nervous," he says, "but the adrenaline does get going."

Dead by Midnight challenges identity

Imagine having everything you've ever dreamed of: a great job, a wonderful spouse and adoring children. Then you wake up one day to find that it's all a fabrication, a lie, an experiment.

That's what happens to David Larkin in ABC's futuristic thriller Dead by Midnight, airing Sunday, Nov. 23.

Academy Award winner Timothy Hutton, currently on the big screen with David Duchovny in Playing God, stars as Larkin, a normal man living the American dream, until he discovers he's not a person all, but actually the result of a secret government project.

Larkin learns he was killed in an automobile accident, and an experiment brought him back to life as a cybernetic being.

"It's a story that people can really relate to because, at some point, we all feel pretty secure with what we have, but often wonder if the grass is greener on the other side of the hill," says the movie's screenwriter, Michael Vickerman.

The story's premise isn't as far-fetched as you might think. "It's possible, when you're talking about someone who's still alive, being rebuilt with synthetic implants," says Selmer Bringsjord, an associate professor who heads the Minds & Machines Program at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

Larkin's search for his identity turns into a struggle for survival when the government realizes that he knows about the experiment and tries to kill him.

"What makes this story interesting is that he finds his whole life doesn't exist," says Vickerman. "It begs the question, 'What makes someone who they are?' "

Academy Award winner Timothy Hutton (Playing God) stars as a man who discovers a terrible secret about himself in Dead by Midnight, a futuristic thriller airing Sunday on ABC.

AmeriCorps Members Join AHEC

NATHAN BLATCHLEY

TRACY LITTLE

The Western Maryland Area Health Education Center announces the addition of two AmeriCorps members, Nathan Blatchley and Tracy Little, to its staff.

Blatchley, Frostburg, the new Rural Health Information facilitator and first-year AmeriCorps member with A Star! in Western Maryland, joined the AHEC staff in September. He will work to generate an understanding and awareness of health care concerns in Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties via town meetings and other information gathering strategies. He also will convey local opinion to state policymaking organizations via newsletters.

His past experiences include serving as chief of staff for the Governor of Maryland Student Legislature (MSL) and as founding member and chairperson of the Garrett Community College (GCC) delegation for MSL. His leadership led to the re-establishment of the Student Government Association at GCC, for which he served as president. He won the only Leadership Award presented to a student by GCC in 1993.

Blatchley holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from Frostburg State University and an associate's degree in fine and performing arts from Garrett Community College.

Tracy Little, Frostburg, is the new Health Career Enrichment educator, working to inspire middle school students' interest in health careers and facilitate an experiential summer program for them. She comes to the AHEC as a first-year AmeriCorps member.

Little has previous experience as a pharmacy technician and hospital volunteer and says she is "excited" to be promoting health careers among young people. She has lived in St. Louis, Phoenix, Silver Spring, and Yokusuka, Japan. Currently a senior justice studies major at Frostburg State University, she plans to attend law school next year.

Social Security Manager Says "Beat The Rush"

Incorrect Social Security numbers continue to be a frequent reason for the delay of income tax refunds, according to Tom Armbruster, manager of the Cumberland Social Security office. He urges taxpayers to act now to "beat the rush" for Social Security numbers needed for tax returns. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) will not process returns with missing or incorrect Social Security numbers. If the return does not include the correct Social Security number, IRS may contact the taxpayer for the correct information before issuing a refund.

Taxpayers are now required to have the names of all dependents correctly listed on their tax returns. "To avoid delaying your refund, you should make sure your name and Social Security number, and the name and Social Security number of your spouse and any dependents listed on the return, agree with the name and number shown on each individual's Social Security card," Armbruster said.

To get an original or replacement Social Security card, persons should call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213. The best times to call to avoid peak telephone traffic are later in the week and the second half of the month.

"If you have already applied for a Social Security number for your newborn child at the hospital where you gave information for your child's birth certificate, you should receive your child's Social Security card in the mail within two to four weeks after Social Security receives the information from your state's vital records office," Armbruster concluded.

Local Student Receives Honor At Towson U.

Brian C. Hensley, Grantsville, was recently honored by Towson University officials as one of four student finalists considered for the 1997 Towson University's Outstanding Man of the Year.

The criteria for selection included scholarship, on-campus activities, off-campus involvement, and employment experience. Candidates were asked to describe their talents and abilities and to write essays explaining what they would do within the role of university man of the year. The top candidate received a $1,000 scholarship and each finalist received a $100 scholarship.

Hensley is a senior majoring in mass communication, specializing in public relations, president of the student advisory board for the Shriver Center, building manager of Towson University Union, and vice president of Public Relations Student Society of America.

A graduate of Fort Hill High School, Cumberland, he is the son of Larry F. and Virginia M. Hensley.

WESTVACO RECEIVES ENVIRONMENTAL AWARD – Westvaco Corporation recently received the Allegany Soil Conservation District's 1997 Environmental Award for its "outstanding cooperation in implementing best management practices for forest harvesting." Craig Hartsock, Conservation District Manager, said, "Westvaco foresters provide an outstanding service to landowners and loggers in the design and layout of haul roads, skid trails, landing sites, and buffer zones along streams. Allegany Soil Conservation District Chairman Gary Teter presented the award. Pictured from left are: Teter, and Westvaco foresters Ken Gibbs, Kevin Simpson, Mike Fleming, and Ken Roberts. Gibbs, Fleming, and Roberts, along with forester Pete Miller, were also recognized by the Conservation District for their participation in the district's Forest Harvest Sediment Control Program.

Winter Break Courses To Be Offered At GCC

A 10-day intersession offering a variety of courses has been scheduled at Garrett Community College from January 5 to 16. Because of the brief time period, most of the courses are one-credit offerings.

As in former years, a number of adventure sports courses are on the intersession schedule. These include beginning, intermediate, and advanced skiing and beginning and intermediate snowboarding, meeting at the Wisp from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. Two week-long winter camping experiences are scheduled from January 5 to 18. Steve Tomb will lead a group to the Adirondacks of New York, where students will learn ice climbing, mountaineering, and winter camping. Paul Shogren will lead another group to Ely, Minn., where students will take dog sledding, wolf ecology, and winter camping.

Other one-credit courses offered during intersession this year will meet daily at the college. These are Personal Finance (BUS 290), from 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.; Vocabulary Development (LS 114), from noon to 1:30 p.m.; Career Preparation (OT 290), from 8:30 to 10 a.m.; and Weight Management (PE 290), from noon to 1:30 p.m. A Teaching Lab (ED 200) for education majors is scheduled Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., and Intro. To Computer Software (CA 100), a two-credit course, is scheduled from 2 to 4:30 p.m. daily.

Students may register for these intersession courses at the Student Assistance Center weekly during business hours until January 5. Persons desiring further information about these courses may call the Student Assistance Center at 301-387-3044.

Entertainment Spending Up 21.8%

Marylanders spent $203.6 million on taxable entertainment during the first quarter of fiscal year 1998 (July, August, and September 1997), or 21.8% more than during the same three months of the previous year, said State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

"Ahnost all major entertainment categories showed increases in spending," Goldstein said. "Entertainment spending is an indicator of how people are spending their disposable income, and all that spending translated into more than $13.4 million in admissions and amusement tax revenue for local governments."

Statewide spending on athletic events increased by 158% to $30.7 million, reflecting successful major and minor league baseball seasons, and the presence of two National Football League teams in Maryland this year. Golf greens fees and cart rentals were responsible for consumer spending of more than $31.7 million, up 26% over the same period a year ago. Spending at miniature golf and driving ranges also increased by 24.3% to about $6.8 million.

Marylanders spent more than $29 million on movie tickets, a 2% increase over the same period last year. Spending on popular summertime activities also posted increases. Amusement parks benefited from a 27.5% increase in spending, to more than $11 million. Marylanders also spent about $11.6 million on amusement rides, a 5.3% increase over spending for the same quarter during the last fiscal year.

While spending for coin-operated amusement devices at arcades increased by 29.4% to $17.4 million, boat rides and boat rentals posted a 2.4% decline in spending to about $8.2 million.

The State Comptroller's Office collects the admissions and amusement tax at rates set by local officials and returns the money to Maryland's counties, cities, and towns each quarter The comptroller noted that individual checks are on their way to local governments for their share of the $13,414,278 in admissions and amusement tax receipts.

Included in the distribution is a check for $954,599 for the Maryland Stadium Authority's share of admissions and amusement tax receipts. The Stadium Authority receives 80% of admissions tax attributable to events at major league stadiums in Baltimore to help defray construction costs.

"The current distribution is 28.4% more than the $10,447,101 we returned to local governments for the July-September period of 1996," Goldstein said. The admissions and amusement tax revenues returned to Garrett County in the first quarter of fiscal year 1998 total $123,702, compared to $102,883 for the same quarter as last year.

WHOM DO WE HIRE?
by Jeff Gosnell

Heard the one about the family who saved money by hiring a "bargain" contractor to build their house? We didn't think so because, well, they're not exactly broadcasting the fact that they didn't get what they bargained for at all. On the contrary, they paid dearly for all those bargains that left them with a very unsatisfactory home, lots of headaches, and a much bigger debt than they had budgeted for.

At the start of their big adventure into home-building the family was lucky enough to have captured one of those supposedly endangered AWLs at Deep Creek Lake. Yes folks, there are still some Affordable Waterfront Lots (AWLs) being sighted out there, and those fortunate enough to snare one should also be lucky enough to work with the right contractor to build their home.

But luck has little to do with it. It often takes some digging to unearth the contracting firm that's worth your time ... and money. And one that will deliver what it promises in a timely manner.

There are some key factors to identify in that process, so here are our suggestions about how to go about making the most of your prized AWL--or any other piece of land you've purchased with the hope of building your long-awaited dream home.

First, find a contractor who is reputable.

Some good old-fashioned homework will suffice here. Obtain a list of homeowners who have used the company you are considering and talk to them about everything from the promised completion time to the cost. You'll also want to ask about the quality of the finished home, of course. Be very afraid if they say things like, "Oh yeah, the contractor stayed within the cost, but we were hoping for more than this outhouse we're living in."

If the mere mention of the contractor's name evokes any of the three "c's"--choking, cursing, or clicking (hanging up)--you might want to consider yourself forewarned.

Second, find out if the contractor is easy to work and communicate with.

Remember, this is going to be your home, and it is definitely your money, so you should be able--even encouraged--to share your suggestions and concerns. Make sure the contractor understands your vision and that you understand his. If you describe a two-story house of stick construction with a Victorian look, and the contractor comes back a few days later with a modular ranch home design, you may have a communication problem.

Those problems should be worked out before any money passes hands.

Third, ask to see licenses and insurance certificates such as MHIC, general liability, and workers' compensation.

Hey, stuff happens! Even if you've hired an honest, well-intentioned contractor, somebody has to pay for those unlikely mishaps or bad calculations. The person you're putting in charge of what may be your shelter for many years should have all the certification required by law. There's a good chance they won't be used with a qualified contractor, but do ask questions about coverage in the event of injured workers or a runaway cement truck that is barreling right toward your new front door. Even unlikely events should be discussed beforehand. Unlikely doesn't mean "not possible."

Fourth, determine ahead of time whether or not the contractor you're hiring has access to a wide range of material selections in order to satisfy both your sense of style as well as your budgetary requirements.

At this point in your investigation, it is also wise to make sure your contractor understands the intent of what you want to build. In other words, he should be able to interpret what the architect is trying to express in the design and visualize details that prove to be obstacles. After all, you probably don't want to wake up in your new home the first morning, look out that big, beautiful window in your front room, and discover it looks out onto an embankment instead of the impressive view that spurred you to purchase the property in the first place.

Finally, find a contractor with the right attitude.

Yes, the right attitude. The right mind set, if you will. This, we think, is the main prerequisite for building well and economically. When the contractor understands and appreciates the value of a well-designed and well-built home, he also understands that good design is crucial to building a house whose value is significantly greater than the cost of all its parts. You will find this most important task is much easier, of course, if you, the client, have the right attitude. That attitude, in our opinion, is the willingness to rethink common assumptions about how you live and what constitutes quality in materials and design.

Be smart. Be cautious. Be flexible. And demand the same qualities in your contractor. Only then will you be able to enjoy the right you've earned to truly live well in your new home.

Resolution From GC Board Of Ed. Salutes Veterans

A group a veterans from across the county, acting on behalf of all veterans, accepted honors last week from members of the Garrett County Board of Education. In what was considered to be unprecedented in this county, the board members presented a Veterans Day Resolution.

Board member Pat Riley read aloud the resolution that honored the work and efforts of America's service veterans. An excerpt from the document follows: "If we are to pass the torch of freedom from generation to generation, Veterans' Day must also be a day of education, we must instill in children the great privilege of being an American, they must be taught the foundation principles of our country and instilled with a sense of duty, honor, and responsibility for its preservation."

Another segment of the resolution stated: "Be it resolved, that the Garrett County Board of Education hereby expresses our most sincere gratitude to all our veterans, we honor those who paid the ultimate price for our freedom, we also remember the families of those who never returned from their service."

The resolution also included thanks for service within the community to educate children. It stated: "We thank our veterans and veterans; organizations for their service in our community, especially as it relates to their programs to educate children about America's principles and the value of their preservation."

The document was signed by all board members.

Adult Program Sponsors Reading Awareness Day

The Adult Education program of Garrett Community College is sponsoring Reading Awareness Day today, Nov. 20, in Garrett County. The major goal of this day is to call attention to the need for improved reading skills for adults in the county, according to a program spokesperson.

According to 1990 census data, nearly one-third of the adults 25 years and over in Garrett County do not have a high school diploma, and over 16 percent of those adults have not attained an education above ninth grade. Many lack basic literacy and functional skills. "Garrett Community College is striving to increase community awareness in the need for improved literacy and to improve public awareness of services available for the residents of Garrett County," the spokesperson said.

The Adult Education program of the Continuing Education Department of GCC provides free, individualized classes in a self-paced format. Currently classes are offered at three locations, with day and evening schedules. Individuals are asked to share this information with someone who could benefit from these services.

Businesses throughout the county are participating in Reading Awareness Day by displaying information on posters or marquees. For more information about classes, persons may call the Oakland Center of GCC at 301-334-8304.

Biography

Caroline Kennedy: A Private Life

Author, lawyer, mother of three, Caroline Kennedy enters her 40th year with a full but intensely private life. Despite nearly four decades as one of the era's most scrutinized figures, she has succeeded — unlike other Kennedys — in keeping her daily comings and goings from public view.

Five days before her sixth birthday, on November 22, 1963, Caroline was told her father, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, was dead. With her mother and brother, John, she soon moved to New York City and started school.

In 1972, she entered Concord Academy in Massachusetts. A year later, she interviewed Tennessee coal miners for a documentary. The following summer, she visited drug rehab centers in Hong Kong (where she acquired a tattoo). After graduation, she went to London to study art appreciation. There, she came within minutes of being killed by a car bomb likely meant for a Parliament member, the November issue of Biography magazine relates.

Graduating Harvard-Radcliffe College in 1979 with a degree in fine arts, she began working in 1980 as a producer in the film and TV office of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. It was there that she met husband-to-be Edwin Schlossberg, a cultural historian 13 years her senior. They would marry on Cape Cod in the summer of 1986.

Bored with museum work, she attended and graduated from Columbia University's law school and promptly gave birth to a girl in June, 1988, Rose Kennedy Schlossberg. Another daughter, Tatiana, was born the following year and, in 1992, a son arrived, John Kennedy Schlossberg.

Meanwhile, she co-authored a well-received book, IN OUR DEFENSE: THE BILL OF RIGHTS in Action, published in 1991. Four years later, she co-produced another book, THE RIGHT TO PRIVACY. From the way she shelters her family from the media spotlight, her life exemplifies that right to the hilt.

CLEAN DRAPES — I got tired of all those large cleaning bills for my drapes and taking the pins out and replacing them. I even thought about getting rid of my pinch-pleated sheers, but I experimented by leaving the pins in and putting that area of the curtain in a white pillowcase and securing it with rubber bands.

I then washed them on the gentle cycle and hung them wet (after the complete cycle in the washer). They came out far better than they did from the cleaners and there were NO PINS TO FIGHT WITH.

I enjoy your column very much. Mrs. Valerie R., West Covina, Calif.

STROLLER SHOPPING — While visiting a friend, we were power-shopping with a baby and stroller. We needed to free up our tired arms to view items. I couldn't help but think there has to be a better way to carry all these packages with the stroller.

Finally, an idea came to mind, which I thought you might like to share.

We went to a store where you can buy shower curtains and purchased a package of inexpensive plastic shower-curtain rings. I clipped them on the stroller handle and every time we would make a purchase, we would simply open one ring and add the bag to it. Of course, the bag needs to have handles of some kind.

You would be surprised how many packages we could carry on the stroller and the time we saved not having to make trips to the car. It made shopping much easier for us. Tammy K., Laredo, Texas

Cast iron became an important material for use in buildings and furniture in the 19th century.

Many cast-iron buildings were designed in the 1830s. The columns, doors and fronts were made of iron, and foundries began experimenting with other uses for the iron.

Once a pattern was made, the mold could be used over and over — which made iron pieces relatively inexpensive.

Garden furniture was made in Philadelphia by the 1840s. There were iron furniture makers in all parts of the country before the Civil War.

About 1855, the black cast-iron furniture moved indoors. Hat racks, umbrella stands, center tables, beds, mirror frames, fire screens and plant stands were made. Many of the indoor pieces were painted black with gilded decoration or painted to look like dark woods.

By 1900, the use of metal furniture indoors had gone out of style, except for metal beds, which remained popular.

Interest in cast-iron furniture was renewed in the 1950s, and today new castings of the Victorian pieces are being made. Some are made of aluminum, so they are light and easy to move.

Old cast-iron furniture was held together by iron bolts that usually had countersunk heads. The iron was surprisingly brittle, so pieces might have been repaired. Look for welds. An old piece might have rust or many coats of paint. It does not lower the value of the piece to remove all paint and rust and then repaint.

Q. My great-grandmother's necklace is made of "Geneva rubies." Is it valuable?

A. Not as valuable as it would be if it were made of real rubies.

Geneva rubies were sold around 1885 in Switzerland. We have been told that they were made by processing small bits of real rubies into larger gemstones. We believe the stones probably contain no real rubies.

...Pastor To Speak At St. Paul's

...any organized religion. "It wasn't until after I became a believer in Jesus in 1974 that I began to discover the richness of my Jewish heritage," Rice said. "I was not looking for Jesus, but as a teenager I was searching for life's meaning," he added. Rice's "search" led him to take classes at an academy for the occult. When somebody handed him a copy of The Late Great Planet Earth, Rice mistook it for a book about the occult. He was surprised to find that the book told about world events as seen from the perspective of Bible prophecy. He began reading the Bible for himself and said he became convinced that Jesus is the way to a personal relationship with God.

Six months later, Rice began to do volunteer work with the Jews for Jesus Los Angeles branch and, within a few years, he became a full-time evangelist with the organization. SUPPORT FOR HOSPICE -- Green Acres Garden Center and Fonnan's Tree Farm, both in Oakland, have once again teamed up to support Hospice of Garrett County, Inc., through the sale of Christmas trees. This is the third year that Dave Taylor from Green Acres and John Forman of Forman's Tree Farm have supported Hospice in this manner. The trees are fresh cut evergreens, 6 to 10 feet tall, which are available in Fraser fir, blue spruce, and white pine. "I am aware of the services Hospice provides for the terminally ill and their families," Forman said. "They go beyond the medical services with emotional support and loving, compassionate care." "Hospice encourages residents to shop at home and support local businesses that support Hospice," Dave Taylor added. "We at Green Acres are looking forward to helping Hospice by sharing our Christmas tree proceeds with their program." Pictured above are Stephanie Forman, daughter of John and Joyce Forman, Brenda Butacher, executive director of Hospice, and Dave Taylor, owner of Green Acres Garden Center.

Thanksgiving Eve Service Slated

The annual Community Thanksgiving Eve Service, sponsored by the Mountain Top Ministerial Association, will be held next Wednesday evening, Nov. 26, at the Church of the Nazarene, Alder and Eighth streets in Oakland, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

This service is a continuation of the annual community event, which was begun in the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park area in the 1920s. "It provides a time when Christians of various denominations can gather together and give thanks for the bountiful goodness of God," stated a spokesman for the association. Prior to World War II, the service was generally held on the morning of Thanksgiving Day. Since that time, it has been held on the Wednesday evening before Thanksgiving.

The guest preacher for this year's service will be the Rev. Richard Tepper. The theme for his sermon will be based on "counting our blessings."

Battista-Smith Couple United In Double-Ring Ceremony

Crystal Dawn Smith and Jeffrey Paul Battista were united in marriage May 10. The double-ring ceremony took place at Avery Chapel, Morgantown, W.Va., with the Rev. Reba Thurmond officiating. The organist was Ms. Marcia Colvin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Morgantown. Mr. Battista is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Battista, Oakland.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore an off-the-shoulder, formal ivory satin gown with intricate beading and appliqued bodice, accentuating the full trailing skirt adorned with delicate seed pearls gathered at the waist. The bride chose a matching headpiece utilizing a beaded headband and elbow-length, rolled edge veil. The bride carried a bouquet of silk yellow and ivory roses, yellow daisies, purple tulips, and purple/yellow pansies.

Serving as the matron of honor was April Dawn Smith Mendoza, Morgantown, sister of the bride. Ms. Kelly Linn Bilko, Altoona, Pa., friend of the bride, served as bridesmaid. The bride's attendants were attired in eggplant, short-sleeved, V-neck tea-length gowns and carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet.

Mr. Battista's best man was Carlos Eduardo Mendoza of Morgantown. Usher was Himrajh Ali Jr. of Ocala, Fla, friend of the bridegroom.

All floral arrangements were made by the bride and her bridesmaid, Kelly Bilko. Photography was provided by Mr. Larry L. Land, who was assisted by his wife Cynthia Mendoza Land.

A reception was hosted by the bride's parents following the ceremony. A full-course meal, including a three-tiered white cake adorned with iced yellow and purple rosebuds, was in readiness for the gathering of family members and close friends of the bride and groom.

Following the reception, the couple departed for a honeymoon to Williamsburg, Va., as well as Garden City Beach, S.C.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Back Bay Restaurant in Morgantown.

Mrs. Battista is a 1994 graduate of Forest Hills High School, Elkins, W.Va., and will graduate from West Virginia University after the fall semester, when she will receive a bachelor of science degree in secondary education, graduating summa cum laude. She will pursue a teaching position in Florida, where the couple will reside.

Mr. Battista is a 1994 graduate of Southern Garrett High School and will graduate from West Virginia University after the fall semester, when he will be receiving a bachelor of science degree in accounting, graduating magna cum laude. Mr. Battista has been accepted into the University of Florida Law School, where he will begin studies in January.

The couple currently reside in Morgantown while completing their studies, but will be relocating to Gainesville, Fla., in December.

Ms. Jodi Miller helped organize the event.

Ms. Glotfelty To Wed Mr. O'Connell

Mr. and Mrs. Michael P. Glotfelty Sr., Oakland, have announced the engagement and forthcoming wedding of their daughter, Michelle Lea, to Pfc. Bryan O'Connell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael S. O'Connell, Williamsburg, Va.

The bride, a 1996 graduate of Southern High School, is employed by Denny's, Oakland, as a waitress. The groom, also a 1996 Southern High School graduate, is serving in the U.S. Army doing mechanical work on Apache helicopters. He is currently stationed at Ft. Hood, Texas.

The wedding is scheduled to take place on December 27 at Loch Lynn Church of God. Invitations are being sent.

SHS Honor Roll Omission Noted

The first-term honor roll list for Southern High School was released this week and appears in the B section of this newspaper. One name that was inadvertently omitted by the school office from that list is Chelsea Stuck, a freshman, who was named to the regular honor roll (earned at least 80% in all subjects).

Correction Noted

In the November 6 issue of The Republican, a picture on the front page showed Southern Middle School students presenting a check to Oakland Mayor Asa McCain for the preservation of the Oakland Train Station. Because of miscommunication with the school, the amount raised by the students was not just over $400, as reported, but was in fact just over $1,000.

Additionally, the event was not solely coordinated by teacher Sue Harkins, but by all the members of the seventh grade teaching team.

Nat. Farm-City Week, Nov. 21-27, Highlights Partners In Progress

National Farm-City Week, always the week ending on Thanksgiving Day, is a time to reflect on our blessings, pledge ourselves to helping those in need, and correct wrongs wherever they exist in our rural, suburban and urban communities, according to the National Farm-City Council.

For the past four decades National Farm-City Week has provided a link between our nation's rural and urban people. Founded by Kiwanis International, the week was established to help achieve unity among all American workers - on and off the farm. With an ongoing theme, "Partners in Progress," National Farm-City Week has increased understandings between two vital parts of our nation.

The beginning stages of National Farm-City Week were formed on a train moving toward Washington, D.C. Charles Dana Bennett, an independent entrepreneur from Vermont, and Merle H. Tucker, the 1955 chairman of the Kiwanis International Agriculture and Conservation Committee, were on a train departing from Chicago. During the trip the pair visited about the poor public image of agriculture, the strong urban influence of agricultural policies and the growing population with no direct ties to the farm. It seemed farm and city people were destined to pull farther apart. They realized positive public relations between farm and city dwellers must be improved.

The conversation between Bennett and Tucker echoed the findings of a survey conducted by Farm Journal. In 1955, the nation's largest farm publication staff surveyed 450 farmers across the country asking for suggestions to improve agriculture. Among the top five suggestions for improvements from the reader responses was to do a better job with public relations.

With the support of Kiwanis, Bennett took the ideas from the discussion he had with Tucker public by approaching Wheeler McMillen, vice president of Farm Journal. McMillen and Carrol Streeter, editor, published the ideas and Bennett's picture in McMillen's monthly column in Farm Journal. Following the informative article, other organizations, in addition to Kiwanis, began to support the Farm-City program. The Foundation for American Agriculture; R. Bruce Gervan of the Grange League Federation--later to become Agway; and Ward L. Qual of WLW, Cincinnati joined in the cause.

National Farm-City Week originated in 1955 when farmers were facing financial hardships. The agricultural industry lost one million farms between 1950 and 1955. Net farm income declined in 1955. Farm income was low, and farm costs, debts, and property taxes were rising. Declining economic conditions yielded a poor public perception of struggling farmers.

Kiwanis recognized farmers were going through difficult times. The organization led the drive for a better image of agriculture. In 1955 they were joined by American Farm Bureau Federation in their beliefs. "One of the big jobs farmers have is to do a good job of public relations," said Charles Shuman, newly elected AFBF president.

Kiwanis, under the leadership of activities director L.A. "Larry" Hapgood, was a natural supporting organization because of its existing interest in agriculture. The Kiwanis organization became heavily involved after its 1955 Congressional Dinner in Washington, D.C., with all members of the Kiwanis International Board present.

An accompanying meeting was held with Bennett; Reed C. Culp, Kiwanis International Board; Hapgood; Robert McMillen, son of Wheeler McMillen and assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson; and Tucker. The group agreed to ask the Kiwanis to serve as the coordinating agency for the National Farm-City Committee.

At the first organizational meeting of the National Farm-City Council, Tucker was asked to serve as leader of the committee. Hapgood was chosen as secretary and served for 25 years. Senator George Aiken from Vermont persuaded the United States Congress to recognize Farm-City Week and requested an annual presidential proclamation.

With the encouragement of organizations and people, the idea of National Farm-City Week grew to the point of having an annually designated week starting the week before Thanksgiving each year and ending on Thanksgiving Day.

Thus was born Farm-City Week and the guiding Farm-City Council. Out of the faith of well-intentioned farm and city people, an effort was and continues to be made to ensure a more sound, more friendly course between rural and urban dwellers. National Farm-City Week is a broadly based program including producers, agricultural organizations, businesses, and youth and civic clubs. Farm-City programs serve communities throughout the United States and Canada by educating youth and adults about the interdependence of agriculture and industry.

There is a need for increased cooperation between farms and cities. National Farm-City Council realizes this need and is continually working toward strengthening the bond between farms and cities.

Read. Then Recycle.

Farming In Maryland.....

Agri-Women To Reap Many New Opportunities At World Conference

The Second World Conference on Women in Agriculture will be held in Washington, D.C., June 28 through July 2, 1998, Jill Long Thompson has announced. The under secretary for rural development at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Long Thompson is a member of the president's Interagency Council on Women. The council is hosting the conference, which is expected to draw 1,200 delegates from more than 40 countries.

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman described the upcoming conference as a milestone event. "When you set out to tackle the issues faced by 25 percent of the world's population--rural women--you are really addressing the issues that all of us face," he said. "This gathering will provide an opportunity for women in agriculture to gain new skills and knowledge, and I am excited that USDA is going to be taking the lead in its organization."

"Rural women make up one fourth of the population of the world, yet they are largely unrecognized for the contributions they make," said U.S. Secretary of State Madeline Albright, chair of the President's Council on Women. "They play a major role not only in their individual communities, but in helping produce the food and raw materials that spur growth in the global economy. In some countries women produce as much as 80 percent of the food supply."

In remarks to the American AgriWomen's national conference, Long Thompson said that the conference will expand international awareness of this vital role, and focus attention on some of the specific concerns faced by rural women.

"Whether managing the family farm or major ranches, running agricultural research laboratories or serving as agricultural officials, women today can be found in every niche of agriculture," she said. "But many women still face major obstacles when they set out to fill roles that have traditionally been held by men."

The first World Conference on Women in Agriculture was held in 1994 in Australia. It was organized by Australian dairy farmer Mary Salce to bring together women in agriculture in anticipation of the Fourth United Nations Conference on Women in Beijing in 1995. The Second World Conference is a follow up to both the Australia and Beijing meetings.

For more information on the conference, interested persons may contact USDA at qwilform@rurdev.usda.gov or write Jill Long Thompson, 1400 Independence Ave., SW, Room 211W, Washington, DC 20250-0107.

WE WERE MADE FOR EACH OTHER...

No, we are not talking about star-crossed sweethearts, we are talking business. Big Business. Agriculture and industry are perfect complements. Truly they are made for each other.

Farms and cities, though separated by the natural lay of the land are amazingly intertwined. What good would a bushel of wheat be without a baker to convert it into loaves of warm, delicious bread? Similarly, what would be the significance of a fresh, cool gallon of milk if it was never hauled off the dairy farm?

We are a team. Together, we provide our nation the safest, most affordable food supply available in the work. To those working in the farms and fields, toiling in the factories or driving on the fast lanes, we thank and salute you. Join us in celebrating National Farm-City Week. You earned it.

Rabbit Meat Products are Selling!

Do you need some extra dollars in your pocket? Raising rabbits could very well be a profitable enterprise for you. You have probably heard about Mt. Pride Cooperative, which was organized by a group of rabbit and goat producers that had a mission of producing and direct marketing of fresh rabbit meat products. The first step of their mission has been accomplished. The Mt. Pride Cooperative, Inc., is marketing fresh rabbit meat products to SuperValu, a large food distributer that supplies more than 250 Foodland, Shop & Save, and County Markets throughout Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Rabbit production is an agriculture enterprise that does not take a large financial investment compared to most agricultural businesses. Many folks already have suitable facilities to raise rabbits. It is an enterprise that you can start with a small number of animals and expand very quickly. Some rabbits will have up to eight litters per year.

If you are interested in more information about the Mt. Pride Cooperative and raising rabbits, contact Jennifer Thorn, extension educator, marketing, at the Garrett County Extension office at 301-334-6960.

What's Your Mailbox Milk Price?

Hoard's Dairyman has a homepage on the Internet where they post mailbox prices for many areas throughout the U.S. The mailbox prices reflect the actual price dairy operations receive for their milk. These prices are reported at average fat tests and reflect premiums, as well as marketing costs, including hauling. You may see a difference because your costs may vary; however, the mailbox price will give you a benchmark for comparison. The mailbox price for our area is $11.42 per cwt. New mailbox prices will be coming out soon.

Unfortunately, many economists are not painting a very bright picture for milk prices. Many expect a rather major decline in butter prices and some decline in cheese prices going into 1998. The December BFP will likely decline to near $12.00 and drop below $12.00 early in 1998.

Income Opportunities Conference

Private landowners will want to take a few minutes during the hectic holiday season to register for an important conference being held April 5-7, 1998. As the name suggests, the Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is designed for farmers, woodland owners, natural resources professionals and others interested in learning how to successfully choose and manage a private land income opportunity. The three-day event will be held at the Ramada Inn Convention Center in Hagerstown, Md.

More than 35 speakers from Vermont to Arkansas--including landowners, consultants, foresters, and Cooperative Extension Service faculty from several states--will share their expertise on a variety of income-generating opportunities, including fishing, hunting, timber management, ecotourism, aquaculture, and the production and marketing of such products as maple syrup and ginseng. They will also explore issues involving finances, liability, insurance and environmental impact.

"Private landowners are becoming increasingly interested in income opportunities that make use of natural resources, and they need the best information to make wise decisions," says Jonathan Kays, Regional Natural Resource Specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "This conference is designed to give them that information." Participants will qualify for 13 Society of American Foresters continuing education credits (category one).

The Natural Resource Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of the University of Maryland, Cornell University, Ohio State University, Pennsylvania State University, Virginia Tech and West Virginia University, along with several federal, state and regional agencies and organizations. The registration fee is $95 and includes a complete copy of the conference proceedings.

Farm Service Agency Conducts County Elections

Elections for the Garrett/Allegany Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committee elections will be held by mail balloting Nov. 21 through Dec. 1, 1997. Garrett and Allegany counties are making the transition from one-area committee to a three-area committee. Therefore, a separate election will be held for each local administrative area (LAA).

The FSA county committee is essential to the local administration and operation of farm programs, such as commodity price support loans, conservation programs, noninsured crop loss programs, and farm loan programs.

Nominated in LAA 1 are: Kenneth R. Bachtel, Dorsey R. Guard, Dennis W. Margroff, Larry E. Sebold, and Dehnar R. Yoder. In LAA 2, those nominated are: Carolyn J. Ganoe, Ronald H. Gribble, Robert D. Lashley, and William M. Warnick. Nominated in LAA 3 are: William H. Heavner, Paul E. Robinette, Salvia Ann Shipley, and Gene Teter.

Farm owners (both husband and wife), operators, tenants, and sharecroppers of legal voting age can vote if they are eligible to participate in any FSA program.

Ballots must be completed according to directions, signed, and returned to the office or postmarked by Dec. 1, 1997.

For additional information, those interested may contact the Farm Service Agency in Garrett County at 301-334-6954, or in Allegany County at 301-777-1536.

Dairy Industry Warning Issued By Farm Bureau

Maryland's largest farm organization is warning that the state's dairy industry could be driven out of business if the Department of Agriculture's system for pricing milk is discontinued.

In a letter to Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, the 14,800-member Maryland Farm Bureau urged the USDA to move swiftly to appeal U.S. District Judge David Doty's ruling in Minnesota that would invalidate much of the nation's system of pricing milk.

"If this ruling is upheld, Maryland dairymen will lose as much as $1.30 per hundredweight, which will send our dairy industry into a tailspin that may result in a complete loss of local dairy products in the state," C. William Knill, president of the Farm Bureau, wrote in the letter to Glickman.

The letter also was signed by Mehrle Ramsburg Jr., chairman of the bureau's dairy committee.

Warning of possible turmoil in milk markets, agriculture department officials have indicated a desire to appeal last week's decision.

Over the last decade, Maryland has lost about 40 percent of its dairy farms.

Maryland Milk Production Up Four Percent

Maryland dairy operators produced 335 million pounds of milk during the July-Sept. quarter, up 4% from the same quarter a year earlier. The number of milk cows was up 1,000 from a year earlier. An increase in the number of milk cows and milk per cow made for the increase in production.

Farmers fed an average of 16.5 pounds of grains and concentrates to each cow on Sept. 1, up 3.5 pounds from a year earlier across the nation. In 1997, the value of this feed was $10.80 per 100 pounds compared to $10.20 per 100 pounds for 1996.

A Tour Of Allegheny Welding, Where The World Seeks Repair

by David Foster

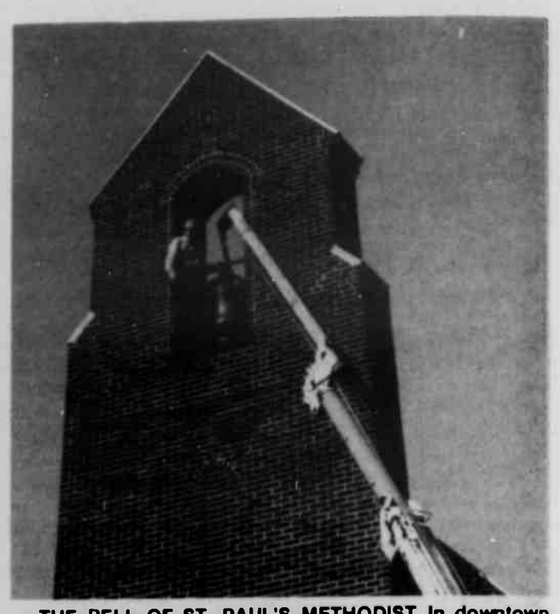
The welding torch glows blue at the tip, then sparks fly as fire meets metal and the faintly acrid smell of acetylene burns the nostrils inside a rather non-descript metal shed on Route 219 south of Oakland. Looks can be deceiving, however, as this building and the 14 people who work there are anything but ordinary, the owners of a reputation that reaches far beyond Garrett County and far beyond the United States.

These buildings and the company they house, Allegheny Welding and Machine, are the product of George Scheffel Sr.'s craftsmanship, imagination and drive. Scheffel and his wife Dawn, along with sons George Jr. and Matthew and the employees of this small business, have built Allegheny Welding into a world-class operation that can manufacture or repair almost anything made of metal and send it almost anywhere.

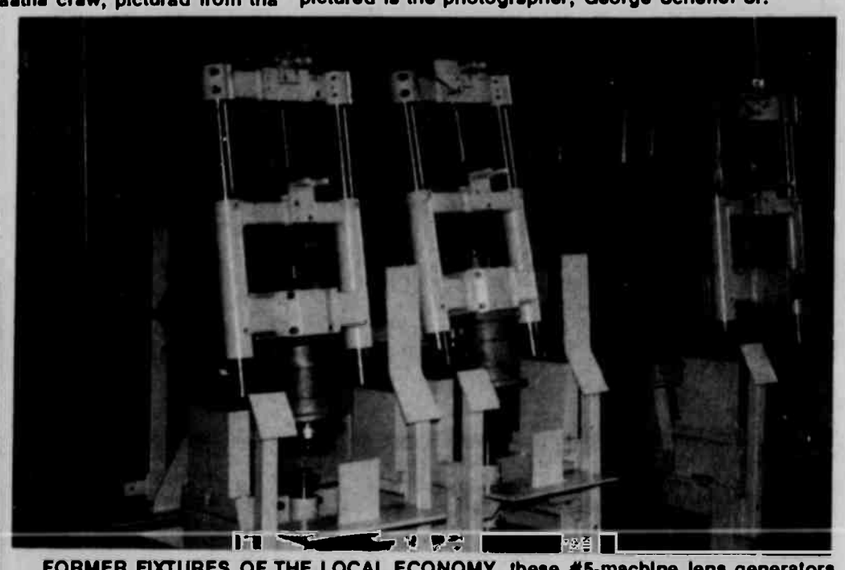
The inside of the building looks and sounds like an industrial version of Santa's toy shop, well kept but a beehive of activity. Shreds of freshly shaved metal lie beneath lathes of all sizes, and the hammering and pounding of metal on metal rings throughout the building, music to the ears of Scheffel Sr., who more often than not can be seen with a welding torch or hammer in his hand. He works alongside his sons, who took over the business last year.

As with any successful machine shop, the products of Scheffel's hands stem from his head. "I have a way of picturing things in my mind from start to finish," he explained. "In carrying out a new project, we'll design and build a machine, sometimes starting with a scale model, sometimes even laying out a full-size model on the shop floor. Then we'll build the actual machine, run it to iron out the bugs and catch mistakes before it leaves the shop, and refine it until both we and the customer are satisfied. When we send it off, the customer then knows what it can do, how to take care of it, and, if necessary, they can then build thousands of that product on their own from our design," Scheffel said.

THE ENTIRE CREW OF ALLEGHENY WELDING AND MACHINE stands atop an anoda trailar and carrier thay craatad from tha ground up, abla to tranaport 20 tona at a tima. "Thara'a nothing lika it in tha world," Gaorga Schaffal Sr., aald of tha machina. Tha sama couki be aald of his highly axparlancad and varaatila craw, pictured from tha far laft, Gaorga Schaffal Jr., aaatad; in tha front row, laft to right, ara John Hinabaugh, Ed Tracay, Jarad Roth, Jaaon Roth, Robert Sabold, Elmer Cosner, Richard Craver, and Dawn Scheffel. In the back row are Robert Scott, Danny Carr, Matthew Scheffel, and William Riggleman Jr. Not pictured is the photographer, George Scheffel Sr.



THE BELL OF ST. PAUL'S METHODIST in downtown Oakland ringa true with the help of George Scheffel Sr., pictured here like a bat perched in the belfry, and his crew. When age and weathering made refurbishing neceaaary, the congregation called on the Scheffels to do the job. They removed the bell and shipped it to a world-renowned bell repair company in Baltimore, while its supports were repaired here by Allegheny Welding.



FORMER FIXTURES OF THE LOCAL ECONOMY, these #5-machine lens generators ground down eyeglass lenses at the Bausch and Lomb plant for many years. Allegheny Welding and Machine rebuilt these machines and did a number of odd jobs on other B&L machinery. The unidentified Allegheny Welding employee on the right appears about to fall into the lens grinder and make a complete spectacle of himself.

ONE OF MANY LOCAL PROJECTS carried out by Allegheny Welding and Machine employees was their steel girder work on the 88 Bridge near Harrington Manor in 1990. Matthew Scheffel is shown at the left helping guide a crossbeam into place. Now hundreds of Garrett Countians' vehicles safely cross this example of Scheffel's handiwork each week.

PERFECTION IS A CLOSE SHAVE in this shot of Matthew Scheffel using a large metal lathe to machine an eight-ton paper roller sent up for refacing and truing by a Hagerstown paper recycling plant. All the work done at Allegheny Welding and Machine must meet precise standards and exact specifications, whether a mining machine for Mettiki Coal, the bull wheel for the ski slope at the Wisp, a ferris wheel for Gambill Amusements, or a tractor repair for a local Amish farmer.

The versatile craftmanship of Scheffel and his crew have won them repair orders for items as varied as a tractor for a local Amish farmer, a water pump on a Navy nuclear sub, steeple bells at St. Paul's Methodist and St. Mark's Lutheran churches, the Oakland water-treatment plant, and a full-size ferris wheel for Gambill Amusements.

Allegheny Welding also puts the pencil to the blueprint, drawing up plans for new industrial machinery that is built here in Oakland and eventually shipped out the door as a completed, ready-to-use devices. Two of the latest of these custom-manufactured creations are going to a huge East Alco aluminum plant in Frederick. One is an anode carrier composed of cab, engine and trailer, that will be used to transport 40,000 pounds of special equipment at a time used in the aluminum manufacturing process. Another project is a second complete cab and carrier assembly that will be transporting 20,000 pounds of hot liquid metal inside the giant plant.

The versatility of Allegheny Welding has its beginnings in a blacksmith shop in Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, where a young George Scheffel would spend his summers at his uncle's side at the anvil and bellows, learning to hammer and bend red hot iron into useful implements for local farmers. His parents lived in Washington, D.C., and Scheffel attended McKinley Technical High School, a vocational trade school. "I took every shop class they had to offer," Scheffel recalls. "I liked learning how to make things so much that I even went back to school after supper for night classes."

Initiative like that does not go unnoticed for long, and shortly after joining the Navy Scheffel could be found running a shipboard machine shop. After his stint in the service he went to work in a machine shop in an area of Silver Spring known as "Little Pittsburgh," where he remained almost 20 years. During those years Scheffel and his wife started a family of five children and began to dream of a life away from the city and a business they could call their own.

After years of saving and planning, the Scheffel family pulled up stakes and moved to Garrett County in the early 1970s, heading west the week of their eldest child's graduation from high school. "George had moved up the previous fall, and lived in a loft above the machine shop as he worked on putting it together," Dawn Scheffel remembered. "I would bring the kids up on Friday evening and stay

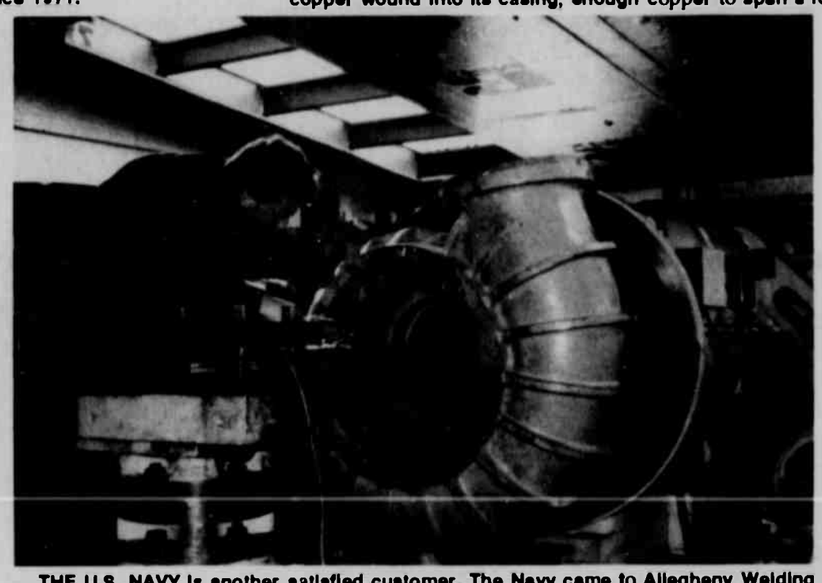
ABLE TO MOVE 10 TONS IN A SINGLE LOAD is this custom-made trailer and carrier, used to transport hot liquid metal used in processing aluminum at a huge Frederick plant. Allegheny Welding and Machine built the huge contraption, one of many specialized projects the business has performed since 1971.

THE WORLD'S FIRST ROUND TRANSFORMER, the Thoma-Regulator, was contracted by Phenix Technology of Accident and was manufactured by Allegheny Welding and Machine. Used to regulate large amounts of electric voltage, it is part of testing equipment that Phenix Technology ships worldwide to companies that build transformers and large generators. The Thoma-Regulator has 300 feet of solid one-inch copper wound into its casing, enough copper to span a football field.

GOOD WORK SPREADS BY WORD OF MOUTH AND WORD OF FAX THESE DAYS, as Allegheny Welding and Machine custom-manufactured these Star Trek looking devices, otherwise known as fluoride injectors, without ever speaking to their customer; all communications occurred over the fax machine. An aluminum company sought bids for this project via fax; the Scheffels won the bid, produced the fluoride injectors to exact specifications, and sent the finished product around the globe to an aluminum plant on the island of Tasmania, off the southern coast of Australia.



THE U.S. NAVY is another satisfied customer. The Navy came to Allegheny Welding and Machine for a repair to a malfunctioning water pump on one of its Thresher-class nuclear submarines, after spending $250,000 with a series of other contractors who had unsuccessfully tried to fix the pump. Matthew Scheffel is shown testing the pump, in which the Scheffels and crew pinpointed the problem and performed the necessary repairs. Since the pump was shipped back to the Navy, it has been operating without incident for five years.

Seeks Repair

with him until Sunday, and we would all pitch in to help him get the shop going.

"We thought Garrett County would be a good place for machine work, with the amount of coal, lumber, and trucking business in the area," she said. George Scheffel remembered that "we had originally thought of going into home building as well, but when that didn't take off like the machine work did we dropped that idea."

That was a lucky turn of events for the Scheffels and businesses in the area and eventually around the world. "Our first project was turning out large steel heat-treated crane wheels, and word of mouth among different companies and their salesmen just seemed to bring us business from then on," George Scheffel explained. The word of mouth evidently got around in different languages, as orders eventually began coming in from different countries far from home. Allegheny Welding and Machine now has satisfied customers from every populated continent on the planet who have sought specialized machine work from the Oakland shop.

While the world has beaten a path to the doors of Allegheny Welding and Machine, the company is most proud of the role it plays in the local economy, and justly so. Among its most loyal customers are Sisler Lumber, Wood Products, and Rigidply Rafters, each of whom employ dozens of area residents.

The Scheffels are also quietly proud of services they have volunteered to the local community, including rebuilding the siren atop the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department building and a great deal of work on the department's Truck #1; building and installing the goalposts and base supports for the lights at the Southern High School athletic field; and building several local volleyball courts, just to name a few.

The family is also very active with the choral society and their home church, St. Mark's Lutheran, and various volunteer activities.

"We've been very lucky here," Dawn Scheffel said modestly of her family's successes over the last quarter-century since coming to the mountaintop. Garrett County could well say that it is lucky to have the Scheffels, too.

Health Insurance Forum Slated For Those Age 50 Up

In response to many requests, Garrett County Community Action's Area Agency on Aging will sponsor a seminar on health insurance options for people age 50 and over. This forum will be held Friday, Nov. 21, at the Grantsville Senior Center, beginning at 10 a.m.

The forum will present information on Medicare and other health insurance related issues. A representative from The Prudential/AARP operations will address health insurance concerns. Information on Medicare and the federally standardized Medicare supplemental plans will be presented.

The representative will offer a general description of the AARP group health insurance programs, followed a question and answer period.

This seminar is open to people of all ages who are interested in, or have concerns about, health insurance for people age 50 and over.

. . . but about the most trailblazing you'll be doing is finding your way from your back door to the tennis courts, enjoying an evening stroll down lovely wooded trails, or slipping over to your own private dock for some of the best boating in all of Maryland — skimming atop the tranquil, blue waters of Deep Creek Lake.

And though it may seem to be a world unto itself — with its peaceful setting and crisp, clean air — this little diamond in Garrett County's crown is literally just minutes from great shopping, two 18-hole golf courses, a movie theater, and all the fine dining that makes being on the mountain top so special.

SOIL MEETINGS

The WV Council of the Resources and Conservation Development (RC & D) met at Canaan Valley Resort and Conference Center on November 4. Wes-Mon-Ty (West Fork, Monongalia, Tygarts Valley) District, one of six in the state, was represented by Frank DeCarmo of Marion County, Frank Glover of Monongalia County, and Hancell Teets of Preston County. They, along with Linda Benson, appointed by the Preston County Commission, attended the business sessions during which their plans for aiding community projects such as 4-H clubs, Rails to Trails, local fire departments, dry hydrants, stream work, and school grounds improvement are formed. Funding is provided both by USDA and the states plus private funds.

The WV Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors Association held their annual meeting at Canaan Valley Nov 5-6. Representing Preston County were Mary Lebnick, Becky Montgomery, and Hancell Teets. Frank DeCarmo and Don Headly of Marion County were also present.

West Fork District received an award for 100% attendance, and Monongalia received one for Earth Team. Supervisor of the Year was John Wayne of Potomac District. The Education Committee raffled a quilt and held an auction, which netted them $3,200 toward their goal of $50,000 for scholarships. Winner of the quilt was Jean Truman of Tygart Valley.

The Stanley and David Harsh families of Terra Alta Pike had been named as Preston County's Conservation Farm Family. The Delmar Yoder family of Morgantown were declared Monongahela District winners. The Sam Morgan farm of Organ Cave, Greenbrier County, received highest state honors as Conservation Family.

Also meeting at this time was the association auxiliary, which is chaired by Mildred Teets of Aurora. The auxiliary sponsors the K-12 poster contest and scholarships to conservation camps. It funds these activities by having a white elephant sale each year.

Monongahela District is represented on the state committee by Frank DeCarmo and Hancell Teets. These state delegates have quarterly meetings and visit each district over the course of two years.

Dean Sisler was present to tell of a trip to Okinawa.

VFW/AUXILIARY ACTIVITIES

The American flag educational program for fifth graders at Terra Alta Elementary School was conducted for 48 students by Aurora-Terra Alta VFW and auxiliary from Post 578. Veterans Floyd Sanlin, Bruce Severe, Paul Lewis, Darwin Falkenstein, Foster Huffman and Warren Dixon and auxiliary president Betty Sereno, Americanism chairperson Dorothy Hauser, and Violet Bishop participated. Introducing Panelcraft Building Systems
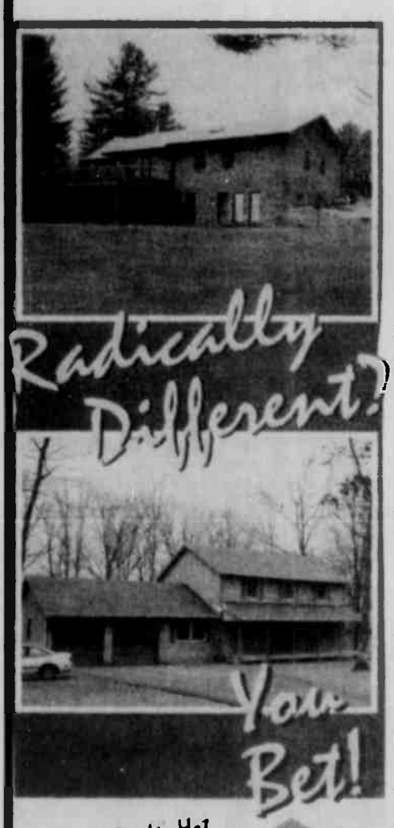
The House of Tomorrow is Here Today!
Cool When It's Hot, Cozy When It's Not!
Customer satisfaction is our #1 goal.
(Residential, Commercial, Churches—ICBO, BOCA & SBCCI Approved)
PANELCRAFT
BUILDING SYSTEMS, INC.



These houses are built with Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs). Using SIPs requires less construction time and leaves the customer with a draft-free Energy Efficient Home at an affordable price!
At Panelcraft, these Panels go through a special bonding process to create a Structural Panel far superior to using just the insulation by itself in a conventional frame building.
The material used for the insulation is called Polystyrene, the same thing that is used for styrofoam coffee cups. Not only does 1/16 of an inch of Polystyrene protect your fingers from being burned from the scorching hot coffee, it also keeps them dry!
Now if only 1/16 inch will do this, imagine what 4 to 6 inches will do in your home to keep the warm and the dry inside and keep the cold and the dampness outside!
Oh! By the way all you carpenters and do-it-yourselfers, etc., no more itching and scratching and coughing while insulating a house!
Panel homes have withstood earthquake activity where others crumbled.
If you would like to know more about Panelcraft and why SIPs are one of the fastest growing building techniques in the industry, call or write:

Sales, Earnings For Fiscal '97

Westvaco Corporation this week reported fourth quarter and audited yearend sales and earnings for fiscal 1997.

Sales for the fiscal year ended October 31, 1997, were $3 billion, 2 percent [illegible] Net income for fiscal 1997 totaled $163 million, or $1.60 per share, a decline of 23 percent from $212 million, or $2.09 per share, earned in fiscal 1996.

In the fourth quarter of 1997, sales totaled $783 million, slightly higher than the total for the same period in 1996. Earnings for the fourth quarter totaled $52 million, or 51 cents per share, a decline of 7 percent from the $56 million, or 55 cents per share, earned in the fourth quarter of 1996.

"We ended our fiscal year experiencing improvement in overall market conditions," said [illegible] Jones, [illegible] and [illegible] officer. "Demand for our saturating paper products and unbleached folding carton board. In addition, our specialty chemical sales continued to grow and our envelope business turned in solid results.

"We see good potential for higher demand in the coming years added Jones. However, business conditions will be subject to the global economic expansion as a result of the current economic turbulence in the Far East and austerity measures implemented in Brazil. We believe the Brazilian government's actions will promote long-term economic stability, and we are taking steps to position our Brazilian packaging businesses to deal with the current challenges."

Luke said the current market conditions underscore the importance of Westvaco's proven business strategy. "Our strategy is to be the preferred supplier in each market we serve by providing value to customers through differentiated products and services," he said. "Creating and selling value gives us greater financial flexibility to [illegible] our competitors when market conditions are most challenging while also positioning us for future growth."

Westvaco is a major producer of paper, envelopes, packaging, and specialty chemicals. The company owns 1.5 million acres of timberlands in the United States and Brazil and has manufacturing facilities in those two countries as well as the Czech Republic. International business accounts for 25 percent of Westvaco's annual sales.

BITTINGER

Joanne Buckel, Richmond, Va., and JoEllen Graham, St. Albans, W.Va., recently spent several days with Beulah Moon.

Ruth DiPaolo arrived home Sunday after spending a week in Altamonte Springs, Fla., with Lucille Ritter and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Henry. She also visited Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Sacra and Margaret Hatcher in Partlow, Va., and was a Saturday overnight guest of her brother, Donald Buckle, Madison, Va.

Kathryn Bowser spent last week with her sister, Mary Stephens, Bel Air.

Steve and Mary Ellen Presgraves, Bowie, and Matthew Stemper were Saturday guests of Ferne Beachy and the Stantons.

Beulah Moon attended the baptism of her grandson Jacob at Faith Independent Baptist Church in Frostburg. She spent several days at the home of her son, Jay Moon, caring for his family's children while he and his wife were on a short vacation.

John Moon, Ellicott City, treated his grandmother Beulah to dinner at Penn Alps to celebrate her birthday.

Margaret and Jim Wagner attended the wedding of Daniel Klotz and Staci Creech in Columbia, S.C., on Saturday. Also attending the wedding from the area were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Klotz and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cutler and sons of Grantsville. Margaret and Jim also visited the family of Donald Wagner, York, S.C. On their travels home they visited Michelle Geis in Blacksburg, Va., and Pat and Ann McLister and family in Frederick.

The biggest news around Bittinger this past week was the change from autumn to winter. Everyone was busy with final preparations for the long winter ahead, with tuning up the snow blower, moving firewood, and all the children trying to find their snow clothes. Many items were missing at the Sussman household, but in spite of that, the children, Claire and Caitlin Sussman, were busy playing in the snow and sledding with their cousins, Robbie, Blakely, Darrell, and Elliot Glotfelty. Matthew, Scott, and Emma Bass also spent time sledding with the Glotfeltys.

George Farmer, Baltimore, visited his daughter, Marci Glotfelty, and family several days this week.

Oakland Man Charged With Juvenile Rape

An Oakland man has been jailed on a $100,000 full cash bond for various sexual offense charges involving a 14-year-old Oakland youth.

Kenneth Lee Stinson, 38, was arrested by detectives of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office on Sunday, Nov. 23, and charged with one count of second-degree rape, four counts each of second- and third-degree sex offense, and second-degree assault and two counts of indecent exposure.

The charges stem from a series of alleged sexual assaults that occurred over the past five months.

In other sheriff's news, charges continue to mount against a pair of men arrested last in connection with a rash of residential burglaries of vacation homes in the Deep Creek Lake/McHenry area that occurred over the past two months.

Shawn Michael Blackwell, 21, Oakland, is currently held on a $150,000 bond and faces charges of 18 counts of burglary, seven counts of theft, and eight counts of malicious destruction of property. He has also been served with an arrest warrant from Morris County, N.J., charging him with violation of probation in connection with a burglary charge.

Blackwell's cohort, Kevin Alan Lipscomb, 19, Swanton, is held on a $100,000 bond and faces charges of 11 counts of burglary and eight counts each of theft and malicious destruction of property.

Both Blackwell and Lipscomb also face charges by the Maryland State Police in connection with recent breaking and enterings at the Maryland Minerals quarry where cash was stolen, and at the Deep Creek Ready Mix where a two-way radio and portable telephone were stolen.

The pair have reportedly confessed to their involvement in all the burglaries they have been charged with to this point.

Finally, on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 22, Charles Edward "Buck" Friend was arrested after deputies found him lying in the roadway on Crellin Mine Road, reportedly in an extreme state of intoxication. He was transported to the Garrett County jail and was subsequently released after posting a $500 bond.

HARVEST HOME - Many a family member will be headed home today as the Thanksgiving holiday commences. They will gather in the kitchen and talk and laugh, with the aroma of roasting turkey triggering recollections of meaningful moments gone past, and helping to forge new memories of family and of togetherness. The sight pictured here is a common one to those of us whose lives are lived in Garrett County, but to others, it is a rare and beautiful scene. How thankful we are to know it is but one lovely panoramic section of the place we call home. Photo by John McEwen.

Two Convicted Of Spotlighting Near Accident

Two men pleaded guilty in last week's Garrett County District Court to charges of spotlighting while in the possession of an implement capable of killing deer.

David John Schroyer, 41, of Sam Friend Road near Accident, and Stephen Allan Epley, 40, Glen Burnie, were each fined $250, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on three years of unsupervised probation. The pair also lost their hunting privileges for the next two years, and a .22 Marlin bolt action rifle allegedly belonging to Epley was forfeited to the state.

The charges against Schroyer and Epley resulted from their September 24 arrest by the Natural Resources Police (NRP), who had been alerted by concerned citizens via the Catch-A-Poacher Hotline. The pair had reportedly been observed spotlighting deer on private property in the Sam Friend Road area of Accident around 9:20 p.m., and were subsequently located by NRP at Schroyer's home that same night.

At that time both received the spotlighting citations and were also cited for hunting on private property without permission,

Bolinger Says Rotary Christmas Project Already "In Full Swing"

David Bolinger, Rotary Christmas Project chairperson, reports that the 17th annual project is "off to a fast start for 1997," and that extra effort is required this year because the number of families the project will serve is increasing by over 10 percent, he said. Working together with other county civic clubs and organizations, the Rotary club will "help to ensure a Merry Christmas" for about 450 needy Garrett County children and Christmas dinner for their families.

Over 30 businesses located in communities throughout the county agreed to sponsor a business site Christmas tree decorated with gift need cards for the children. These trees are now fully decorated with gift need cards and ready for patrons to take cards and purchase the items needed by the children. All gift need tags represent children who have been designated as in need by one of two local social services agencies.

"Garrett Countians have always prided ourselves on helping our neighbors who are in need," said Doug Riley, Oakland Rotary Club president. "Now these citizens can once again demonstrate that basic kindness for their less fortunate neighbors, known and unknown, by the purchase of these gifts."

Most local business participants are already reporting that generous local residents, as well as visitors, are removing the gift need cards and purchasing the requested gifts listed on each card. By December 17, all purchased gifts, with gift card attached, should be returned to the participating businesses and placed under the tree. That evening, Rotarians will gather the gifts and take them to the Oakland armory to prepare them for distribution.

Rotarians and other participating civic organizations and individual volunteers will gather at the armory December 20 and load the gifts and food to be delivered to each of the identified needy families. Rotarian Walter Donalson indicated that the goal this year is to deliver just over 30,000 pounds of donated and purchased food to these 450 families to provide each of them with a complete Christmas dinner. These dinners will include a turkey or ham, and all the usual foods needed for the traditional family Christmas dinner.

Bolinger indicated that there are "plenty" of gift need cards on the various trees throughout the county. For those persons wishing to provide monetary contributions in lieu of gift purchases, he said that they may mail their donations to: Oakland Rotary Christmas Project, P.O. Box 741, Oakland, MD 21550-0741. "Any donation, regardless of amount is sincerely appreciated and will go toward this worthy cause," he said.

Light-Up Night Slated For Town Of Friendsville

The annual Christmas decoration Light-Up Night will be held in Friendsville on Friday, Nov. 28, beginning at 6 p.m. at the town Christmas tree.

Treats for town children will be provided by the Friendsville VFD, the mayor, and the town council. Everyone is invited to join the caroling and greet Santa, who is scheduled to arrive during the evening's festivities.

Donations from businesses, churches, civic organization, and individuals have made it possible for the town to offer visitors a wider range of decorations. The town has purchased 18 new decorations for this season, adding old-fashioned lanterns and angels to the traditional town ornaments.

Spencer R. Schlosnagle, mayor of Friendsville, explained that he and council hoped to develop an atmosphere of an old-fashioned American Christmas.

The mayor and council will sponsor the annual Christmas decorating contest for town businesses and residences. Judging will occur during the third week of December. Awards in the business and residential categories will be: first place, $50; second place, $30; and third place, $20.

Anyone wishing more information may contact Sara Sines, town clerk, at 301-746-5919 on Tuesdays or Thursdays.

WORLD AIDS DAY TO BE OBSERVED - The Garrett County Commissioners have proclaimed December 6 as World AIDS Day and are urging citizens to support Garrett County's AIDS Council and community program to educate and "further protect themselves from this devastating disease," according to the proclamation. The Garrett County AIDS Council has organized, with the support of the community, a free community education program to be held Saturday, Dec. 6, at 7 p.m., at the Garrett Community College auditorium. The proclamation states,"Whereas, HIV/AIDS is a world pandemic affecting people of all ages, genders, and races" the Garrett County AIDS Council's mission is to provide the people of the area with "education regarding transmission, prevention and psychosocial aspects of HIV/AIDS, as well as counseling, testing resources and medical support." The council also strives to "assist and advocate" for HIV-positive individuals and their families living in Garrett County in an effort to enable them to remain self-sufficient in the community for as long as possible. Seated above, left to right, are the Garrett County Commissioners Wayne Wilt, Roger Glotfelty, and Gary Fratz. Standing, same order, are Debby Ward, Garrett County Memorial Hospital social worker; Joanne C. Harah, R.N., Mtn. GC Agency Hosts Regional Forum On Elder Abuse

Forty long-term care professionals as well as law enforcement personnel from Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Baltimore counties attended the "Challenges In Investigating and Prosecuting Abuse" Conference, sponsored by Community Action's Area Agency on Aging (AAA), held recently in Grantsville.

Speakers at the conference at the Holiday Inn included LaVerne Naesea, chief, client services and long-term care, Maryland Office on Aging; William Heise, chairman of Senior and Lawmen Together (S.A.L.T.); and Joseph Bostwick, patient abuse coordinator, Office of the Attorney General's Medicaid Fraud Control Unit.

Heise presented information on the role of S.A.L.T. in educating seniors in crime prevention methods. Naesea informed those present about legislation which has helped strengthen legal responsibilities of both reporting and prosecuting abuse cases.

"Highlighting the growing statistics of reported abuse, Ms. Naesea clearly demonstrated the need for continued aggressive actions, including legislation, to curb this unfortunate epidemic," stated Adina Brode, AAA director.

Bostwick described several victims in the 1,200 elder abuse cases he has prosecuted during his tenure with the office of the attorney general. "The victims are very frail, often confined to bed or wheelchair, frequently suffering from dementia and most certainly unable to protect themselves," he said.

Bostwick pointed out that most abuse cases occur when a caregiver does not walk away from a difficult situation and consequently loses control temporarily.

He stated that dealing with resistant and combative elderly patients is a very stressful job. Bostwick also identified the appropriate investigating procedures that should be followed by long-term care facilities and law enforcement officials in such cases.

Brode explained the mission of the AAA is advocating for the rights of all elderly, with special services provided for the frail and vulnerable. The AAA's ombudsman, June Heselbach, RN, is available to meet with nursing home residents and family members to resolve conflicts and problems.

For more information, persons may contact the AAA at 301-334-9431, ext. 140.

Food Poisoning Caution Issued, GCC Developing Honors Program

County staff leaders give monthly reports

Garrett County staff leaders met Tuesday with the county commissioners to give their monthly reports. Dr. Rex Archer, health officer for the county, issued an alert about food poisoning and noted an increase in the incidence of syphilis infections in the state of Maryland. Dr. Stephen Herman reported that Garrett Community College will soon have an honors program for excelling students, and also explained the development of an incubator facility for initiating small businesses.

The commissioners were also informed of the Garrett County Community Action Committee's forward movements in new housing in the county, the economic development office's involvement in December's Maryland Technology Showcase, an update on the completed and nearly completed projects of the Sanitary District, and other items.

Health Department

Archer opened the staff meeting with his report, first noting the 125th anniversary of the American Public Health Association and the 121st anniversary of the discovery that microorganisms cause disease. He linked this to the recent reports of a serious foodborne illness outbreak in St. Mary's County, where approximately 700 people became ill with gastroenteritis after consuming food served to approximately 1,400 people at a church's annual fall dinner. Those affected ranged in age from 12 months to 90-year-old individuals. At least 39 people were hospitalized and two elderly women died, according to Archer. The food that caused the outbreak was apparently stuffed ham.

Schedule Of Events Finalized For Old-Fashioned Grantsville Christmas

The line-up of activities for the "Old-Fashioned Grantsville Christmas" has been finalized, according to event chair Trish Morgan, administrator of Spruce Forest Artisan Village, which is co-sponsoring this event with the Greater Grantsville Business Association.

"The quaint, homestyle town of Grantsville is offering two days of old-fashioned hospitality and holiday charm to folks venturing into the frosty mountains of Western Maryland," Morgan said. On Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5 and 6, sojourners may visit participating businesses between 1 and 4 p.m. and enjoy complimentary refreshments, holiday music and decorations, doorprizes, 10% discounts on selected merchandise and services, as well as special activities in selected locations.

"For example, Dream Weavers and Spinning Wheel Antiques on Main Street will feature Grantsville artist Jo Ann Engle, who will be on hand to demonstrate the painting of gourd birdhouses," Morgan said.

"Jo Ann has been painting for nearly 20 years and has developed her hobby into quality craftsmanship," said Debbie Klotz, owner of Dream Weavers.

Visitors may also choose to participate in the "People's Choice" activity, which is where they may cast their votes for their favorite Grantsville business. Persons may only vote once per day and for just one business. Businesses competing for this award, as well as opening their doors for the "Old-Fashioned Grantsville Christmas," are: Beachy's Pharmacy, Braskey Law Office (Friday only), Butler's Carpet, Casselman Valley Farm Bed & Breakfast, Casselwood Furniture, Diehl's Ford Service, Dream Weavers and Spinning Wheel Antiques, First United National Bank & Trust (Friday only), The Floor Store, The Flowerloft, Four Seasons Stitchery, Good Scents Parfumerie, Grantsville Market, Grantsville Station, H & H Hardware, HairShapers, Herbs Etc. There is no charge for the children's photos, which are available from 1 to 4 p.m. and while supplies last.

At Spruce Forest Artisan Village on Old Route 40, Christmas in the Village will operate on Friday from 4 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, noon to 9 p.m. Highlights of this 12th annual event will include 1,000 candle luminaries softly lighting the pathways throughout the evening hours, 10 artisans at work in heated log cabins and restored schoolhouses, holiday music and decorations, storytelling, hands-on "cookie art" in the 1825 Compton School for children, bedtime stories under the Christmas tree, complimentary refreshments, doorprizes, raffles, and the "My Favorite Stuffed Animal" contest in the 1903 Village Church. Admission to Christmas in the Village is free, although tax-deductible donations will be accepted at the Village entrance.

The Village Church will also feature local entertainers in concert. On Friday evening at 7:30, visitors are welcome to come inside the newly-heated church and listen to the country gospel music of The Glorybound Singers. On Saturday at 6 p.m., Otto and Katie Ross will be on hand to tell a story about a special Christmas as seen through the eyes of a Polish woman living many years ago in Krakow. They will complement the story with banjo and accordion music throughout. "This story, as well as others they will tell, appeal to people from ages 10 to 100," Morgan said. Those coming to the storytelling session will also have the opportunity to join in with Christmas carols, both sacred and secular. Otto Ross has been playing music on the banjo, accordion, and guitar for more than 30 years. His main career is teaching math at Beall High School in Frostburg, while Katie Ross teaches French and Spanish at Braddock Middle School in Cumberland. While in college, she devoted a lot of time to the theatre, and in her teaching career, she has taught some drama courses.

Following the storytelling of Otto and Katie, the Glorybound Singers will return at 7:30 p.m. for an encore performance of their country gospel. A free-will offering will be taken at the beginning of each performance.

Delegate George Edwards has been invited to speak about the newly proposed route that he and state senator John Hafer have put forth for Continental One along the eastern border of Garrett County.

"I do intend to be at this meeting, if my schedule permits," Edwards said later.

CONHOG spokesperson Ken Bauer commented that his organization "strongly encourages all members of Continental One NAFTA Highway Opposition Group and any other interested folks to come with your questions and comments on this highway issue to help clarify details," he said.

There will be a question and answer period after Delegate Edwards speaks. Following the question and answer period, there will be a brief CONHOG meeting about pertinent topics and upcoming events. Drivers Warned Of Busy Holiday Highway Hazards

So far this year there have been eight people killed on Garrett County roads. With the coming of the Thanksgiving holidays and the opening of the Maryland firearms deer season on Nov. 29, Garrett County can expect an increase in traffic and hazardous driving conditions, according to a report from the Maryland State Police headquarters.

The report cites an increase in the number of social gatherings and consumption of alcoholic beverages over the holiday season that contribute to dangerous highway conditions.

To help reduce the risks to motorists in Garrett County and across the state, the MSP will participate in operation C.A.R.E. (Combined Accident Reduction Effort). Troopers will use radar, Vascar, and marked, unmarked, and covert patrol vehicles to respond to incidents of DWI, speeding, and aggressive driving on Maryland roads and highways.

The spokesman for the MSP noted that the consequences for arrest for driving while intoxicated include fines, incarceration in a penal institution, revocation of one's driving privileges, and attorney fees.

Police reports indicate that persons committing criminal acts are often found to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Citizens are reminded by police to avoid over-indulgence in alcohol and to eliminate drug use.

This is the first holiday weekend since Maryland's primary seatbelt law went into effect. Police urge everyone to "buckle up" when traveling in a vehicle.

There is a $25 fine for a traffic citation for failure to comply with the seatbelt law. The spokesman also noted the increased risk to those not wearing seatbelts should an accident occur.

Historical Society Benefits From Gift Of Leightons' Stock

The Garrett County Historical Society recently received a gift from Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Leighton of stock shares of First United Corporation to use for mortgage payments on its recently purchased museum building in downtown Oakland.

Donors and recipients both benefit from donations of stock certificates, bonds, real estate, or other appreciated assets, which can be either held or converted to cash. A 501(c)(3) tax-exempt organization such as the Historical Society can sell the stock at its current value and use the money for payments or renovations in accordance with its mission. The donor can avoid the capital gains tax on the increased value, may be able to claim a charitable deduction, and may realize a reduction of federal and state death taxes.

The Leightons' gift to the historical society is earmarked for mortgage payments on the Professional Building, which the society purchased in late December for $150,000 with a $10,000 downpayment and a mortgage of $140,000 with 8% interest. The amount of $50,000 realized from the sale of the former museum building was applied to the mortgage as well. With payments from fund-raisers and donations, the remaining mortgage amount due is $70,000. The fund-raising committee is actively seeking donations to make payments on the indebtedness.

Gifts to the historical society may also be given in a variety of ways other than the donation of appreciated assets. Among these are cash donations, memorials, pledges, life insurance and bequests in wills, and donations may be sent to Martha Kahl, 877 Fricks Crossing Road, Oakland 21550.

The Garrett County Historical Society is a county-wide organization, with a museum that displays artifacts from every part of the county. The society seeks help and support from its members, and from local government, businesses, civic organizations and clubs, and all people interested in preserving the history of Garrett County and its artifacts.

The museum also houses a growing genealogical library containing family histories, obituaries, death, birth and marriage records, census records, and voting records. The museum is also the depository for many old records from the Garrett County Courthouse.

Winter hours at the museum are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursdays and Fridays, and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., or later if necessary. Persons interested in special tours and hours can make arrangements by calling the museum at 301-334-3226.

ONE OF MANY WAYS TO INVEST IN THE COMMUNITY is to give a gift of stock to the Garrett County Historical Society, which is what Dr. Herbert Leighton, left, and his wife Dorothy did recently. The Leightons are shown presenting Larry Coener, president of the society, with a certificate for shares of First United Corporation to use for mortgage payments on the Professional Building in downtown Oakland, which houses the Garrett County Historical Society headquarters and museum. Charitable donations to the museum are welcome in any form at any time, and persons considering donating appreciated assets should consult with their tax preparer or attorney on tax matters. Two-Car Mishap In Grantsville Injures Woman

An accident at the intersection of National Pike and Chestnut Ridge Road last week resulted in injuries to one driver, a report filed at Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, stated.

According to the report, on Nov. 18, around 5:26 p.m. Pamela S. Lucas, 27, Grantsville, was southbound on Chestnut Ridge Road while Betty J. Durst, 21, Grantsville, was northbound on the same road. Durst allegedly attempted to turn left onto westbound Route 40, and failed to yield to Lucas.

Durst was taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was treated. No charges were filed in the incident.

DWI

Two arrests were made on Nov. 23 for driving while intoxicated: Brandon S. Baumgardner, 19, Friendsville, and Michael R. Scovitch, 20, Laurel.

Man To Serve 90 Days For Resisting Arrest

A 28-year-old Swanton man was handed a 90-day sentence this week by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin on a charge of resisting arrest, according to State's Attorney for Garrett County Lisa Thayer Welch.

Charles Alaric Craver pleaded guilty in September to the charge that stemmed from an incident last December at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. According to reports, Craver had requested a jury trial.

In other court news this week, 43-year-old Evelyn Virginia Bittinger, Accident, received a 30-day sentence from Judge Sherbin after being found guilty of possession of marijuana. According to reports, Bittinger and two other adults in her home were arrested by members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force after marijuana and drug paraphernalia were found throughout the Bittinger home when a search warrant was executed there on February 15.

Bittinger had entered an Alford plea.

Judge Sherbin also sentenced a Friendsville woman to 30 days in the Garrett County jail on a charge of harboring a fugitive.

Lesa J. Paugh, 28, pleaded guilty to the charge that was initially made in April after members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force observed her driving a vehicle out of Friendsville with Craig Stanton, who was reportedly concealed in the vehicle. At the time, Stanton was wanted on drug charges.

Task force officers had previously contacted Paugh in an attempt to locate Stanton and had warned her of the charges she faced if she assisted Stanton, according to the state's attorney's office.

Grantsville To Host Bloodmobile

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will welcome donors at the Grantsville fire hall next Monday, Dec. 1, from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

A spokesman said that the number of persons who donate blood during the holiday season always decreases, while the need for blood remains the same. Therefore, the ARC is hoping for a large turnout at the Grantsville visit.

The spokesman added that each unit of blood that is donated is tested, processed into components, and can be utilized to help three or four different people.

Persons who weigh at least 110 pounds, are at least 17 years old, and are in generally good health may donate blood every 56 days. The entire process takes about one hour.

Friendsville Lions Prepare, Deliver Baskets

One of the community service projects of the Friendsville Lions Club for many years has been the purchase, preparation, and delivery of holiday food baskets to Friendsville area families in need. Several members of the club and three other volunteers met this past week at the Sand Spring Church of God Fellowship Hall to assemble boxes, each of which contained every food item needed to prepare a complete Thanksgiving meal. The group assembled and delivered baskets to 82 area families.

"We take great pride in helping make the holidays brighter for these families," stated a spokesperson for the club, "and we extend our appreciation to the Sand Spring Church of God for allowing us to use their fellowship hall to assemble the baskets."

Support Local Business...

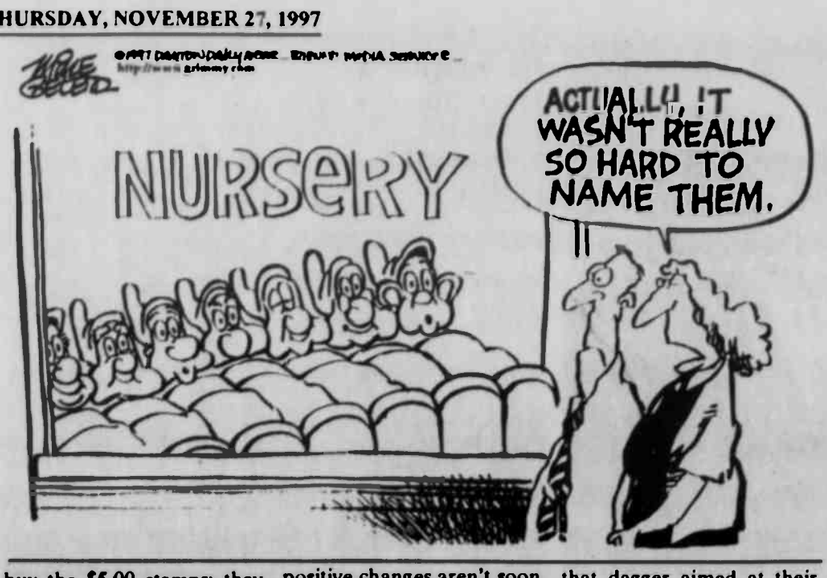
There's an advertisement being aired over local radio stations right now that serves as a great reminder about how important it is to shop iocaiiy as much as possible, especially during the gift-giving season. The ad features Ron Petrella, president ot the Mountaintop Soccer Association, who notes that at least 30 local businesses generously serve MSA as sponsors of youth soccer teams. He makes the point that these local businesses, which have demonstrated time and time again that they are willing to donate money back into their community, can afford to do so only if they have the support of local residents as customers.

Too often shoppers consider nothing but price when it comes to purchasing gifts. If an item can be purchased cheaper at an out-of-town mall, then that's where they go. There is no consideration for the value of their time, for the additional costs of making such a trip (lunch, gasoline, etc.), for customer service that may be far better locally, and most importantly, for the value of local businesses, which provide employment, tax money, and tens of thousands of dollars in financial support annually for literally hundreds of local non-profit entities, programs, and projects, all of which benefit our children, our neighbors, and ourselves.

It's true that we have harped on this topic in this column before, but there is today an even greater threat to local businesses: on-line shopping. Technology has made shopping so easy and so convenient, that one can simply sit down at his computer, get on the Internet at any time of the day or night, locate any desired item, and purchase it via a credit card, without so much as getting up out of the chair. It is both incredible and frightening.

So again, we implore local residents to purchase gifts locally as much as possible, and be willing to spend a little extra for some items. Those extra few dollars are indeed an investment that will be compounded and come back to the buyer in one way or another.

The abandonment of local businesses would ultimately result in the loss of those businesses, the loss of jobs, the loss of available goods and services, the loss of tax revenue, the loss of our towns, and, finally and literally, and the loss of the entire community.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

We are very concerned with the recent articles concerning Western Maryland's black bears. The biggest issue right now is not whether or not to hold a limited bear hunt, but how to ensure black bear damage incurred by local farmers can be reimbursed. Those who are concerned with the preservation of black bears have not come forward and bought the black bear stamps offered by DNR and, as a result, there are very limited funds to help reimburse Western Maryland's farmers for black bear damage to crops.

It is time to help both the farmers and the bears. Everyone should purchase at least one of the black bear stamps now. It is easy, and we at Deep Creek Beer Works are going to make it even easier. There are now three ways to help local farmers and the black bears: 1. Contact DNR and buy the $5.00 stamps; they make a great Christmas gift to show you care. 2. We are going to donate five cents for every Case of Deep Creek Gold and Youghiogheny Red sold and $2.00 for every keg sold; buy a beer and help a farmer and help a bear. 3. You can get a T-shirt with the black bear on the back and a black bear stamp by sending $19 to Deep Creek Beer Works, 318 Spring Glade Road, Oakland, MD 21550.

There may come a time when responsible, regional, black bear population management will be required, but we would like to support the black bear stamp program first. We hope you will, too. Our local farmers can really take a financial hit from black bears and they can't wait for a political resolution of this issue.

Thank you.

David and Lee Saba
Owners, Deep Creek Beer Works

To the Editor:

Since the primary right to educate resides with parents, I would like to ask our governing officials two questions: (1) Is it constitutional to tax its citizenry for pubhc education? (2) Is it just to limit the distribution of this tax money to only the state schools?

With the cost of education constantly escalating, the private schools are being priced out of the educational field, and if positive changes aren't soon m coming, you will have exclusively state schools. With our children being forced to attend state schools, the school authorities can forge any kind of society that is their pleasure by what they teach our children and they are doing it.

Our state schools today are anything but politically neutral. They continue to push the extreme left liberal line on our children. We have already lost several generations of children to the propaganda of the far left. Let us not lose this generation. One of the primary aims of our founding fathers in framing our constitution was to protect its citizenry from an oppressive national government. Our present exclusive distribution of tax funds to state schools enslaves rather than protects its people trom an oppressive national government by imposing on them one particular political point of view.

Parents of America, if you aren't aroused to anger and action by the attempt of the liberal establishment to force upon you a secular humanistic society, then you and your children deserve any tate that comes your way as a result of their actions. One of the laws of nature is that for every action there is a reaction. When will that slumbering giant, the American people, finally awake and deflect that dagger aimed at their heart? Are we so stupid that we will be complicit in our own destruction?

Yours truly,
Euchlich McKenna

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago a letter appeared in this column complaining about the Oakland mail service. On behalf of the Postal Service, I apologize for service that does not meet the service standards we have established and the incidents reported by the complainant certainly are not up to par. It should be understood that the Postal Service delivers 150 billion letters per year. As for first-class mail, nationally we deliver 92% of all that's within our standard times (1, 2, or 3 days, depending on distance/location).

However, I do not believe it is fair to place the blame for those incidents on the Oakland Post Office! The complainant mentioned getting mail from Oakland a week after it was mailed in Oakland. He also noted that sometimes he gets his Republican a week late as well, as it "must be sitting" around the Post Office. I can assure the complainant and the residents of Garrett County that any first-class letter mailed before 4:30 p.m. in Oakland to be delivered out of town begins its journey that night.

As for The Republican, all out-of-town papers never come inside this building; they are put directly on the outgoing truck from our loading dock and go to Cumberland by 7 p.m. Although the complainant mentioned bulk mailings, very few, if any, originate in Oakland and, depending on workload they may not be reviewed and sent to Cumberland on day 1, but always by day 2. It is the exception that bulk mail brought in by the 3 p.m. cut-off time does not leave that very night.

I am very proud of our staff here in Oakland, Mountain Lake Park, and Deer Park. With some of the most wicked weather in the country, they time and again deliver. It is unfair to hold them responsible for shortcomings in the system over which they have no control. In fact, based on our national performance over the past year, I suggest the problem may lie in incorrect addressing rather than poor service.

To the Editor:

This is to clear up any confusion that two errors in my Joe Camel letter last week may have caused. In the first paragraph I stated that it seemed appropriate to observe a moment of silence (and for some [not sore] of us a sigh of relief) for No Mo' Joel That was the theme of a mock, not Hock, funeral held in Baltimore for Joe Camel on the same day as The Great American Smokeout, last Thursday.

Unfortunately, the scanner didn't digest my choice of typeface very well. These things happen.

This gives me a chance, however, to put in a plug for a tax increase on cigarettes to be proposed in tne upcoming Maryland General Assembly. Now, before anyone suffers a "Maynard G. Krebbs" spasm to the words tax increase, please consider why a sizable tax increase should be considered and supported. This may be the best way to help stem the rise in underage tobacco use.

Thanksgiving Menu
by Melodee Hill

Hopefully on Thanksgiving Day people around the country will take a few minutes to reflect upon the joys of their life and be grateful for their bounty. With tongue in cheek, turkey in mind, and fork in hand, I went about counting my silverware, no, I mean blessings. I am most grateful for my immediate family, because without them I would spend countless evening hours reading the latest best-seller or watching made-for-TV movies. I would never know the joys of fruitless hours of searching for just the right brand, kind or color of socks, underwear, and size 54 jeans. I would never receive urgent phone calls at work from a clothing-impaired child informing me that the rag shop (known around here as the Hutton Mall), just got in a new shipment and wondering how soon can I leave work to search for size 54 jeans. Without them life would be like turkey without stuffing. Some other reasons I have to be thankful are:

- My extended family who are a source of jealousy and joy. Unfortunately, they live far enough away to make me jealous of people whose families are within reach, but thankfully, they live close enough for all of us to maintain close relationships. Our visits are like cranberry sauce--a bittersweet treat.
- Our friends who listen, even when what we say isn't making sense and who add perspective and balance to the craziness of everyday living. They are the mashed potatoes that sometimes come plain, sometimes with butter, and sometimes, if you're lucky, you get some with gravy.
- Computers and algebra that were invented to keep me humble. These are the peas that roll around your plate to make things interesting and to keep you thinking.
- Scissors and glasses, without which I would never be able to open any modern packaging or know the reason I need the packages open in the first place. They are the utensils that make the feast easier to eat and less of a mess.

Of course, like Tennessee Williams' Blanche DuBois, relying "on the kindness of strangers" is like the whipped cream on the pumpkin pie for me. A smile, a friendly word, or polite gesture just adds that extra sweetness to the mix.

Finally, I would like to give thanks for bungee-jumping and sky-diving; two things on the table like Brussels sprouts and lima beans, that I am perfectly content to ignore, or, if pressed can reply, "No thanks, my plate's too full already."

by Mary Sincell McEwen

I am thankful for Mr. Rogers and Blue's Clues, each of which generally secure about 25 minutes of quiet in our home as my two younger sons become mesmerized -- stopping the madness for a while. I am thankful for pizza, macaroni and cheese, spaghetti, peanut butter, orange juice, apples, and chicken, without which my children would spend a lot of time whining about what's for supper, and geesh, do I ever hate that whining business. I am thankful to my mother for playing the card game "Concentration" with me as a child because I am a veritable wiz at remembering where AWOL socks are located -- "Let's see," I say, examining one sock like a psychic. Then I screech -- "The other one's on the baby's changing table under his red striped nightshirt!" And I dash there, find it, and reunite it with its mate -- from now until washing day do they part. I am thankful that our son Alex, 3, can recite almost every word of Simon and Garfunkel's Cecilia and that he chooses to do so at random and when we least expect it.

I am thankful for living in Garrett County, where our commissioners rub snuff and rib each other while at the same time showing great wisdom and care, where the sister of a friend who is a cousin to your uncle has a stepdaughter married to a guy who delivers really good firewood, where my husband (and best friend) gladly moved and settled, and where it snows when it's supposed to.

And I'm thankful for the following conversation I truly had with my 5½-year-old son Robert two nights ago: "Mom, is there really a Santa Claus?" ("Yikes!" I think to myself. "It's happening!") "Well, it's fun to believe there is," I say, hedging. "Mom," he says, disgusted, "Is there really a Santa?" "Well, Rob, it's sort of like the spirit of Santa Claus --" "You mean he's a ghost?" Rob says, alarmed. "No, no. Look, Rob, there's no human being who could really go down every chimney--" "You mean he's an alien?" he shouts, his eyes wide. "No, no. Look, now that you've asked, you've become Santa, too. Mommy and Daddy are Santa, your grandparents are Santa, your uncles and aunts are Santa. Not Michael and Alex -- they're too little yet." "I'm Santa?" he says, wondering. "Wow." Pause. "Hey, I just burped. Huh. Santa Claus just burped."

by Peggy Santamaria

Sure, I'm thankful for many, many things. Some are huge and cosmic, and wonderful, like family, health, friends, and all. But some are small. Yes, very small.

There is, in fact, one such "gift" that comes to my mind immediately. It has had far reaching affects on my life, my sense of peace, tranquility, harmony. It has fostered in me a sense of control of my own destiny, and the ability to move forward with various undertakings, whatever the significance.

This blessing in my life, for which I am grateful, is our little caller ID box at home.

I know it doesn't sound like much right now, but since it has come into my home, I have not picked up the phone expecting to hear a loved one's voice and been turned to stone by the question, "Would you like to save money on your phone bill each month, Mrs. Sannna Maaarii?"

I am not alone, I know. Many of us have put down a knife and fork to answer an anticipated call, only to find AT&T, MCI, or whatever service is not currently subscribed to by the householder, on the other end of the phone. More and more frequently there is no one on the other end of those calls -- probably because, thanks to the world of electronic wonders, the would-be intruder has dialed up a dozen numbers at once and whoever answers first is the loser.

Several years B.C. (before caller ID) I did answer some rather interesting phone solicitation calls. My husband's surname is of Spanish origin. He speaks no Spanish. So it was always humorous to me that the caller from (fill in the blank) would often have a Spanish accent, or sometimes would simply launch into a torrent of Spanish.

These types of calls invade the tranquility of the home with annoying frequency, as we all know. They also come at such unacceptable times as 9:45 p.m. The idea that I would be amenable to refinancing my house in response to a phone call at that time is out of the question.

But I need fret no longer. Caller ID immediately flashes the warning "Caller Unavailable #888-888-8888." I can then simply reach over, pick up the receiver, and hang it back up. Call all gone! Tranquility prevails!!!

"THANKFUL FOR THE SILLY AND SMALL"

Giving thanks is serious business, and should be. Not thanking God and people is to take for granted all that is good and gracious in our lives. Not giving thanks is to live a life of entitlement, ultimately a life of selfishness.

Thanks that is not only serious but grave runs the risk of falling to the ground, victim of its own gravity. Gratitude should be graceful and gracious too, when they can be. Gratitude and grace have the same Latin root. They are, or ought to be, two expressions of the same thing.

In the hope of bemg sincere without being grave, I have been thinking about some of the silly and small things which grace my life. These are things which I am in daily danger of taking for granted, and are emblems of countless other blessings which I have not only taken for granted, but all too often do not even notice.

I am thankful, for example, that one of our cats--of disputed name, but whom I call "Merrylegs"--has a habit in cold weather of going up to our bedroom and crawling in between two comforters on our bed. I remember well my reaction the very first time I went up to our bedroom on a cold, winter day, and seeing a hump in the bed. Making the bed is one of my jobs, and I was puzzled because I usually smooth out even wrinkles, let alone humps. To say that I was surprised would be a drastic understatement when I tried to smooth out the hump. The cat leapt from between the covers, startling me and making me laugh.

I smile now when I see that hump in our bed. I know it is Merrylegs, making himself as comfortable as can be. I am glad that he does that. I am thankful he is such a silly cat. He gives me a smile at moments when I least expect one, and sometimes when I most need one.

I am also thankful that I live in an age blessed with two of the most wonderful inventions ever developed by mankind. I am not talking about the computer or automobiles or jet airplanes. They are blessings at times, but--at best--mixed blessings. No, I am talking about inventions which, having them, it is hard to imagine living without them. I mean, of course, duct tape and drywall screws.

There are few things that cannot be fixed with one or the other. My pick-up truck has been held together for months by duct tape, for example. It is the two-dollar solution to the two hundred dollar problem.

And drywall screws rush in where common nails fear to tread. Things that would be shattered by the hammering of a nail welcome a drywall screw painlessly. When I was working on the garage, I ran a lot of extension cord in order to get drywall screws in all the places that needed battening down.

It is hard for me to understand how the pilgrims ever made it through that first winter without duct tape and drywall screws. In fact, I sometimes wonder if they did have them, and that it is merely a fact which has been omitted from all the official histories.

Life is never easy even when life is good. Even when life is hard, it can still be full of wonder and delight if we let it be so. However rough life is, in order to experience goodness and beauty, all we have to do is let down the floodgates which we erect against them.

There is always occasion for gratitude. That is the lesson of the Pilgrim Thanksgiving. Many had died. All had suffered. In order to be thankful at all, they had to be thankful for small and silly things, even if they didn't have duct tape or drywall screws.

Three Sentenced After Pleading Guilty To CDS

Three defendants pleaded guilty in last weeks' Garrett County District Court proceedings to possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS), and each drew identical sentences for their crime.

Leo Mark Lasooy, 26, Roscoe, Pa., and Robert William Telegraphis, 25, Bentleyville, Pa., each faced charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia as a result of their August arrest after park rangers allegedly witnessed them both smoking the drug at a Swallow Falls State Park campground.

In addition, Ethan Hubersmith, 21, Frostburg, faced identical charges stemming from his August arrest by state troopers after being stopped for speeding on 1-68 near Friendsville. A vehicle search following the traffic stop uncovered a quantity of suspected marijuana.

Each of the three convicted men drew a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, fined $155, and was ordered to complete 30 hours of community service. Lasooy and Telegraphis were each placed on six months of supervised probation, while Hubersmith was placed on six months of unsupervised probation.

bation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Andrew Leonard Eiswert, 22, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), fined $355, and placed on one year of supervised probation. A PBJ ruling means that the case will not reflect a criminal record if the defendant complies with all the terms of his or her probation.

Thomas James Knotts, 27, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $355, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Willie Gibbs Friend, 45, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ, fined $300, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Carol Lorraine Moore, 22, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ, placed on one year of supervised probation, and was ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

and two .308 rifles were confiscated along with the .22 Marlin. The .308s were returned and the hunting on private property charge was dropped pending a 30-day appeal period as per a plea agreement made between the defendants and the state's attorney's office.

Concerned citizens are encouraged to call DNR's 24-hour Catch-A-Poacher Hotline at 1-800-635-6124 to report illegal deer hunting activity. Citizens who supply information leading to the arrest and conviction of a violator are eligible to receive cash rewards.

Read. Then Recycle.

Probation charges against each of the men were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office, as were possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges faced by Hubersmith's passenger in his speeding vehicle, Erin Shay Gutman, 20, Frostburg.

In other district court news, four men who faced a variety of assault and burglary charges stemming from a brawl at a Route 135 trailer in Mtn. Lake Park appeared in court.

The only conviction that resulted from the July incident was that of Jerry Wayne Gank, 23, McHenry, who pleaded guilty to one count of trespassing on posted property. Gank was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on six months of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 20 hours of community service. Additional charges of first-degree burglary, first- and second-degree assault, and a second count of trespassing on posted property faced by Gank were not prosecuted.

All charges faced by each of the other three defendants were not prosecuted. Michael Eugene Armstrong, 21, Oakland, was not prosecuted on charges of first-degree burglary and second-degree assault; Christopher Alan Glotfelty, 24, Oakland, and Shane Davis, 22, Oakland, were not prosecuted on charges of second-degree assault, third-degree burglary, and malicious destruction of property.

A fight between two 18-year-old men at Oakland's Sheetz station during the Autumn Glory festivities last month resulted in charges being placed on the stet docket for the pair.

Joel Justin Uphold, Oakland, and Robert William Gray, Swanton, could each have their stetted charges of disorderly conduct recalled for trial within the next 365 days if the court deems it necessary. Both men were also acquitted of charges of second-degree assault.

A charge of escaping from the lawful confinement of a police officer's vehicle after being placed there under arrest was not prosecuted against Timothy Wayne Hare, 26, Swanton.

A bench warrant charging failure to appear for traffic court was issued for the arrest of John Albert Harris, 60, Baltimore. A new bond was set at $3,000.

DWI & DUI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) sentences were handed down from the district court bench recently.

Robert Merle Gindlesberger, 41, Oakland, pleaded guilty to two separate counts of DWI and was fined $1,310, handed a four-year suspended sentence, and placed on three years of supervised probation. Gindlesberger, who the court identified as a repeat offender, is subject to six months of home confinement, with permission to leave only to travel to and from work, addictions treatment, and for his DWI monitoring.

Charles Thomas Warnick, 56, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $555, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

John Joseph Hovatter, 38, Friendsville, pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $155, handed a 60-day sentence, 30 days of which were suspended, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

James Lee Wells, 26, Amherst, Va., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $155, handed a 60-day sentence, 30 days of which were suspended, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Bonnie Ann Wilt, 37, Bayard, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $100, handed a 60-day sentence, 30 days of which were suspended, placed on one year of supervised prothe adverse health effects is important. But most of us surely realize that by the time kids are deciding to use tobacco, they have turned a deaf ear to almost anything adults say, especially when they can easily see so many adults using tobacco.

Also, Joe Camel or no Joe Camel, the tobacco industry has done an excellent job of pushing the image of smoking as cool in the movies and even back on TV. The industry has funneled millions of dollars into the entertainment industry to normalize the image of smoking. Joe Camel is no longer needed. Kids' role models are smoking by the hundreds.

Finally, kids help each other get tobacco.

Thus it would seem that the only language many kids might understand is dollars and cents.

If anyone has a better idea that would really work, please propose and develop it. Remember that in a few short years, underage tobacco users will be legal users and will likely use it around their own families and unborn babies, and the cycle will continue.

Let's stop it now, or at least slow it down. It's everyone's responsibility.

To the Editor:

Once again, the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays are fast approaching. Yet, this week, a sign outside Northern High School reminded me of another important area of our lives. The sign reminded me of National Education Week. Education is the basis of most civilizations. One generation imparts to the next the accumulated knowledge and beliefs of the past, along with anything learned by the current generation. Those people entrusted, empowered, and charged with that duty we call "teachers." A of us owe very much to their commitment to that duty.

By the time anyone reads the above words, Education Week will have passed. Yet, we should all remember teachers throughout the year. Get to know your son's or daughter's teachers. Be involved in your children's (or grandchildren's) education.

However, do not picture teachers as either miracle workers or the "quick fix" to discipline or other problems. Our society seems to be abdicating any individual sense of responsibility...it becomes always the other person's fault...or, it's no one's" fault, rather "society" caused the problem. We then look to teachers to solve these concerns. They are asked to solve all of society's problems within the classroom. We demand they handle a variety of concerns: handicapped children, discipline problems, learning problems ("slow" and "fast" learners both have their own challenges), prejudice, etc. All the things none of the rest of us (or our other institutions) can solve, we ask of our teachers.

Just remember they are "us." Teachers can certainly use whatever help a parent or other interested person can provide in insuring that homework is done, proper nutrition and sleep are followed, discipline is maintained, etc. I am sure that teaching can be a rewarding job, but all too often, the career is lost to burnout or escape up the ladder ot advancement ("out of the trenches").

During the approaching season of thanksgiving, visits to relatives and friends, reflection and caring, remember to tell your children's teachers that you appreciate their efforts. Along with parents and any church involvement, teachers have a great influence on young people. Be an active partner in education.

Sincerely,
John Neubert
Grantsville

STORIES IN MIXED MEDIA are demonstrated by Maria Barbosa, visiting artist at Southern High School. Barbosa recently spent 10 days working with SHS students and will return for another 10 workshops in the spring. Sonya Pratt, art teacher at SHS, said she interviewed various artists in Baltimore before selecting Barbosa. Her decision was based on the quality of work produced by the artist as well as the her unique media and presentation. "This is something the students hadn't been exposed to before," Pratt said. Barbarosa, whose work has appeared in solo, invitational, juried, and open exhibits, uses a broad variety of materials, including fabrics, stitches, wood, metal, and glass, together with poetry, prints, and photographs. Pictured above Barbosa works with Stevie Irvin, left, and Jason Alexander. Below, she advises on projects by Jessica Peck and Kristina Santos.

To the Editor:

"...To everything there is a Season, and a Time to every purpose under the heaven..." and under the vaulted cathedral ceiling of St Peter's Parish during the Ecumenical Youth Ministry concert last Saturday night. E.Y.M. groupies may have been initially disappointed by the many missing familiar faces of college-bound and other feature performers of the past, much like the missing loved ones at the Thanksgiving table.

Yet, clearly, this was a Time for the new kids on the block, who more than held their own without need of apology, maturing into seasoned entertainers after so many performances before thousands on the road. Without doubt, this was their Time to shine with the support of many new, younger, innocent voices, sowing seeds and gleaning experience for future presentations to come. If, in fact, it was their point purpose and Time to build up and gather up stones together, they truly succeeded in laying a firm foundation for themselves, developing nuances and strengths of many a rolling stone and obviously having a wonderful time at it. At one point, my wife gingerly touched my elbow and nodded at the group as if to say at the table, "Honey, just look at how the family's grown." And to think, all this in just the twinkling of an eye.

Feature soloists included Sara Sincell, whose confidence and ease as well as bold, developed voice stunned the audience as she sauntered past their pews, leaving the impression trailing behind her that she had truly come into her own. Next, Molly McGowan rendered her somber selection with the genuineness and poignancy of one way past her years in contrast to fun-loving Leah Broderick and Gina Powell, who found a Time to laugh during their song laced with warmth and mirth. Finally, reeking with suave bravado, Karlo Gesner knocked 'em all dead, blew open the roof, pumping up our hearts and leaving them knocking at heaven's door with his rollicking rendition of "Rain on Us."

With seemingly effortlessness, the entire group worked tightly as a whole, hammering number after number on the head and finding a Time to "get down and boogie" while loosening up listeners with all the pep and flamboyance of youth. The steady structure of the live accompaniment, featuring violinist Annie Neville, kept the group moving and synchronized on solid ground with concrete timing, harmony, and rhythm. Surely, director and music director, Lynn and Michael Broderick must be co-commandeers to pull it all off so gracefully and to steer these kids to know for themselves just what can be done together "If We Only Have Love."

Especially because music can be the direct route to the soul to glimpse the presence of God, this seems to be the particularly fitting Season and Time to give back thanks to so many young people who give so abundantly of themselves. Thanks once again, E.Y.M., for filling my cup. Now would you pass the turkey stuffing, please?

Gratefully yours,
Neil Leverenz

To the Editor:

Despite the desire of many to see Clinton impeached, he is not the greatest threat to this country. Nor is Saddam Hussein, or even Red China. NO, that dubious honor belongs to the liberal/socialist elitists, the self-anointed do-gooders of the left, who are, unfortunately, in control of the nation's news disseminating apparatus (all four major TV networks: ABC, CBS, NBC and CNN, including nearly all the major newspapers and news magazines) and other mass communication arenas such as PBS (TV and radio), mass entertainment generally, our schools, and colleges; and even our courts...as we sleep.

All this did not happen by chance, but rather by an orchestrated, incrementally imposed grand design beginning in the early 1930s by the same leftist mentality that had earlier validated and helped facilitate the spread of Communism. The Left historically moves with stealth and dispatch to: 1. control mass communications, 2. control education, and 3. liquidate (or demonize - as in the U.S. model) the opposition. There never would have been World Communism, had not the Left in the west anointed it a viable option. "The noble experiment," they dubbed it, as Socialism stood on the shoulders of classical Liberalism, and pointed the way to Utopia - which they all knew didn't exist. As a direct result, over time, more and more nations were enslaved under a totalitarian, Communist yoke and tens of millions of people were systematically murdered by their own so-called governments. But today, according to our leftist elite, such gross miscalculation should not even factor into considerations of the merits, or even the future intentions of the Left.

Now, modern day radical Liberalism is presenting a new face, under a touchy-feely cloak of caring, based on symbolism over substance where emotions predominate. It owes its very existence to the leftist controlled media in this country. It could not exist otherwise. And it is radically different from honorable, Classical Liberalism of the past in which I participated. It is now an amalgam of many of the worst components of all three leftist "-isms," e.g.: it celebrates government and groups, over the individual; it lacks, and even discourages, incentives; it advances its cloaked agenda incrementally using subterfuge rather than openness and clearly defined goals; it rewards

Northern Garrett Rescue Squad Marks Quarter-Century of Service

Men and women were digging into the scrumptious meal, food hot on the plates, when it happened again. In a scenario repeated countless times over the past 25 years, conversation fell silent as a call for help sounded, and the volunteers pushed away from the table as the call crackled over the tiny speakers, in motion even before the dispatcher's final words were spoken.

The Northern Garrett Rescue Squad (NGRS) celebrated its 25th anniversary recently with a banquet at the Grantsville Holiday Inn, and in an ironic twist of fate seemingly right out of a Hollywood script, a call came in for an accident with injuries just up Chestnut Ridge Road from the motel where the rescue squad was gathered. While coverage for the evening was being provided by a visiting squad from Allegany County, who was on its way to the scene of the accident, several members of the NGRS left the banquet to respond with the squad's truck, ready and willing to lend a hand to those in need.

Before 1972, emergency medical services were provided for the northern end of Garrett County, and the southern reaches of Pennsylvania, by the volunteer efforts of Donald and Ruth Newman of Newman's Funeral Home in Grantsville. Although one might think that the sight of a funeral home hearse pulling up at the scene of a medical call might give the patient a moment's pause as to where he may be headed, this was the way ambulance services had been provided for in many small towns and rural areas across the country for a number of decades.

"My husband Donald was an EMT," Ruth Newman recalled recently, "and we would take all the calls for medical assistance at our home around the clock, as William Winterberg had done up until the time we bought the funeral home from him in 1955. I would answer the phone, and Donald would run the transport.

"By 1972 the funeral home business had grown to the point where we just couldn't continue to properly handle the ambulance runs the way we wanted to," Newman continued, "so we worked out an agreement with the Grantsville Jaycees under which they assumed ambulance transport duties, and the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad was born."

In the years since that beginning, thousands of people in need of emergency medical care have been treated and transported by the NGRS, which has added stations in Friendsville and Accident to its original Grantsville station, covering an area that extends across a wide swath of the mountaintop. After initially running just over 100 calls in its first year, the runs taken on by the NGRS have increased to nearly 1,500.

The first class of 20 volunteers represented a cross section of Garrett County residents, as has each class since. The mechanics, farmers, merchants, secretaries, nurses, and housewives, among others, have given freely of their time, money, and efforts to ensure the safety of everyone in the community. Often more than one member of a family will serve, and will pass the service on to succeeding generations of the same family as well.

"Every single volunteer on both the rescue squad and fire companies has put in a great deal of time, effort, and even their own money for training and equipment," said current NGRS captain Barry Beal. "Each volunteer is a very special and unique person who deserves a lot of praise."

Jim Wilburn, a charter member along with Marvin Beachy, agreed. "Volunteers are special people. I looked out on the banquet room and saw a lot of us older folks who had black or brown hair 25 years ago who now have gray or white hair, or none at all. Those people, along with the younger ones now who are taking the load, all deserve a great deal of credit."

Behind every successful volunteer rescue squad is a supportive community, Wilburn added. "We've had a great response from the community over the years," he said. "Businesses and individuals support us with money, services, and time."

Ruth Newman, there before the beginning, praised the relationship between the rescue squad and the community, who serve and support each other. "The Northern Garrett Rescue Squad is very special, and the people of the county know it and appreciate that. The dedication of the volunteers who go out in the middle of the night, in terrible weather, without asking any questions, often staying out on calls for hours at a time, is really something. It's a very special and wonderful thing that people do for one another."

In quoting Abraham Lincoln, Beal summed up the philosophy of the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad, and all the volunteers who wear pagers or have a scanner constantly crackling on a kitchen counter or a coffee table in their homes. "Lincoln once said," Beale quoted, "'There is only one thing greater than making a life, and that is saving a life.' That sort of says it all, doesn't it?"

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY were celebrated by the Northern Rescue Squad with a banquet featuring speakers and numerous awards recently. Above, delegate George Edwards presents Danny Durst, last year's chairman of the squad's board of directors, with a proclamation from the state marking the event. "The rescue squad does a tremendous job," Edwards commented later. "They've helped my own family and countless families in a wide area. I wish them well for the next 25 years and beyond." At right are charter members Jim Wilburn, right, and Marvin Beachy. Below are 25-year members, left to right, Doris and Barry Beal, Mary Friend, and Terry Spear. Not pictured are 20-year members Hilda Wilburn, 15-year members Nancy Savage, Danny Beller, and Sam Friend, 10-year members Gary Teets, Bob Humberson, and Wayne Friend, and five-year members Keith Fisher, Dave McKenzie, and Walt Fearer. Although the rescue squad has many fond memories and many giving members, there is a greater need than ever for additional volunteers. Beal, Wilburn, and Edwards each pointed out that crew coverage is stretched very thin during the daylight hours, as many people in the community work at their places of employment throughout the day. "We're no different than other volunteer squads," said Beal. "We have only a few folks available for the daytime shift, and the risk of burnout is very high. If anyone is interested in volunteering to join the squad for the day shift, or any shift, please call us." Persons interested in more information about the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad can contact its Grantsville administrative offices at 301-895-5520 or speak to any current or former rescue squad member, who quite possibly could be a neighbor.

Olympic Bronze Medalist Carr Coaches Local Students In Life

"You don't know where you are going if you don't know how to get there. It's easier to say no to the wrong stuff if you know where you're going, [so] set your mark and never change course."

Elementary students, who will be grappling with the problems of life as they get older, cheered as they received this and other nuggets of sound advice recently from Nate Carr, assistant wrestling coach at West Virginia University and a bronze medal winner at the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

Carr spoke to students at Grantsville, Friendsville, and Accident elementary schools as part of Red Ribbon Week, which underscored the need to remain drug free by making correct choices. In his 30-minute pep talk Carr encouraged students at each school to be in control of their lives by following a few simple steps in making important decisions.

Crediting his family for teaching the lessons that have led to his success, Carr told the youngsters how his parents made him and each of his eight brothers and seven sisters feel special. Recalling how his father, a minister, would refer to the Bible teaching of God saying he put more thought into creating each human being than in the grains of sand in the sea shore, Carr brought home the point that each one of the students was special and unique, and they don't have to succumb to peer pressure to be like everyone else.

"Other kids can get you all pumped up to do the wrong thing so quickly that you can't think," Carr told his rapt audience, "[but] your head is at the top and it controls what is underneath. If your head tells you to stay away from trouble, then your heart will follow. Use your head to make important decisions and always try to do what's right," he said.

A three-time national collegiate champion wrestler while at Iowa State and the winner of numerous national and international tournaments, Carr now devotes much of his free time to talking to young students throughout the region about the tough choices they are faced with each day. He counseled his listeners to set proper goals and not to let anyone or anything stop or sidetrack them from reaching their mark. Especially important in the path to success, Carr said, is the need to make the conscious choice to remain drug and alcohol free.

Students were thrilled by the message of the star athlete and coach, and crowded around after each talk for autographs and a chance to put Carr's Olympic bronze medal around their necks. Carr left the students with the thought that "each person is special and to prove that point, God gave each one of us a different fingerprint."

Carr said later that he does this because he was given a chance to do his best by his dad, who always encouraged him to use his God-given ability. He said that he hoped he can plant a seed in each student's heart that "they are special too," and hopefully make a difference in their lives. Judging from the enthusiastic reaction he elicited from his young Garrett County protegés, Carr has met another goal that he set for himself.

Read. Then Recycle.

OLYMPIC WRESTLER NATE CARR was on hand at Grantsville, Friendsville, and Accident elementary schools recently, sharing his life experiences with students as part of Red Ribbon Week, which underscored the need to remain drug free by taking personal responsibility in making correct decisions and choices. Above, Carr, center, and some of his new-found fans at Grantsville Elementary display the bronze medal he brought home after representing the United States in the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea. At right, Grantsville's principal Dale Garlitz, left, is shown with Carr and Tim Watson, guidance counselor for the county's northern elementary schools.

Watson was especially thankful to Northern Youth Wrestling for helping sponsor Carr's inspirational visit. Below, Carr signs autographs for some of the crowd whose attention he had pinned for 30 minutes with his real-life stories and encouraging words.

Lakers Record Two More Wins To Up Season Record To 6-1

Despite the fact that most of the players on the Garrett Community College men's basketball team are freshmen, Coach Dennis Gibson and his squad are proving that they are among the teams to beat, as the Lakers recorded another pair of victories this past week and upped their season mark to an impressive 6-1. Garrett's only defeat this season was a one-point heartbreaker with Dundalk in the finals of the previous week's Rob Michael State Farm Insurance Tournament.

The Lakers' latest victims were the New Kensington Campus of Penn State and Frederick Community College. Garrett topped host New Kensington Saturday night, 67-54, and stopped the Frederick Cougars in a JUCO clash last night, 86-75, at McHenry.

Michael Fields and Jerome Adams paced the Lakers' scoring effort against New Kensington, as each recorded 18 points, with a dozen of Adams' total a result of three-point shots. Fields also paced the Lakers in rebounding with 11 and in steals with six.

The lead changed hands several times throughout the first half, which ended with the Lakers on top by just two points, 25-23. Then Garrett went on a 21-2 scoring run, with Adams nailing three of his three-pointers and Fields netting six points in the surge.

Eight straight successful free throws late in the game iced the win for the Lakers.

Leading New Kensington in scoring was Carlos Smith, who had a game-high 24 points. Dallas Kawai also reached double figures with 12 points, all scored with three-point shots. Smith also led his team in rebounding with seven and had two steals.

The Lakers finished with a 34-18 advantage in rebounds.

The win over visiting Frederick last night was considerably more important for the Lakers, as the Cougars came into the contest with a 5-1 record and considered among the better teams in the JUCO Conference.

Jerome Adams and Rob Wheeler had the hot hands for the Lakers, as each of them netted 24 points. Adams finished with five three-point shots, and also dished out seven of the Lakers' 19 assists.

The game included five lead changes and one tie before Wheeler paced a 10-2 run to give the Lakers a 45-40 advantage with 16:45 left in the game. Frederick held a 38-35 lead at intermission.

The 10-2 spurt gave Garrett the lead for good. The biggest margin of the game was a 67-54 spread at the 7:57 mark.

Also reaching double figures for the Lakers was Lionell Sewell, who netted 16 points.

"This was a huge win for us," Coach Gibson said, noting that preseason polls predicted that Frederick would be the third best team in Region XX Division II.

"Jerome Adams had an outstanding game for us," Gibson added. "They couldn't stop his outside shooting, which also opened up our inside game."

Pacing Frederick's offensive effort was Kevin Dixon, who recorded 21 points, including nine from long range. Ernest Hohnes finished with 15 points, Tabari Kyer netted 13, and Ebby Bynum added 11 points and five steals.

The Lakers will take a brief Thanksgiving break and return to action next Wednesday at Baltimore City Community College.

Southern Boys' Basketball Meet Squad Night Set

Tom Bosley, boys' varsity basketball coach at Southern High School, has announced that this Saturday, Nov. 29, will be the first Southern High Meet the Squad Night. Activities will get underway at 7 p.m. with introductions of this year's freshman, junior varsity, and varsity basketball teams. All three squads will participate in skills demonstrations and intrasquad competitions.

The junior members of the varsity squad this year are the first products of the Service Club Basketball League to make an impact at the high school level, so all members of this year's SCBL teams are invited to come celebrate this event. All Southern Ram fans, including those who wish to participate in the Sixth Man Club, are also invited to attend, free of charge. Next week's edition of The Republican will contain a preview of the varsity squad, including roster and schedule.

Laker Women Win By 26 In Season Opener

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team started their 1997-98 season with a 65-39 win over CCAC-Allegheny on Friday night. The Lakers dominated their opponents throughout the 26-point victory in Pittsburgh.

Mindy McCarty and Erica McBride scored 12 points apiece and Mary Walters added 11 points, along with nine assists and seven steals. McCarty was also strong both ways, contributing five assists and nine steals, and Andrea Barrick worked the boards well by pulling down six rebounds.

CCAC-Allegheny was led by Kathy Pflueger's 16 points, which topped all scorers for the night.

"For the season opener the team showed real poise," commented Lakers coach Ann Wellham. "Nine out of 10 of our players are freshman, so it was especially impressive that they were able to play so well as a team in their first game together."

GCC will host Frederick Community College on Monday night. "Frederick is a very aggressive and pressing team, and they're always tough in the region. We'll have to come out and apply pressure, control the ball, and most of all stay focused," Wellham said. Tip-off on the McHenry court is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Muzzleloader Season Yields Record Results

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin has announced that muzzleloader deer hunters harvested a record 5,385 deer during the recently completed early segment of Maryland's deer muzzleloader season. This total is preliminary, with the official results to be announced at the end of this year's deer seasons.

"Muzzleloader deer hunters continue a Maryland hunting tradition which began more than 300 years ago," Griffin said. "Maryland's early settlers fed their families venison and clothed them in buckskins. Hunters today continue to enjoy the nostalgia and challenge of hunting with these primitive firearms."

Ideal deer hunting weather covered most of the state during the Oct. 16-18 muzzleloader season. This contrasted with last year's season, which was hampered by poor weather.

The 1996 harvest was 4,134. This year's unofficial record topped last year's official harvest by 30 percent. The top five counties were: Washington (475), Garrett (430), Frederick (421), Allegany (379), and Dorchester (368).

This is the fourth year of the early three-day muzzleloader season. Muzzleloader deer hunting continues to grow in popularity, Griffin said, noting that the total number of days that all Maryland deer hunters spend muzzleloader hunting has risen by almost seven times in the past 10 years. More than six of each 10 Maryland hunters will muzzleloader hunt for deer this year.

The late segment of the Maryland muzzleloader season will open Dec. 20 and close Jan. 3, 1998. Muzzleloader hunters are reminded that new regulations this year permit telescopic sights to be used on muzzleloader rifles during the late segment of the deer muzzleloader season.

Muzzleloaders may also be used for deer hunting during the two-week deer firearms season, which will open Nov. 29 and end Dec. 13. Deer taken with muzzleloaders during the modern firearm season must be checked against the hunters' firearm season bag limit.

Muzzleloading rifles for deer hunting must be at least .40 caliber in size, be loaded with not less than 60 grains of black powder (or an equivalent of Pyrodex), and propel one all-lead, lead alloy, or copper soft-

THIS HANDSOME NINE-POINT was begged on Junior Hunting Day by Scot W.D. Kelley, a 15-year-old Gorman youth. "I had only been set up for five minutes when I saw two does come running upfield about 100 yards off," Kelley said, "then just after that they or another two does ran downfield. Right after that the buck came into view. I was kind of nervous when I first saw him." The buck, which Kelley took on his grandfather's farm near Gorman, checked in at 166 pounds at the Backbone Mt. Sport Shop. A DNR spokesperson said that this year's junior hunt in Garrett County resulted in an unofficial take of 307 bucks, almost twice that of the 1996 junior hunt.

POTOMAC RIVER ENDANGERED

The Potomac River has been named as the seventh most endangered river in the country by American Rivers, a national river conservation group. According to a news release from American Rivers, some of the cause is the expansion of the poultry industry and cattle feedlots in the headwaters. They also point to a proposed residential and commercial development, Chapman's Landing, in Charles County. The rivers selected for the endangered list, according to the release, are representative of environmental problems placing rivers throughout the nation at risk.

Rebecca Wodder, president of American Rivers, said, "Because these problems are the result of our collective actions as opposed to any single action, they threaten our rivers with death by a thousand cuts. Despite its discouraging picture, the list is meant to convey an underlying message of hope. (That is) we stand a chance of saving, protecting, and restoring one of the country's greatest assets."

This year's most endangered river is the Missouri River. Other endangered rivers include the Hudson River (N.Y.), the White Salmon River (Wash.), Mill Creek (Ohio), the San Joaquin River (Calif.), and the Wolf River (Wis.).

HUNTING UPDATE

Saturday, Nov. 15, was youth hunting days here in Maryland, whereby hunters with a junior license (or under 16 and exempt from a license requirement or holding a nonresident license) accompanied by a licensed, unarmed, hunter over 21 could take a whitetailed deer, antlered or antlerless. Two young hunters meeting success were 7-year-old Nathan Stevens, who bagged a button buck, and 8-year-old Glen Jenkins of Glenbury, who bagged an eight-point.

Adult hunters deserving of recognition are smokepolers Lloyd Beachy, who tagged a 165-pound eight-point with a muzzleloader, and Milton Yoder, who tagged a 137-pound eight-point. Also, Nathan Petersheim tagged two bucks with a bow in the Pleasant Valley area, a six-point and a spike.

The regular rifle season for whitetails opens this Saturday.

NEW FISHING REGS

New fishing regulations originally scheduled to go into effect at the beginning of the year actually took effect on Monday, Nov. 17. Local waters affected are the delayed harvest trout fishing areas on the North Branch and Casselman rivers. In these areas, the dates during which harvest is allowed are changed. Specifically, only artificial lures may be used and no harvest is allowed from October 1 through June 15. June 16 through September 30, there are no bait restrictions and the daily trout creel limit is two fish.

GARRETT COUNTY TRAILS GUIDE AVAILABLE

The DNR announced the publication and availability of the Garrett County Trail Guide, designed for the hiking or biking enthusiast or anyone who enjoys exploring the State Forest and Park System. The pocket-size guide provides a brief history of the area and historic points-of-interest. The trail guide was developed cooperatively by local citizens, representatives from the Adventuresports Council, the Garrett County Office of Tourism and Economic Development, and DNR staff. The guide is free and may be obtained at Deep Creek Lake State Park headquarters (301-387-4111), Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Park headquarters (301-334-9180), the Potomac/Garrett State Forest headquarters (301-334-2038), and the Savage River State Forest headquarters (301-895-5453). Free copies are limited to one per person or family.

NRA ASSISTS MARYLAND'S HUNTERS FOR THE HUNGRY

The Friends of the NRA have allocated funds to help offset the cost of processing venison donated to the Hunters for the Hungry movement. The movement began in 1991 as a cooperative effort within the hunting community to distribute venison to those in need. Last year, sportsmen donated over 10 tons of meat to state homeless shelters, soup kitchens, and food banks. Since 1992, roughly 31 tons have been donated to the program.

The program works as follows. Until allocated funds are exhausted, a hunter donating an entire deer during the firearms season will not be required to pay a processing fee while a deserving charity in that county will receive the venison to feed local families and supplement soup kitchens. The participating processor will store the meat until it is picked up for distribution. Anyone wishing to provide financial support should contact NRA's Phil Roath at 410-228-6575.

DON'T PUT THAT FLY ROD AWAY, YET.

Fishing on area rivers remains quite productive, despite the recent taste of winter. The Yough has been up a bit and that means more water to fish; and, there has been good steady flow on the North Branch. Success on each of these will most likely come from fishing deep with beadheads, bitch creek type flies, and streamers. The recent fall stocking has given new life to the Cassehnan and the Savage has been productive when the weather has cooperated. Again, fish these deep with wooly buggers, sculpins, or those mentioned above.

Hunters For The Hungry Receive Boost From NRA

Maryland's hungry will benefit from a new partnership forged between the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the National Rifle Association (NRA).

Recently, DNR and NRA signed a memorandum of understanding that will help offset the cost associated with preparation of donated deer. Maryland's Hunters for the Hungry movement began in 1991 as a cooperative effort within the hunting community to distribute venison to those less fortunate. Since that time, sportsmen have given thousands of pounds of meat to state homeless shelters, soup kitchens, and food banks. Since 1992, roughly 31 tons of meat have been donated to the cause. Last year, a combined total of more than 10 tons of meat were given to those in need.

"NRA's support of our state Hunters for the Hungry program helps ease hunger starting in our own backyard," said Joshua Sandt, director of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division. "Every deer donated to the program provides, on average, an additional 50 pounds of meat for those in need. Our goal is in step with the national program, which is to make effective use of fall deer harvests and promote the positive aspects of hunting."

But as donations from hunters multiply, processors are forced to turn away thousands or more pounds because of large-scale meat processing. "This is where conservation groups like NRA can work together to ensure these venison distribution programs do not fall victim to their own success," said Craig Sandler, executive director of NRA General Operations. "The NRA and Maryland's DNR commend the efforts of the many hunters who have made a significant impact in helping the hungry.

"Sportsmen have presented a practical solution to fighting hunger," Sandler added, "and the NRA stands ready to do its part by helping to address the program's financial and promotional burdens to continue providing for hungry families who would otherwise go without."

The program will work as follows. Until allocated funds are exhausted, a hunter donating an entire deer during the firearms season will not be required to pay a processing fee. A deserving charity in that county will receive the venison to feed local families and supplement area soup kitchens. Also, those hunters who are paying for deer processing for their own consumption may donate a portion of their venison to the program. The participating processor will store the meat until it is picked up for distribution to Maryland's hungry.

Charitable contributions are the only funding source of the program. Individuals, sportsmen's groups, and businesses are encouraged to participate by making donations. The Friends of NRA provided the initial funding with a grant of $2,000.

Those wishing to offer financial support may contact NRA's Phil Roath at 410-228-6575 or Doug Wigfield, of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division, at 410-543-6595 or on the world wide web at wigfield@shore.intercom.net.

Md. Showcases Dynamic World Of Technology

The new and expanded Maryland Technology Showcase--one of the most significant technology events in the Mid-Atlantic region--opens a two-day run on December 3 at the Baltimore Convention Center. With an expected attendance of 8,000, the showcase is an opportunity for citizens, students, and professionals alike to see the latest advances from the dynamic world of technology, according to a spokesperson.

A wealth of workshops, displays, and more than 300 exhibits will highlight the third annual showcase--a wide-ranging, high technology fair that promotes Maryland as one of the nation's leading "tech-friendly" states, as well as an innovative promoter of electronic government. The event runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on December 3 and 4. While the showcase is free to the public, admission registration is required.

"The showcase will feature some of the most advanced technologies ever assembled for information-seeking citizens, educators, and information technology experts," said Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening. "Showcase visitors will have educational opportunities that will help broaden their understanding of virtually every aspect of today's information technology world."

"As visitors walk the showcase floor, they will learn why Maryland is uniquely positioned to capture the high technology end of the nation's economic growth," said Glendening. Cutting-edge solutions for small to large businesses will be demonstrated by local and national exhibitors.

State agencies will demonstrate how the application of information technology will improve citizen access and customer-friendly delivery of government services, while the Tech-Path area will feature technology career opportunities and candidate recruitment. Also featured will be a state-of-the-art Education Pavilion, an Advanced Library Media Center, and over 300 exhibits. Additionally, Maryland Public Television and Public Broadcasting (PBS) are partnering for a "living room" demonstration of the new High Definition TV.

Industry leaders featuring state-of-the-art products, services, and solutions will provide hands-on demonstrations, presentations, and seminars. Many of Maryland's finest educational institutions, along with the nation's top providers of educational products and services, will demonstrate advanced technology for every facet of learning from K-16 through continuing education.

"The future of Maryland is on display at the showcase," said Major F. Riddick Jr., the governor's chief of staff and acting chair of the State Information Technology Board. "This is an opportunity to obtain information through hands-on demonstrations and educational seminars. Additionally, visitors to the showcase will see how Maryland and the nation are aggressively moving forward to be competitive on the technology front."

The showcase will run daily parallel programs for more than 1,600 teachers and students from around the state to demonstrate how technology instruction can be integrated into the traditional curriculum to equip tomorrow's leaders with the skills they need to succeed in the 21st century.

Platinum sponsors of the Maryland Technology Showcase are AT&T, Andersen Consulting, IBM, and Lockheed Martin.

More information and advance registration may be accessed by visiting the showcase website at www.mdtechshowcase.com.

dependency and penalizes industry; it does not debate issues, it demagogues them and demonizes its opponents in the process - those who disagree are not merely in error, they are in sin, and perhaps, worst of all, it does not trust the people it supposedly represents, and even tries to disarm them, despite the Constitution! Not at all uncommon when the left is in control of our critical institutions - and our national leaders act more like felons than statesmen.

To the Editor:

Is this proposed freeway Corridor H or I-219? Is it local access or International Trade Corridor? It appears to be whatever the politicians and proponents say it is to suit their purpose. I applaud C.A.R.E. for the voice they bring to this controversy and I appreciate Representative Bartlett's willingness to take this idea elsewhere if we so choose.

W.Va. Governor Underwood's endorsement of the 219 concept and its link to Corridor H truly reveals the absurdity of the proposal, and should spur the public to aggressively dismiss this concept as the boondoggle pork it is. The geometry of a freeway that goes from Garrett County to Elkins, W.Va., and then goes west via Corridor H back to I-79 is a joke of monstrous proportions. Must we spend billions to cut a corner and perhaps save 20 minutes? Last time I checked, I-79 was conveniently located just west of Garrett County on I-68 (and I-79 southbound is also easily accessible from Toronto via I-90 at Erie, Pa.).

To get to Elkins from here, this freeway must traverse the Shavers Fork of the Cheat River from Elkins to Parsons, W.Va. The Cheat River is the largest uncontrolled watershed in the east, and the Shavers Fork of the Cheat is one of our country's great pristine areas and trout fisheries. Freeway construction in these rugged mountains is astronomically expensive and requires earth and mountain moving on a frightening scale.

The 1,000,000-acre Monongahela National Forest in West Virginia truly is the birthplace of rivers, and one of the last great strongholds of unbroken eastern woodland biosphere. The Potomac, the Cheat, the Greenbrier, the Gauley, the Elk, the Cherry, the Williams, the Tygart, and many more rivers find their beginnings high in these mountains. All these rivers fan out like fingers in every direction to supply countless communities with water. This national forest region of the Mid-Atlantic is a Watershed Protection Zone and is fulfilling its federal purpose by protecting the critical headwaters of these rivers. The National Forest Program was enacted to reforest and protect the Appalachians after devastating logging created massive floods that inundated the coastal cities for years. Garrett County is also a region with critical headwaters, including the Casselman River flowing to central Pennsylvania, the Youghiogheny flowing north to Pittsburgh, and the North Branch of the Potomac eventually flowing to Washington, D.C.

The Mid-Atlantic Appalachian Region must be permanently protected as a drinking-water supply and one the last great tracts of undisturbed natural biology and fresh water resources. Once the asphalt is in, all the associated environmental impacts and permanent damages created by development are inevitable. This critical life supporting resource will be destroyed forever.

Perhaps similar to that of the Roman Empire, our downfall might be brought on by an over-indulgence of creature comforts and lack of concern for the carrying capacity and protection of natural resources. What an epitaph for our existence--"Here lies the Human Race, buried in strip malls, sewage treatment plants, trucks, cars, burger joints, subdivisions, gas stations, traffic, hazardous spills, toxic chemicals, foul air, and convenience stores. I believe that we will suffer the consequences if we destroy our sensitive headwater regions. However, this time it will be impossible to fix by planting a few billion trees.

Some letters to the editor have said that "emotional opinions are counter productive." I say, let's get mad, let's get emotional, let's listen to our hearts. There can be no compromise. We must hold sacred and protect what is a region of life-giving rivers, remote forested mountains, and wild creatures. Our children's children's children's children will thank us for our foresight. This Eden we protect will have a priceless value to humanity if we can save it.

Sincerely,
Crede Calhoun

To the Editor:

Over the past several years, the Congress, the Clinton Administration, our state and local governments, and Western Maryland community-based organizations like Family Crisis Resource, Inc., in Cumberland, the Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault Resource Center in Oakland, and Citizens Assisting and Sheltering the Abused in Hagerstown have taken enormous steps toward eradicating the scourge of domestic violence--a scourge that for too long had been ignored as a family problem outside the scope of government responsibility.

Congress's passage of the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), as part of the 1994 crime bill, which I strongly supported, and the wide variety of enforcement and prevention grants available under that legislation, have helped to ensure that our federal, state and local authorities have at their disposal the resources and legal authority needed to educate our citizens about domestic violence, and to prosecute those who have chosen to engage in such reprehensible conduct. The administration's development of informational initiatives, such as the toll-free nationwide domestic violence hotline (1-800-799-SAFE) and a Violence Against Women information home page, have buttressed Congress's efforts, and provided law enforcement officials with a direct link to those who need assistance.

The State of Maryland has been a beneficiary of the Violence Against Women Act, with more than $400,000 in federal grant funding being directed our way to assist in identifying cases of domestic abuse, safeguard victims, and respond to incidents of domestic violence in local communities.

The federal authorities in Maryland have been no less vigilant in their efforts to combat domestic violence. The Maryland congressional delegation was recently briefed by the U.S. Attorney's office on their activities in combatting domestic violence, which have included the development of a specific training program for prosecutors; the production of a manual on the Violence Against Women Act for local law enforcement and community groups; and the prosecution of only the second interstate stalking case brought under the VAWA law.

Even though strides have been made, we still have a long way to go before domestic violence is evicted from our homes and communities. Last year alone, almost 4 million women were physically abused by their husbands or boyfriends. Women continue to be the victims of domestic abuse more frequently than they are victims of burglary, muggings, and all other physical crimes combined. The damage done by such abuse extends directly to the most vulnerable in our society--our children--who are subject to abuse in 75 percent of the cases in which their mothers are subject to abuse.

So while October was recognized as National Domestic Violence Awareness Month, no month should go by without our attention to this issue. Domestic violence is directly contrary to the community and family values we hold most dear, and its eradication should continue to be one of our most pressing national priorities.

Sincerely yours,
Paul S. Sarbanes
United States Senator
Washington, D.C.

To The Editor,

Have you ever heard the expression that history repeats itself? I never thought much about it until this past year when plans were made and carried out to take our children and place them into other schools again. These schools are already crowded, and to take our children and stuff them in among the other children is ridiculous. I'm sure that those other schools feel the same way that we in Aurora feel.

Here is my story. Back in the late 70s, the Board of Education got the bright idea to start taking our high school children to another school (Terra Alta). I have five children. Four of them graduated from Aurora. The fifth one had to be bussed to Terra Alta and graduate from that school (1979). There was a big fight from all the parents in Aurora to make the Board of Education leave our school alone, but in the end the Board of Education won out. Buses were stopped and people were arrested, but it was no use. The children were taken to the other schools.

The next thing that happened was a tragedy Our Aurora school burned down. I'm sure everyone will remember that night. After that night, the children were taken anywhere that the Board could find for them. The children finished the year at the Aurora Memorial Building. The following year the children were bussed to Albright, and the following year to Terra Alta. Our community fought hard to raise enough money to build a new school and to get our children back. We had all kinds of fund-raisers. We even held a rally, which Governor Caperton

MORTAL KOMBAT: ANNIHILATION

Rated R - Running time: 1:30

Usually, sequels are not as good as the original. There are occasional exceptions to this rule, such as Aliens, The Godfather, and the original Star Trek movies, which all got better before they started getting worse. But this is an example of a sequel just as terrible as the first movie: same stuff, different day.

Just as in Mortal Kombat (the original), we learn that a video game does not a movie make. Cheesy, fake, martial-arts-type fighting between humans and quasi-Greek godlike creatures, with about as much plot as a porn flick. Robin Shou reprises his role as Liu Kang, who has to save the world -- again -- armed only with his fists, his feet, and the invisible wire tied to his belt loop. Along with his friends Katrina (Talisa Soto), Jax (Lynn Red Williams), Sonya Blade (Sandra Hess), and Rayden (James Remar), he fights, thinks, fights, argues, fights, reasons, fights, postures, and fights. And we suffer through his second journey toward the "Mortal Kombat," the contest that is going to save the world (and all of us unsuspecting chumps in it) from the evil Shau-Kahn (Brian Thompson). Although there are some clever computer-generated effects, there are others that are so half-baked they are laughable, and any attempt at reality of story is hopelessly muddled in cyber-bytes. Liu Kang's struggle between his confidence and his sense of revenge is just as shallow as ever, and underneath all the snarling and maniacal laughter, there isn't enough acting to shake a stick at. Also, Shou and Soto are the only returning actors, although all the characters are the same. That should tell us something.

You know, we don't expect martial arts movies to be Oscar winners. We can excuse Jackie Chan and Chuck Norris for bad plots and bad acting, if there are at least some cool fights. But even the combat is lame in this series. I mean, the Power Rangers are more believable than this! And at least they have a little characterization. There is no characterization here except anger and arrogant bravado.

I mentioned porn earlier, and that is one noticeable difference between the original and the sequel: this one is a lot sexier! Not surprising, since the movie is obviously aimed at teenage boys. There are spandex bodysuits and leather bustiers galore, lots of girl fights, and even a mud-wrestling scene! Lap it up, guys. ★

THE RAINMAKER

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:20

Americana have a love-hate relationship with lawyers. We're annoyed by their TV commercials, but we thank goodness they're there if we need them. It is this conflict of emotions which is illustrated in Francis Ford Coppola's movie based on the novel by John Grisham, who has turned out many law-related thrillers lately, such as The Firm, The Pelican Brief, and The Client. This is a movie where the "good guys" win, but one still feels like crying at the end. Why is this?

It's because nobody really wins. Grisham and Coppola (who also adapted the story for the screen) attempt to show us a piece of life, and though the lesson is a bit heavy-handed at times, it does capture the fact that things just don't always work out perfectly in the end.

The story centers around Rudy Baylor (Matt Damon), a young lawyer in Memphis who struggles to compete in a world of greed and corruption, alongside his savvy colleague of questionable integrity, Deck Shifflet (Danny Devito). In the three cases he's working on, Rudy involves himself very personally, and teaches his lawyer-suspicious clients that there are some honest ones out there. The principal case is that of the Blacks, a poor family suing a huge insurance company called Great Benefit. The company denied their claim for a bone marrow transplant for their adult son Donnie Ray (Johnny Whitworth), who is dying of leukemia. While he is working on this case, Rudy meets Kelly Riker (Claire Danes), a woman who is regularly being beaten by her alcoholic husband (Andrew Shue). And he rents an apartment from another client, a rich, elderly woman (Teresa Wright) who wants to cut all her children out of her will in favor of a TV evangelist.

There is some excellent acting in this film, notably by Mary Kay Place, who plays Donnie Ray's mother; and Red West, as his mentally challenged father. Place's exasperation turns to rage and finally to bitterness as she tries to do what's best for her son, aware that a legal battle is exactly what he doesn't need. The Great Benefit company is represented by Leo F. Drummond (Jon Voigt), a smarmy, high-priced attorney who looks at Rudy as a very small threat. Voigt's oily charm is unsettling.

The hurdles cleared by Rudy are not exactly insurmountable. It is made to look like he is struggling against all odds, but the only real challenge is that he's a young, inexperienced lawyer against an F. Lee Bailey type. It might have been a little more believable if the company were not so obviously guilty, filled with corruption from the top on down. Another problem with the movie is the sometimes ridiculous name symbolism. A major insurance company called "Great Benefit" seems a little corny to me, as does a shady lawyer named "Deck Shifflet," and a woman who is looked on by her insurance company as insignificant, named "Dot Black." I mean, come on. Also, for a serious film, there are some silly elements, such as the old "bumping the patient in traction" gag.

Still, Damon's inept-but-honest style is charming, and there is enough real-life tension to keep us interested. Devito does an excellent job as a "paralawyer" who sees dollar signs in the face of every accident victim, and Danes is chilling in her various methods of dealing with her abusive husband.

If this is a movie about the fact that life is not black and white, some of the characters are a touch stereotypical. And if it's a movie about good versus evil, some viewers may feel cheated out of a proper resolution. But it's still worth a look if only for some really excellent acting. ★★★★

Myers Residence To Be Featured In ARC Tours

MYERS HOME ON ARC HOLIDAY TOUR - The Deep Creek Lake home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas Myers Jr. will be included on the annual American Red Cross "Home for the Holidays" tour. The five-house tour event will be held Friday, Dec. 5, from 4-9 p.m., and Saturday, Dec. 6, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. The home was designed for Mrs. Myers, the former Karen Spiker, by architect Philip Silkey, and is located at 23 State Park Road, adjacent to the Glendale Bridge. See story.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas Myers Jr. will be included in the American Red Cross (ARC) "Home for the Holidays" house tour. The house is an original design by architect Philip Silkey and was built over a 14-month period in 1994-95. It was constructed upon the site formerly owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Fulcher "Pete" Smith. Smith was an "early naturalist who loved the natural phenomena of rock layers, cliffs, and crevices," according to an ARC spokesperson. These outcroppings are laced with rhododendron and mountain laurel as well as tall hemlocks.

The new home was designed to utilize the existing foundation and the ground floor area of the Smith residence which complimented the "unusual and spectacular" rock formations and stone walkways that encircle the home, said an ARC spokesperson. The house's innate beauty comes from the use of stone and woods found naturally all around the Deep Creek Lake area.

The home was designed for Mrs. Myers, the former Karen Spiker, owner of Mountaineer Log & Siding Company. She had specified a design that would serve as the permanent base for her family at Deep Creek Lake. It has three master suites, designed to provide adequate accommodations for family members who return home from college with friends, and then later with grandchildren, said Myers.

The home was constructed under the guidance of the solid log Mountaineer Log & Siding Company. Nearly all of the wood used was manufactured by Mrs. Myers' father, Gene Frazee, at his Inter-State Hardwoods mill in Bartow, W.Va. Those wood and lumber items include the solid log walls, rough sawn exposed timbers, framing materials, oak hardwood floors, oak interior doors, solid tongue-and-groove paneling of red oak and basswood, oak stair treads and risers, and custom oak trim.

The home contains three stories -- the lowest level being the original "footprint" of the Smith house with the original fireplaces and exterior native stone veneer. The second level of the home contains the formal entry and is accessed via a circular driveway and bridge across ponds and a cliff. The third level is the master suite with bed chamber, dressing room, and office loft. All levels will be open to the public.

The house is located at 23 State Park Drive, adjacent to the Glendale Bridge.

Tickets are $5 for the five-home tour and are available at Flowers By Webers, Arrowhead Market, and Proudfoot's, Englander's Deep Creek, and Gregg's pharmacies.

GC Health Department Offers Safe Food Tips For The Holidays

As the holidays approach and families prepare for the customary seasonal gatherings, Tina Buckel, food service coordinator for Garrett County Health Department, states that it is a good time to remember safe food handling practices.

Unfortunately, associated with holiday meals is the occurrence of food borne disease. In fact, those bouts of brief illness that people experience throughout the year and commonly attributed to the "flu bug" originated with something eaten, particularly if the primary symptoms were diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps, or nausea.

"You can, through the safe food practices outlined below, protect yourself, your family and friends from the physical consequences and social embarrassment of a food borne illness during the holidays and year round," Buckel said.

●Store potentially hazardous foods (those requiring temperature control) at 0°F. or below for frozen foods, or 45°F. or below for refrigerated foods.

●Do not thaw foods at room temperature. Thaw in the refrigerator, or under cool running water, or as part of the cooking process. Microwave thawing is safe if the food is immediately cooked after the thaw is complete. Cook foods promptly after thawing.

●Fully cook all raw foods according to label or recipe directions and/or use a reliable food thermometer to insure the following temperatures are reached throughout the product (avoid oven temperatures below 325°F.):

--Poultry: 165°F (for whole birds, measure temperature at the thickest part of the thigh, don't touch the bone).

--Beef: 140°F (no red or pink meat)

--Ground Beef: 155°F (until juice runs clear)

--Eggs: 140°F (yolks & whites set or firm; use pasteurized eggs in recipes calling for uncooked raw eggs). Never interrupt the cooking process or otherwise partially cook any foods.

●Cook food on the day of service whenever possible; cook and serve is the safest practice.

●Stuffing should be cooked outside the bird. If the bird is stuffed, combine the refrigerated ingredients and stuff the bird just prior to cooking, stuff lightly (1/2 to 3/4 cup stuffing per pound of bird). Ensure stuffing is cooked to at least 155°F. Don't cook a stuffed bird in a microwave oven.

●Serve hot foods hot (140°F. or above) and cold foods cold (45°F. or below). Don't allow foods to remain out of temperature for longer than 2 hours cumulatively.

●Avoid leftovers if possible; otherwise, refrigerate leftovers immediately. Room temperature cooling is unsafe. To promote rapid cooling store food in shallow, uncovered pans, on the top shelf of the refrigerator, divide whole or large cuts of poultry or meats into smaller pieces; reduce large volumes of stews, sauces, and gravies into smaller portions.

●As applicable, reheat leftovers to 165°F. or reserve them cold at 45°F. or below.

●Wash your hands frequently, particularly after raw food contacts or going to the bathroom.

●Thoroughly clean utensils, cutting boards, and work sites between each use (especially between raw and ready-to-cat food tasks).

●Avoid handling raw vegetables next to raw meats. Try to work in different areas of the kitchen to lessen the chance of cross-contamination.

When considering the above guidelines for application in your kitchen, be aware that the person(s) at greatest risk to the occurrence and consequences of food borne disease are the newborn, infants, pregnant women, the elderly, and persons with weakened immune systems or overriding serious medical conditions.

AND IT'S TURKEY FOR ALL - Residents of Deer Park enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner with friends and neighbors on Sunday, hosted by the Deer Park and Community Group. Approximately 100 people gathered to enjoy the covered dish dinner and the company. The mayor, along with the children of the group, delivered dinners to the home-bound members of the community who could not attend the event at the center. Bluegrass music further added to the good spirits of the those attending the celebration. The foot-tapping rhythms were provided by the Friday Night Pickers.

attended. We finally raised enough money and got the new school started.

The new school is a beautiful school--everything a school child would want. It is neat and clean, and a safe place to play. The children are not crowded in their rooms like some places. There is no fighting among the students like there is in other schools.

You can't punish the kids for the Board's failure to understand that the Aurora School is the Aurora children's school and they want to keep it that way. I'm sure that the other schools' children don't want our kids there any more than our kids want to go. Kids aren't dumb; they know what's going on.

Another point I would like to make is about the bus rides that the children have to go through to get to these other schools. The bus rides are sometimes a half hour to an hour long. These rides become potentially dangerous in the winter when the weather is bad. There will most likely be more than one child injured this winter because of them. Many of the children have to leave their homes before daylight, and when winter sets in some don't make it home until after dark. Children being out after dark is dangerous for many reasons. Things aren't like back in our times when you could trust everything and everyone. Now parents almost have to take their kids to school in order to know that they are safe.

Now I will talk about history repeating itself The Board of Education has come up with another bright idea to take our kids from their brand new school and bus them around again. It's not only the Aurora School, but it is other schools, too. I am sure that no one wants to give up their schools. I don't know whose idea it is, but I'm telling anyone who reads this letter that it stinks. I'm getting older, and this is my grandchildren that I am fighting for now. Already two of them have been sent to Terra Alta, and one to Kingwood. I guess you could ask where this is going to stop, but we in Aurora already know the answer to that. It will stop when the Board has succeeded in taking all of our kids out of Aurora, which I think is a stupid solution to whatever problem they think they have. If only the people on the board could put themselves in these children's places and think about what it is like to ride the bus so far when they could be safe and warm in their own school, I'm sure they would do things differently. Money isn't everything in this world. We need to save our children and our school.

I attended the opening of the new school in Aurora. I have pictures of the children showing their parents their own room. They were so proud of everything, including their lockers. Now it's all been changed again. The children not only have to get used to their new surroundings, but to the school itself. New faces and more classes. To some children its mind boggling, and there are some who just can't handle it.

Think about this: what will happen when every child is out of our new school and gone? What will happen to our school? This is history going down. Be prepared; if it is not stopped now then we will all lose something. The children will have lost their school, and the people will have lost a great part of their history that they will never get back.

To all the people of the county who have children in school who are being bussed to other schools, and to all the board members: Remember this action when re-selection and bond levy come up in the future, and remember how these board members were going to fight for, and keep, our schools in place. Show them that we now have our eyes open, and we are not as stupid as what they thought we were in the beginning.

Graduates From Officer School

U.S. Air Force Maj. Jerry W. Hanlin has graduated from the Joint and Combined Staff Officer School at the Armed Forces Staff College, Fort Belvoir, Fairfax, Va. The college serves as a joint service intermediate-level college under the jurisdiction of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The graduates are selected mid-career officers prepared for joint and combined duty. Students complete a three-month course of study in joint and combined organizations, operation planning, and supporting aspects of national and international security.

To be effective in the multinational, multiservice, and multigovernment arenas, graduate officers are taught to master the concepts, principles, techniques, and problem-solving aspects of joint and combined operations.

The major is a communications-computer systems officer assigned to the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk Naval Base, Va.

Hanlin is the son of Arthur J. and Letha R. Hanlin, Kings Run Road. He graduated in 1978 from Southern Garrett High School, Oakland, and received a bachelor's degree in 1983 from West Virginia University, Morgantown. Hanlin earned a master's degree in 1990 from the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Named Airman Of The Month

SRA Donald L. Frantz Jr. has been honored as November's Airman of the Month at the Prince Sultan Air Force Base in Saudi Arabia. Airman Frantz, who joined the Air Force in December 1994, and his family are home in Oakland this week on leave. Airman Frantz is the husband of the former Heather Beckman and father of a three-year old son, Wyatt, both of Dover Air Force Base, Del., and the son of Don and Neva Frantz, and the grandson of Melvin and Rose Ina Harsh, and Hilda Frantz, all of Eglon, W.Va.

U.S. Army Pvt. Herman C. Arndt has entered basic infantry training at Fort Benning, Columbus, Ga.

During the training, he will receive instruction in drill and ceremonies, map reading, tactics, military customs and courtesies, and first aid. He will develop basic combat skills, and experience using various weapons available to the infantry soldier.

Arndt is the son of Eddie W. and Cindy L. Morgan, Accident. He is a 1997 graduate of Northern High School.

Archer said this outbreak highlights the need for non-profit agencies to consult the health department in order to prevent food-borne outbreaks. Currently, the law does not require any church, fire department, or sundry other non-profit groups to have any sort of food-service inspection or permit from the health department. Archer and Steve Sherrard (environmental health) both expressed their hope that more local groups will now consult with the health department personnel before holding events during which food is prepared and served.

Sherrard said his staff will meet with the non-profit group and inspect the kitchen, test the water, and check out the septic facility. He said they would also review food preparation methods with the group, discussing such topics as proper handling, proper temperatures achieved and maintained, proper refrigeration, and other techniques.

"We really want to encourage non-profit groups to get permits before serving food. It's simple, and it could prevent a lot of trouble," Sherrard said.

Archer also noted that the incidence of syphilis, a sexually transmitted disease, is on the increase in Maryland, reaching epidemic numbers in Baltimore City. One case has been identified in Garrett County, Archer said. Currently, 12% of syphilis morbidity -- people dying from the disease -- is in the state of Maryland.

Early and appropriate screening, along with rapid diagnosis, treatment, and epidemiologic follow-up are crucial steps in successfully controlling the illness, Archer reported.

Finally, the health officer noted that the volunteer hours given by students in the county this year totalled over 700. The students chiefly took part in several tobacco-use prevention efforts, constructing a float for the Autumn Glory Parade and going into the schools to give workshops and to distribute information about the dangers of tobacco use.

GCC

Dr. Herman, president of Garrett Community College (GCC), reported that the membership of the Garrett Rural Information Cooperative (GRIC) has grown significantly in the past several months, now showing 1,500 subscribers.

"And the phone is still ringing off the hook," he added. "We're very pleased to be seeing so much local acceptance of the system."

He also noted that he and Duane Yoder, director of Community Action, and Jim Hinebaugh, director of the economic development office, all traveled to Knoxville, Tenn., for the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) conference on community colleges. They went partly to help secure funding for an incubator facility planned at GCC.

"The facility will house 10 to 14 start-up informational companies. They will get their start there and then will move on," he explained. Herman said he hopes the facility is going to be built with no county funds being requested or spent. It will be accomplished through grants from the ARC and other entities, as well as funding from the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development. He reported that there are already six companies interested in the incubator endeavor.

Herman reported that the college is working to develop an honors program for students, noting that GCC's students who have gone on to earn their bachelor's degrees have held the highest cumulative averages in the state, compared to all other community college graduates.

"At GCC, we have traditionally focused on students who need help, or on students who are sort of in the middle," Herman said. "We haven't done much for the kids who really excel. We want to provide an honors program to help these students transfer on to other colleges. The boost it would give them in scholarship qualification would be wonderful -- for them and for their parents."

The college president said the math program at GCC has been getting worldwide attention, with the team of instructors recently giving a presentation about the program in Germany. They are slated for several more international presentations as well. He noted that the team involves some public school teachers, which he said helps to provide a good transition for students from public school to the college.

Community Action

Duane Yoder announced that the after-school child care program in Grantsville is doing well and that he is very happy with the results there.

Yoder also announced that an open house will be held at the new Pleasant View housing development in Loch Lynn on Saturday, Dec. 6. The public is invited to come see the new homes. The High View development is now the property of Community Action, and it will be demolished in February, Yoder said. The new construction in that area should begin in April, weather permitting.

Yoder noted that current High View residents will be assisted in finding temporary housing until the new building is complete. They will have the option of moving into the new facility. They may also be considered for residence in Pleasant View, Yoder said.

"The timing of these two projects worked out well for us," he noted.

Economic Development

Jim Hinebaugh told the commissioners that Garrett County will be represented at the Maryland Technology Showcase in Baltimore on Dec. 6 and 7. This will provide "good exposure for the county," Hinebaugh said, while at the same time allowing local individuals to "get caught up on what's out there technically." He said his office has several free passes for persons interested in attending the event.

"Anyone who would like to attend should just give us a call," he said.

Hinebaugh also referred to his trip with Herman and Yoder to Knoxville, where he was able to compare the economic status of Garrett County with several other Appalachian regions.

"I came away from that gathering feeling good," he said. "We are on the right track here in Garrett County. I am optimistic and excited about the direction we're headed -- we have a lot to be proud of."

Sanitary District

Wendell Beitzel reported on several water and sewer projects in the county.

He said the Hutton sewer project is underway, and that those residents should have a completed system by the end of next summer. Also in the works are improvements to the system in Friendsville, which should be nearly complete by the end of the year.

Beitzel said the landfill sewer line extension is complete, and that the Deer Park sewer system is nearly finished. He said they are currently waiting for the power company to supply power to the pump station to complete the job.

The septic receiving facility at Deep Creek Lake is finished. Beitzel said the cost to dump a load of sewerage is $75.

The Kitzmiller water improvement work is finished, as is the Gorman water system. He announced that the county is no longer buying water from West Virginia for Gorman, and he commended the Mettiki Coal Corporation for helping out with the Gorman project.

He also said his office is on the verge of receiving major grant funding for a sewer system in Jennings.

Recycling, Landfill

Rodney Glotfelty, director of the Office of Solid Waste and Recycling, announced that the deadline for a new landfill sticker is Dec. 31. He urged all individuals who purchase the stickers to do so soon, as there are apparently about 5,000 people who have yet to get them.

Glotfelty also commended the commissioners for meeting last week with persons from Hampshire County, W.Va., to discuss the county's recycling system.

Promotion Council

Diane Wolfe, director of the Garrett County Promotion Council, reported that she took part last week in a National Road Tour throughout the five westernmost counties in Maryland. The purpose of the event is to develop methods of promoting Route 40.

Wolfe also reported that a television crew from Japan was in Grantsville last weekend to film the Casselman River Bridge. The footage will be included in the crew's film titled "Bridges of the World."

Extension Service

Alice Hevner, director of the extension service, reported that the small meats co-op is doing very well. She also reported that complaints of bear damage are on the rise, partly because the corn is not drying down as quickly as other years and the damage is just now being discovered. She said the damage has increased over the past years.

Hevner also told the commissioners that farmers are having a difficult time, especially those who have dairy farms. The milk pricing problem is hurting local farmers, she said, and the plight is worsening.

She also noted that her office has extensive information on safe food preparation and handling, in relation to Archer's and Sherrard's comments, and that the information is readily available.

"Geri has a gift for making people feel comfortable and at ease with her positive, upbeat attitude," said Cathy Miles, RN, BSN, surgical services nurse manager.

"She is an excellent community liaison, taking the time to talk with patients and family members during their hospital visit, which helps to reduce their fear and anxiety," Miles added.

World AIDS Awareness Day Slated At GCC

"Give Children Hope in a World With AIDS" will be the theme as the Garrett County AIDS Council plans a World AIDS Awareness Day program to be held at Garrett Community College, Dec. 6, 7 p.m.

After a summit of health ministers from around the world called for a spirit of tolerance and increased information, World AIDS Awareness Day was observed for the first time on Dec. 1, 1988.

The theme for the 1997 observance focuses attention on the affects of AIDS on children. The goals are: to create a message of hope through better understanding of the impact of AIDS on children and their families; to strengthen the commitment to improve health policies; and to increase the understanding of children's rights and human rights in regard to AIDS.

Dr. Margaret Kaiser will open the Garrett County AIDS Awareness program at GCC. The mistress of ceremonies for the evening will be Cathy Clocker of WKHJ radio.

Connie Fink will dance the award winning choreography of Barry Fisher in a piece which is dedicated to friends and colleagues who have died with AIDS. Sharon Katino will read poetry by Sandy Sutton and Courtney Thomas will perform an instrumental, "Him."

Pandora's Box, the Garrett County Health Department's teen health theater, will take the stage under the direction of AmeriCorps. Other performances will include dancing by Jamie Reichert and a song by vocalist/pianist Kathleen Wold.

Guest speakers for the event will address the topic "Living with HIV, The Personal Experience."

Members of the 1997 World AIDS Awareness Day program committee are Donna McClintock, Chris Delaney, Sonya Cooper-Evans, Charlotte Garner, Jill Holler, Debbie Ward, Kellie Warnick, and Edith Wilson.

Benefit Art Show And Sale Slated By Arts Council

The Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) has invited 75 local artists to participate in a one-day show and sale of original art at the GCC Bausch & Lomb Gallery in McHenry on Saturday, Dec. 6, from 1 to 5 p.m. Proceeds from the holiday exhibit will benefit the Jennifer Evans memorial fund, which is administered by GCAC as a tribute to the late artist.

Participating artists are encouraged "to buy, sell, barter, or trade," according to Steve Schlosnagle, arts council administrator. "In the spirit of the season, this exhibit is titled 'A Jolly Good Show.' It will feature free public admission, free food, free entertainment, and a special selection of original art priced to sell," he said.

To qualify for participation in the bazaar, artists must be members of the arts council. Annual membership dues of $5 per individual may be submitted to GCAC at any time, but must be submitted on or before Dec. 6 for artists wishing to participate in the exhibit. Interested artists may reserve display space by calling the arts council office on or before Wed., Dec 3.

For more information and complete participation guidelines, interested persons may contact the GCAC at 301-387-3121.

Beckman Invited Guest At Nat'l. Awards Ceremony

Marvin Eugene Beckman, Swanton, was one of the invited guests at the 10th Annual National Caring Awards Ceremony, held Friday at the Department of the Interior Auditorium in Washington, D.C. The ceremony was co-hosted by Val J. Halamandaris, executive director of the Caring Institute, and by Senator Frank E. Moss, chairman of the board of the Caring Institute since its inception in 1988.

Since 1988 the Caring Institute has paid homage to 10 caring men and women each year in America, and an international award was added in 1992. Mother Theresa had been selected as the international award recipient for 1997. Her award had been presented to her prior to her death, and a tribute was paid to her work during the awards ceremony.

A special 10th year anniversary awards issue of the Caring People magazine was published in commemoration of this ceremony. Included in this magazine was a photograph taken by Beckman. This photograph was taken at the display of the Names Project AIDS Memorial Quilt in Washington in October 1996.

This photograph, in addition to being published by the Caring Institute in its special awards issue, is now on display in the Frederick Douglass Museum Hall of Fame for Caring Americans at 320 A Street, NE, in Washington.

Beckman is a 25-year employee of the state of Maryland and is currently the finance officer/assistant director for administration at the Garrett County Department of Social Services in Oakland.

He is a graduate of Warren College of Business, Warren, Ohio; Garrett Community College, McHenry; and has received both BS and MBA degrees from Frostburg State University.

He was named to "Who's Who Worldwide" and was included in the Who's Who Registry of Business Leaders in 1994. This membership was upgraded to lifetime membership in 1995. He was also named to the "International Who's Who of Professional Management" in 1995 and has been renamed to this directory each year since then. In 1996, he was awarded the designation of Certified Government Finance Manager by the Professional Certification Board of the Association of Government Accountants.

Beckman holds several professional memberships, including the Maryland Joint Child Support Council, the National Child Support Enforcement Association, and the Maryland Public Finance Officers Association.

He is also a member of St. John's Lutheran Church of Meadow Mountain, and is a member of the Maryland Chapter of 4-H Club All-Stars.

Beckman is the son of the late Rudolph and Margaret Beckman, and is married to the former Ruth Ann Hesse.

Nicotine Patch May Be Safer for Smokers

One of the newest concerns expressed by U.S. health officials is the long-term effects of nicotine and carbon monoxide (two ingredients in cigarette smoke) on the heart. Researchers have shown that continued exposure of the heart to nicotine causes vasoconstriction (narrowing) of heart blood vessels. Long-term smokers who also have coronary heart disease (CAD) may experience high blood pressure, chest pain, and in some cases, heart attacks. Because of these effects, smokers with CAD or other heart diseases usually are advised not to use nicotine patches or nicotine gum as a part of a smoking cessation program.

However, results of new research indicate that using a nicotine patch may actually be a safer alternative to not using a nicotine patch in smokers who have CAD. Forty persons with a history of angina (chest pain) who smoked more than a pack of cigarettes a day but had a strong desire to quit smoking were evaluated. Participants were started on a 14 mg patch (new patch applied every morning) and were given an exercise stress test after 3 days. They wore a stronger patch (21 mg) for 3 more days. The average number of cigarettes smoked per day dropped significantly, as did heart rate and blood pressure. Also, while wearing the patch, participants were better able to tolerate exercise.

ACHS To Host Christmas In Flowery Vale

The Accident Cultural and Historical Society has announced plans for this season's "Christmas In Flowery Vale" celebration weekend.

A concert of seasonal music, Friday, Dec. 12, at 7 p.m. in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident, will lead the agenda of festivities. The Northern High School chorus, the Northern Middle School acapella choir, and the Oak Hill 4-H Club will offer the program of holiday songs.

Following the concert, everyone is invited to gather outside the church for the lighting of the town Christmas tree and caroling in the town.

On Saturday, Dec. 13, the activities will continue. Starting at noon, a holiday dinner of soup and sandwiches will be available at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, hosted by the Ladies of St. Paul's. The dinner will be served until 3 p.m.

The Holiday Craft Bazaar, to be held at the Accident Fire Hall from noon until 6 p.m., will feature dried and silk flower arrangements, stenciled woodwork, handwoven blankets, pottery, an assortment of quilted and crocheted items, and more.

The Accident Tour of Homes is scheduled for Saturday, 3-6 p.m. This year's tour of holiday homes includes the private homes of Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald, Rev. and Mrs. Roland Nairn, and Carol and Laramie Slawson. Other stops on the tour will be St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Zion Lutheran Church.

The final stop on the tour will be the historic Drane House. The old plantation home will be decorated as it might have been to celebrate the Christmas season in the 1800s. Tickets for the tour, which will be available at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at the start of the tour, are $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12.

The finale of the Christmas in Flowery Vale celebration -- a concert featuring the Accident Concert Band, the Accident Community in Harmony Chorus, and the Northern Middle School Instrumental Ensemble -- will be presented at the Flowery Vale Senior Center, Saturday, Dec. 13, 7:30 p.m.

The concert will provide an opportunity to sing along with the Christmas carols, and refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge for this musical event; however, donations will be accepted for needy veterans in Garrett County.

This Christmas celebration is sponsored by the Christmas Steering Committee of the Accident Cultural and Historical Society, the Accident VFD, Aid Association for Lutherans, and St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC AND SPIRIT will be on the egenda when Accident celebretes Christmas in Flowery Vele. Carols, crefts, concerts, end house tours are acheduled for Dec. 12-13. St. Paul's Lutheren Church, pictured above, will host the open concert end will be featured on the Christmas decoration house tour. BITTINGER NEWS

The Grantsville Area Business and Professional Women's Club held its annual Christmas Auction Monday night at Holiday Inn, Grantsville. Linda Buckel, Bittinger, served as chairman of the event. Attending from Bittinger were Ruth DiPaolo, Lottie Brenneman, Linda Buckel, and Harriett Buckel.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Glotfelty and family visited Miss Lynn Farmer and Mr. and Mrs. George Farmer in Baltimore over the weekend. They also attended the Maryland basketball game at College Park Saturday night and visited several museums in Washington on Sunday.

Carol Bass attended a state-wide Healthy Conference and a Governor's Round-Table meeting in Baltimore last week. She was a panel member in one of the break-out sessions. Carol was a Monday and Tuesday overnight guest of her brother, Barry Glotfelty, in Frederick. They attended the Maryland-Fairleigh Dickinson basketball game at College Park Tuesday night.

Ethel and Ralph Buckel recently returned from a bus trip to Nashville. They spent the vacation at Opryland Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nolder, Baltimore, were overnight guests of Harriett and Ken Buckel last week.

As winter sent its first real snow to Bittinger, a group of Bittinger kids met at Poholsky hill for some downhill fun. Brent Housley had a little too much fun, however, as he broke his wrist after steering into a frozen planter.

Ferne Beachy and Sam Stanton were Sunday dinner guests of the Poholsky family.

Sheila Southerly was a Friday morning visitor of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Resh, Jennings.

Cindy Stanton accompanied the Allegany women's team to Chesapeake Community College Sunday for another game. She will try her skills as team statistician. Lea Stanton is a member of the Allegany team.

Emma Bass, 6 years old, had the stitches removed from her chin after a fall at her home. She was reportedly "very brave" for her first visit to the emergency room.

Lloyd and Joan Sussman and their daughters, Claire, Caitlin, and Meredith, plan to go "over the river and through the woods to grandmother's house" (Ruthe and Al Sussman) at Leisure World, Rockville, for the holidays. Al and Ruthe plan to have a birthday party for the November birthdays of Joan, Lloyd, and Caitlin Sussman, and Allan.

Others attending were Lottie Brenneman, Mary Simpson and Ferne Beachy.

The group served refreshments following the Appalachian Sunday service at the educational building.

Plans were being made to provide food and gifts to needy families in the area. A nominating committee report was given and election of officers will be held at the December meeting. The December meeting wul be held at the educational building and food will be served following the program.

Ethel Buckel led the program titled "We All Are One in Mission." Eleven members attended the meeting.

Southern States Touts Record Sales Volume

Southern States Cooperative, Inc., reported record volume sales of $1.216 billion for the fiscal year that ended June 30, $93.5 million higher than last year's record. This, along with the announcement of a $17.5 million patronage refund, a half-million ahead of the prior year's record, were top highlights of the cooperative's 74th annual stockholder's meeting.

"Reaching record volume in the face of formidable competition, Southern States has continued to build on its carefully crafted combination of customer service and integrity," said Wayne A. Boutwell, president and CEO. "Market share in most of our myriad of products and services grew, as did our leadership in precision farming, premium feed lines and proprietary seed varieties."

Boutwell and board of directors chairman Floyd K. Blessing shared the cooperative's performance with an audience of about 1,500, who attended the Nov. 19 meeting at the Virginia State Fairgrounds. Boutwell added that Southern States' excellent financial condition improved as net worth grew $14.4 million. He also announced the cooperative's second-best year for net savings before income taxes, $33.5 million. Also:

· Grain marketing sales increased. Grain marketing generated income of $136.8 million dollars, an increase of $6.8 million over last year on the strength of the highest bushel volume in recent years.

· Fertilizer sales increased. Fertilizer sales of $180 million set a record as tonnage toped the million mark for the fourth straight year; a record 1,137,000 tons.

· Feed sales increased. Southern States' feed sales set another record at 924,000 tons, a boost of 29,000. Though cow numbers continued to decline, dairy feed tonnage gained nicely, as did horse feed sales.

· Seed sales increased. Seed sales soared to $61 million, with unit volume also topping all previous totals. Small grains, soybeans, forage legumes and grasses led the list of gainers, with high-performance proprietary varieties outshining the other offerings.

· Petroleum sales increased. Despite a mild winter, petroleum sales rang up a record in total gallons at 350 million, up 9 million from last year.

The keynote speaker at the 74th Annual Stockholder's Meeting was U.S. Representative Thomas J. Bliley Jr. Rep. Bliley addressed an audience of about 1,500 Southern States members, patrons and employees in the Better Living Building at the Virginia State Fairgrounds.

In his speech, Rep. Bliley covered many current issues, including his role as chairman of the House Committee on Commerce, the environment and the tobacco industry.

In Washington, Rep. Bliley is serving his second term as chairman of the House Committee on Commerce, the oldest committee in the House. As chairman, he is ex officio member of the five commerce committee subcommittees: Telecommunications, Trade, and Consumer Protection; Finance and Hazardous Materials; Health and Environment; Energy and Power; and Oversight and Investigation.

In the 104th Congress, it is said that Rep. Bliley broke up bigger monopolies than did President Theodore Roosevelt, tore up more federal regulations over American businesses than President Ronald Reagan, and led passage of the Telecommunication Act that opened a trillion-dollar-a-year industry to fair, free and open trade.

Ways To Extend Pesticide Shelf Life Offered

Providing the proper storage environment can extend the useful life of pesticides. A study conducted in 1997 shows the factors affecting storage life include heat or high temperatures, moisture, freezing temperatures, light, air, and contamination by other pesticides (fumes). Chemical manufacturers contacted about product storage agree that satisfying the following requirements will extend shelf life:

1. Temperatures between 40°F and 80°F (less than 100°F). Keep cool.
2. Seal in containers to avoid humidity. Keep dry.
3. Seal in containers to avoid cross contamination by fumes or mixing. Store herbicides separately from other pesticides.
4. Ventilate the storage area to remove heat and fumes.

"New Biological Resources Engineering FACTS 189, Extended Pesticide Shelf Life for Grape Growers," covers the points above and includes more specific information from manufacturers on their products. Most showed more than one or two years of shelf life if stored properly. The fact sheet is available through county Extension offices in Maryland.

U.S. Commerce Dept. Shares Facts On Thanksgiving Feast

Traditionally, Thanksgiving has been a time for families and friends across the nation to gather together, give thanks for all that we share, and usher in the holiday season. Though the way we celebrate Thanksgiving differs from family to family and region to region, one part of the tradition remains constant--the bountiful feasts that are prepared in homes throughout the country. Without the hard work and ingenuity of America's farmers, our traditional feasts would not be possible. Data from the 1992 Census of Agriculture show that farmers from counties across the nation make valuable contributions to our Thanksgiving celebrations.

Turkey, a popular dish of the traditional Thanksgiving feast, is produced throughout our nation. More than 279 million turkeys were sold by farmers in 1992. That year, North Carolina and Minnesota sold nearly 99 million turkeys, which was 35 percent of the turkeys sold in the United States. Duplin County, N.C., was the top county in turkeys sold, with 12 million. Rockingham County, Va., and Union County, N.C., were second and third, respectively. Kandiyohi County, Minn., with 7.8 million sold, was fourth.

Other popular items on the Thanksgiving menu are bread and rolls. The wheat used to produce them may have come from North Dakota, Kansas, or Montana. In 1992, these three states harvested 881.9 million bushels of wheat, which was 40 percent of the 2.2 billion bushels harvested in the United States.

Vegetables are an important part of our Thanksgiving feast. Snap (green) beans may have been grown by farmers in Wisconsisn, New York, or Florida. In 1992, these three states accounted for 45 percent of all acres of snap beans harvested in the United States. Leading counties were Dade County, Fla., Portage County, Wis., and Marion County, Ore.

The sweet corn on the table, if not from the family's garden, may have come from one of the top three sweet corn producing states: Wisconsin, Minnesota, or Washington. The 1992 Census of Agriculture shows these three states accounted for 345,275 acres of the nation's 762,132 acres of sweet corn harvested. The top three counties in the production of sweet corn were Palm Beach County, Fla., with 33,776 acres, Grant County, Wash., with 27,586 acres, and Fond du Lac County, Wis., with 21,846 acres.

Sweet potatoes are a popular Thanksgiving dish. They may have been harvested in Johnston or Nash counties in North Carolina, or in Merced County, Calif. In 1992, these three counties accounted for 29 percent of all sweet potatoes grown in the United States.

If cranberry sauce is on the menu, the cranberries in it may have been produced by farmers in Massachusetts or Wisconsin. These two states produced 3.1 million hundredweight, which was 79 percent of all the nation's 1992 cranberry crop. Notable counties in these states were Plymouth, Mass., and Wood and Jackson counties, Wis.

Farmers produced the essential elements that allow us to have a sweet Thanksgiving feast. Pumpkin pie is sure to be a favorite. Pumpkins were grown in every state; however, Illinois had the most acreage in 1992 with 8,297 acres. The heart of pumpkin production in Illinois was Tazewell County, which accounted for 2,730 acres. California ranked second with 5,552 acres. San Joaquin County, Calif., accounted for 1,804 acres.

If cherry pie is preferred, it might be surprising to learn that in 1992, 70 percent of the nation's 311 million pounds of tart cherries came from Michigan. Two Michigan counties, Leelanau and Occana, produced 47 percent of the state's crop in 1992, and one-third of the nation's total.

Some domestic wine might be enjoyed with a Thanksgiving meal. The grapes used to produce domestic wine probably came from farmers in California, who led the nation in grape production. In 1992, California harvested 9.8 billion pounds of grapes, 89 percent of the nation's total harvest of 11 billion pounds. Notable counties in California included Fresno, Kern, and Madera.

Event Honors Contributions Of Rural Women

Last month, governments, private organizations and individuals from around the globe celebrated the work of a group that comprises more than one-quarter of the world's population--rural women. Oct. 15 marked the second annual World Rural Women's Day, an event recognized by almost 100 organizations in over 40 countries to honor the countless contributions of women to food security and rural development around the world.

World Rural Women's Day was conceived shortly after the 1995 United Nations Conference on Women in Beijing by organizations concerned with raising the visibility and status of women whose role in feeding and clothing their countries has gone largely unrecognized.

According to the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, women provide much of the management and labor necessary for food production around the world. For example, women produce 60 percent to 80 percent of the basic food stuffs in sub-Sahara Africa and the Caribbean; they provide over half of the labor for rice cultivation in Asia; and they perform 30 percent of the agricultural work in industrialized countries.

Despite their essential contributions to agricultural production, however, 500 million rural women live below the poverty line. In developing nations, many women struggle for access to property rights, financial loans and even basic technology that could drastically improve the standard of living for themselves and their families.

To help highlight World Rural Women's Day in this country, Linda Reinhardt, chair of American Farm Bureau's Women's Committee, headed an informational campaign that reached agricultural leaders across the United States, including the chairs of the state Farm Bureau women's committees and members of the Country Women's Council.

Reinhardt said she was glad to spread the word about the achievements and challenges of rural women.

"Even though our farming practices may be different from place to place, we have the same goals in mind--to provide food security and make a living for our families," she said.

MDA Reports Maryland Egg Production

Maryland laying flocks produced 72 million eggs during Sept. 1997, of which 66 million were table eggs and 6 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 72.5%.

The average number of layers on hand during Sept. 1997 was 3,309,000. On Oct. 1, 1997, 2.5% of the layers in Maryland were being molted and 47% of all layers had been through a molt.

U.S. egg production totaled 6.33 billion during Sept. 1997, up 2% from 6.24 billion produced in 1996. Production included 5.34 billion table eggs and 990 million hatching-type eggs, of which 934 million were broiler-type flocks and 56 million were egg-type flocks. The total number of layers during Sept. 1997 averaged 302 million, up 1% from the average number of layers during Sept. 1996. Sept. egg production per 100 layers was 2,097 eggs, compared with 2,094 in Sept. 1996.

Egg-type chicks hatched during Sept. totaled 35.8 million, up 12% from Sept. 1996. Eggs in incubators totaled 30.4 million on Oct. 1, 1997, down 1% from a year ago.

Domestic placements of egg-type pullet chicks for future hatchery supply flocks by leading breeders totaled 397,000 during Sept. 1997, up 72% from the 231,000 of Sept. 1996.

The Sept. 1997 hatch of broiler-type chicks, at 683 million, was up 4% from Sept. of the previous year. There were 566 million eggs in incubators on Oct. 1, 1997, up 5% from a year earlier.

Leading breeders placed 6.50 million broiler-type pullet chicks for future domestic hatchery supply flocks during Sept. 1997, up 5% from Sept. 1996.

October Farm Prices Reported

Prices received for crops by Maryland and Delaware farmers were up for wheat, corn, and soybeans. Barley and oat prices remained unchanged. Hay made a major increase from a year ago, largely due to the sparse cuttings farmers were able to harvest. On the U.S. level, prices were down for wheat and barley, but were up for corn, oats, soybeans, and hay.

Introducing Panelcraft Building Systems
The House of Tomorrow is Here Today!
Cool When It's Hot, Cozy When It's Not!
Customer satisfaction is our #1 goal.

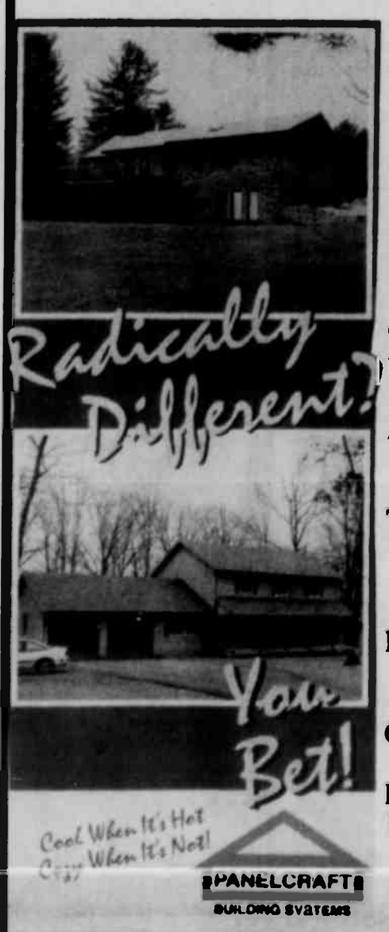
PANELCRAFT BUILDING SYSTEMS, INC.



These houses are built with Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs). Using SIPs requires less construction time and leaves the customer with a draft-free Energy Efficient Home at an affordable price!

At Panelcraft, these Panels go through a special bonding process to create a Structural Panel far superior to using just the insulation by itself in a conventional frame building.

The material used for the insulation is called Polystyrene, the same thing that is used for styrofoam coffee cups. Not only does 1/16 of an inch of Polystyrene protect your fingers from being burned from the scorching hot coffee, it also keeps them dry!

Now if only 1/16 inch will do this, imagine what 4 to 6 inches will do in your home to keep the warm and the dry inside and keep the cold and the dampness outside!

Oh! By the way all you carpenters and do-it-yourselfers, etc., no more itching and scratching and coughing while insulating a house!

Panel homes have withstood earthquake activity where others crumbled.

If you would like to know more about Panelcraft and why SIPs are one of the fastest growing building techniques in the industry, call or write:

firming and reducing the body's appearance, especially waistline and tummy. Table three, the "leg table," works the entire leg area, hips and especially the upper thighs. Table four, the "stomach-hip table," is designed to exercise the tummy and hips, while table five, the "side-side table," stretches the lower torso from side to side, toning muscles in the abdomen and trimming the waistline, particulary the sides of the waist. The "sit-up table," table six, exercises the stomach, waist and hips, and table seven, the "circulating table," increases blood circulation, eliminates excess water retention and relaxes tense muscles.

By incorporating isometric and isotonic exercising with the movement of the tables (while performing pelvic tilts) optimum results can be expected. Kellie says most clients are noticing inch loss in addition to increased flexibility and muscle tone. Clients are encouraged to start a weight loss program (one to two and a half pounds per week) and to schedule at least three visits per week before expecting ... dous results.

Muscle strength, ... endurance and f... are increased through ... lar sessions on the toning tables with little or no risk of injury.

After a session on the toning system, clients are able to feel the benefits normally noticed after a workout; however, the fatigue and soreness that follow a strenuous workout will not be present to the same degree, if at all. The toning tables actually break the center of gravity while the client reclines in a relaxed, horizontal position. Rather than pulling against gravity to do leg lifts, waist bends and arm lifting, the client is in a relaxed position working with the table movement for optimum results.

In explaining how the tables work, Kellie states that one of the body's "bad guys," expecially for women, is cellulite, a term for fat cells or fat deposits in areas ... such as ... blocks, butts, ... arms, thighs, etc. This fat ... non-conductive electrically and accumulates in areas of irritation. The main reason the cellulite fat reduces while using toning tables is that the body's internal stimulation across the joints is brought to a more normal state, due to the stretching of the muscles surrounding the joint. "If you simply take a globule of fat embedded in the tissue above muscle and start to stretch it, the body gets the message that it is not supposed to be there because this area is now suddenly being stretched and treated," Kellie adds. The body promptly starts removing the fat and tightening up the tissue.

Muscle balance and correct posture will be noticeable benefits achieved through continued sessions. If the body is left to its own resources, it favors selected muscle groups. One muscle gains in strength while another remains disproportionately weak. In addition, the stronger muscle tends to shorten and tighten, which means it loses flexibility. All muscle groups should be strong, flexible and balanced to achieve correct posture. Kellie says these tables will aid in improving muscle tone, therefore improving posture. Through regular sessions, a general improvement in circulation is also noted, as veins respond favorably by dilating when subjected to the stretching, massage and movement of the tables.

Alzheimer's Disease: Devastating To Family Members As Caregivers

Editor's Note: This is the first in a two-part series. The names used are ficticious.

By Peggy Santamaria

Alzheimer's disease -- It is often referred to as "Old Tuner's Disease," with its hallmark being lapses in memory. This condition is believed by many to be a normal part of the aging process and can even be affectionately depicted in comic situations.

When described in these terms Alzheimer's seems harmless enough, maybe even a bit humorous. But this incapacitating disease, which redefines the life of the one afflicted and reaches deep into the lives and hearts of family members, is far from humorous. It is heart wrenching.

It is not just a simple forgetfulness that occurs with the onset of the illness. It is an impairment of devastating dimensions. Someone must be in constant attendance to the person suffering this destructive disorder. Often this caregiver is a family member.

A family member who assumes the role of primary caregiver to a person with Alzheimer's takes on a task that runs the gamut from painful, to frustrating, to exhausting, and back again. There is the pain of watching as a person who has been known and loved slips in and out of focus -- drifts further and further away, while still physically present.

Several community residents have agreed to share some of their experiences of providing care to a family member with Alzheimer's disease.

THE EARLY STAGES

"It makes me so mad that this could happen to her...."

Robert and Julia have been married 44 years. She taught school for 27 of those years and also raised three children. His work kept him away from home for long hours and sometimes for days. But he will tell you with pride that Julia was able to manage it all and keep everything going.

Relaxation time, Robert explains, has always been spent together. The couple enjoy each other's company so much, he said, they never went on vacations with other people -- just with each other.

Though they still spend time together pursuing activities they enjoy, like going for long walks, dining out, taking trips, things aren't really the same because Julia has Alzheimer's disease.

The day I went to visit them at their home, Robert, Julia and I sat in the living room and talked about the changes and difficulties in which they now find themselves. I hadn't expected to speak with Julia herself about this and was uncertain how to begin or what to say. I didn't know if she would understand me, or if she would be hurt, or be upset. I needn't have worried.

After introductions, Robert began to offer information about some of the daily routines in their house that had changed as his wife's disease became evident and was ultimately diagnosed.

How did Julia feel when her illness was identified? "I just accepted it, I guess. It was the way things would be," she explained gently.

Robert proceeded to say that he was not always as gracious in his acceptance of the changes that were occurring in the household. "She is the educated one in the family so I relied on her to handle all the financial matters. I didn't know anything about them," Robert said. "Now our roles have changed. I take care of all the things she used to take care of," he explained.

Julia smiles and laughs lightly as Robert talks about her inability to cook or even make Jello anymore. How does she feel about this? What is it that happens when she tries to do something like make Jello? "Its just gone," she explains simply. "Just gone." There is not the slightest memory of how to begin the process or even what that process is.

Does it upset her to know this is happening? "Usually I just laugh when I see what I am doing. And if I laugh, then he can laugh, too, and not get upset," Julia said. She is fully aware that she is losing life-long capabilities, which were previously accepted as daily routine.

It is her faith, Robert said, that helps Julia accept what she knows cannot be changed. But sometimes the smile gives way. "We were in a restaurant last week. She broke down crying. She didn't know what she wanted," Robert said.

They are both aware that there will probably be more changes in the near future. Robert said he doesn't sleep well anymore and his blood pressure is high. "There is a lot of stress. If something happens to me, what will happen to her?" he asked.

When we talked about writing letters, I asked Julia if she could still spell and write and she said, matter-of-factly, that she was able to do both. Robert interrupted and reminded her that she was no longer able to write. "See," she said. "I didn't know I couldn't do that any more."

As new symptoms appear and old skills dim or disappear, Robert experiences fear. "I get in bad moods sometimes," he said, explaining that it is very frustrating for him some days. He descibed finding the coffee pot in the microwave one day. Julia had said she would get his coffee for him. What else might happen?

Getting together with others at the senior centers is a staple for Robert and Julia. "We go there to eat twice a week. It's good for us. It's good for everyone," he said.

Julia and Robert are coping with what each day brings. They are using the time they have to enjoy as many hours and days together as they can hold on to. Both of them know that the time may not be far off when they will need to accept a lot less. And Robert knows that he may need to take on a lot more.

CUSTOMER APPRECIATION DAY - The Greater Oakland Business Association's (GOBA) Retail Committee has announced that the second annual Customer Appreciation Day will be held on Wednesday, December 10, in an effort to reward customers for shopping locally. Participating merchants are planning to offer discounts or other special incentives for that day only, according to Amy Rudy, vice-president of GOBA. Rudy stated, "We want to give people an incentive to come downtown to shop, and once they're here we're hoping they'll realize how nice it is to shop at home where people know them." According to a representative of the planning committee, last year's event was a huge success, as many area residents took advantage of the day to finish their holiday gift shopping. "We offer free parking, personalized service, no long lines and friendly hometown atmosphere," said Rudy. "What could be nicer then that?" So far, participating stores include Mt. Panax Antiques, Lamplighter C.B.S., Towne Restaurant, Family Shoe Store, Book Mark'et, Gary's Shoe Repair, Little Expressions, Marvin's Men's Wear, Rudy's, Herbal Treasures, Oakland's Tropical World, and Naylor's Hardware. Shown above, left to right, are members of the Retail Committee, Margaret Germain, Family Show Store; Richard Dodd, Towne Restaurant; Connie Margison, Water Street Market Place; Amy Rudy, Rudy's Clothing; and Sheila Wharton, Little Expressions.

Garrett County Schools Honored In State Ceremony

In a state ceremony to reward high performing schools, Gov. Parris N. Glendening named six Garrett County elementary schools among the 269 honored for achievement.

Bloomington, Kitzmiller, Loch Lynn, Red House, Route 40, and Swan Meadow elementary schools were selected to receive certificates of honor for posting significant gains on MSPAP (Maryland School Performance Assessment Program).

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County schools, and Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of curriculum K-8, were among those in Essex Thursday to attend the ceremony sponsored by the governor and the state department of education.

"The very significant point is that 50% of our schools qualified for this honor," Dr. Teets said. He also pointed out the governor's school recognition program is based on evidence of improvement in MSPAP scores. Since Garrett County started out with very high test scores, it is quite a challenge to continue to show high levels of improvement.

"We're proud of the efforts of our principals, teachers, administrators, students, and support staff for their efforts that made this honor possible," the superintendent stated.

KUDOS TO COUNTY SCHOOLS - Proud and smiling, these representatives of Garrett County schools display state certicates of honor earned by 50% of the elementary schools in tha ayatem for eigfinicant gains in MSPAP acorae. AURORA/EGLON NEWS

AURORA HOMEMAKERS

The Oct. 20 meeting of the Aurora Extension Homemakers was held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Aurora, with Mary Jane Hanline presenting the devotions using the theme "Sharing." Fraudulent advertising, financial scams, an alert to what may seem "too good to be true" was the information contained in the lesson subject "The Truth, the Half-Truth and the Absurd." One of every $10 spent is used in false advertising, according to Hanline.

Deloris Slawter and Ressie Conrad distributed 20 cancer packets at the Aurora Post Office on Oct. 2 and pink ribbons for breast cancer awareness were distributed at area churches. Mary Jane Hanline, chair of the membership committee, reported that from the membership tea came eight new members to the Aurora Extension Homemakers: Polly Engle, Kathy Hardesty, Jean Starr, Penny Robinette, Mildred Stemple, Alice Penzo, Patricia Stemple, and Elsie Stemple. Ressie Conrad and Jennifer Conrad attended an international event held at the Preston County Extension Office. Attending the county craft day at Lenox on Oct. 23 were Delores Douglas, Janice Tackett, and Opal Myers.

The club contributed $25 to the Preston County 4-H Foundation. Delores Douglas, club president, was selected as Homemaker of the Year. Topics for lessons, hostesses, and lesson leaders were chosen. It was decided that, beginning with the November meeting the club would hold its monthly gatherings in the Union Ambulance squad hall.

Appointed to serve on the Activity Committee, which plans open month events, were Martha Bolyard and Virginia Martin. Polly Engle will take a place on the Lions Club Committee.

A quilt, donated by Janice Tackett, is being prepared to memorialize mothers of the community prior to donating it to the Anna Jarvis house near Grafton. Those who wish to add a name may contact Ressie Conrad or Janice Tackett.

The club met Nov. 18 at the squad hall, with Mrs. Douglas presiding. Wilda Stemple read for devotions "By the Grace of God, I Am What I Am."

Ressie Conrad introduced Dewey Conrad, representing the Preston County Healtn Department, and he provided information on securing a pure water supply. He also distributed literature with further facts.

All committee chairwomen of Issues committees reported their annual reports had been submitted to the county. Named chairpersons for 1998 were Ressie Conrad for continuing education, Martha Bolyard for families; and Mary Jane Hanline for marketing and membership. The Preston County Achievement held at the Terra Alta Church of the Nazarene was attended by Delores Douglas, Jean Starr, Martha Bolyard, Penny Robinette Ressie Conrad, Deloris Slawter, Janice Tackett, Virginia Martin, and Opal Myers.

The Aurora Homemakers will be participating in the Christmas Village to be held at the Mill Room of the Kingwood Community Building on Dec. 2 from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Each member is asked to contribute a craft or baked goods for sale. Names from the county Santa Tree were distributed, with the gifts due Dec. 11 at the extension office.

The Christmas tree lighting will be held on Saturday evening, Dec. 6, at the Aurora Community Building. The public is invited to this ceremony. A club dinner is planned for 6:30 p.m. on the evening of Dec. 6 at the Fairlea Restaurant. Each member is reminded to bring canned goods for distribution to a local family in need.

The Aurora library will be open during the winter, with Thelma Stemple responsible. Alice Penzo announced that there will be need of volunteers, especially next spring, when she plans to initiate a story hour.

CONCERT AT MAPLE GROVE

Crossroads Revival, a gospel group from Parsons, will be appearing in concert at the Maple Grove Assembly of God Church at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 30. The public is invited to hear these seven musicians, who sing southern gospel music. A freewill offering will be accepted for their benefit.

Faith Evangelical Church To Host One-Man Musical

David M. Sanborn will appear in his one-man musical Song of the Shepherd this Sunday, Nov. 30, at the Faith Evangelical Free Church in Mtn. Lake Park at 7 p.m.

The stageplay for Song of the Shepherd was written by Sanborn, with musical arrangements by Don Stephens, formerly of Westernport. The musical, which portrays the life of King David, has been cited for its historical accuracy by several Biblical scholars, and Sanborn's stage persona has drawn comparisons to such multi-talented entertainers as Danny Kaye, Jim Carrey, Robin Williams, and Mandy Patinkin.

Sanborn says he conceived the show as an attempt to explore and understand the life of his hero and namesake, King David. The play is adapted word-for-word from both books of Samuel (New King James Version.) Sanborn plays 21 different characters in the production, including Mel Gibson, Gene Kelly, James Stewart and Sean Connery.

Song of the Shepherd will feature Don Stephens on the piano. Stephens has been in professional music and youth ministry for over 20 years, and currently is on the staff of Youth w/a Mission's University of the Nations in Kona, Hawaii. In the past four years he has ministered in several nations in various outreach and ministry endeavors.

The performance is open to the public and admission is free. Persons interested in further information may call the church at 301-334-4172.

Wray Blair, associate director of admissions for Frostburg State University, will discuss issues affecting college students today that can cause serious stress. Concerns about money, grades, competition, and advancement, which impact most students, will be addressed.

Tuition Value At Community Colleges Best

In these days of rising tuition and other college costs, a recent article in the Community College Times shows that two-year public community colleges continue to be the best value for post-secondary education, a spokesperson for Garrett Community College said recently.

According to the article, tuition costs at two-year community colleges have risen between two and four percent for the 1997-98 school year, while tuition costs at four-year colleges and universities have risen approximately five percent for this academic year.

Community colleges have shown a smaller increase than private two-year colleges. The average tuition at two year private institutions is $1,501, or a two percent increase of $36. The average tuition at a two-year private institution is $4,543, or a five percent increase of $194. At four year public colleges the average tuition is $4,361, or a five percent increase of $194; at four-year private colleges the average tuition is $5,549, a three percent increase of $186.

Based on a College Board study of college costs, the article states that a student living at home and attending a two-year community college can expect to pay a total of $6,196 for a degree, whereas a student attending a four-year college and living in a dormitory can expect to pay $21,424 for a bachelor's degree. A Garrett County resident attending Garrett Community College can expect to pay approximately $5,144 in tuition and fees for a two-year degree, according to a college spokesperson.

THE THOUGHTS OF CHILDREN AROUND THE WORLD TURN TO TOYS during the Christmas season, and shown here is a portion of the toys and dolls that the late Elisabeth Thayer collected during her world-wide travels. The longtime teacher's collection was recently donated to the Garrett County Historical Society, and children of all ages can enjoy these and many other artifacts during the downtown Fresh Air Christmas on Friday, Dec. 5, when the museum will have an open house from 5 to 9 p.m. Light refreshments will be available that evening. Winter hours for the museum will be posted for those who cannot come to the special open house.

Gasoline Prices Down 7.7 Cents

Gasoline prices in Maryland are almost eight cents a gallon lower than they were last November, reports AAA. Regular, self-serve unleaded averaged $1.205 in the club's Thanksgiving holiday survey. This price is 3.3 cents lower than October's price, and 6.3 cents lower than prices reported in September of this year.

The decrease in gas prices can largely be attributed to inventory level and production rate keeping up with a strong demand.

The Humility of Thanksgiving

Humility and thanksgiving walk hand in hand. One must be humble in order to feel properly thankful. Conversely, one must have an attitude of thanksgiving to experience true humility. Some see humility as a brand of weakness, yet it has been said, "Humility is strong–not bold; quiet–not speechless; sure–not arrogant."

May we resolve to take with us each day of the year the spirit of thankfulness and humility we experience on this Thanksgiving Day. Let us worship God with thankful hearts and humble ourselves before Him in praise. "Rejoice always, pray constantly, give thanks in all circumstance; for this is the will of God for you."

May you all have a most joyous Thanksgiving Day.

LET'S ALL GIVE THANKS!

Many years ago the first settlers on this continent joined with the native Indians to give their thanks for the harvest of food, which they shared. They also gave thanks for just being alive although disease and lack of medicines were common occurrences.

Today, most of the diseases that were prevalent at that time have been conquered and it would certainly be appropriate as we continue the tradition of Thanksgiving to express our gratitude for the good health we enjoy. It would also be appropriate for us to express our thanks to all of you for giving us the opportunity and responsibility of taking care of your pharmacy needs.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHO CAN ENDURE THAT DAY?
November 30, 1997

Background Scripture:
Malachi 2:17 through 3:18
Devotional Reading:
Malachi 2:17 through 3:5

Our concept of God doesn't permit us to think of him as ever getting tired. But, if it were possible, it would be human beings who could do it! That God isn't ever exhausted certainly is not from lack of trying on our part.

In the Book of Malachi, therefore, we have to keep in mind that the prophet is speaking only figuratively when he says, "You have wearied the Lord with your words" (2:17). I know the feeling. If religion were primarily a matter of the words we speak, we'd all be religious masters. How easy it is to go on verbally about religion without demonstrating our words with deeds. Sometimes I ask, "Lord, don't you get tired of all these words, words, words?"

Of course, it is not our words but our deeds that tell the most about us. Very often, I think, we use words as a substitute for deeds. Words become a wall that hides us—or at least we think it hides us. In Malachi's own day people were questioning how God could be just, yet permit injustice. Mockingly, they said, "Everyone who does evil is good in the sight of the Lord, and he delights in them." Or, more directly: "Where is the God of justice?" This all sounds somewhat blasphemous, but, let's be honest, isn't that the way we think sometimes? Don't we wonder how God can possibly permit evil to flourish and good to be trodden into the dust.

WHICH EVIL MAN?

I believe it was St. Augustine who told about two Christians who were having a knock-down, drag-out dispute (not exactly the way St. Augustine described it). One man lifted up his voice and cried, "Oh Lord, strike down and punish this evil man." The heavenly voice replied: "Which evil man?" Lots of us are anxious for God's judgment to come upon the earth because we assume that that is bad news for our neighbor and good news for us. What we are overlooking is the Bible's insistence that judgment is bad news for all of us. (The Bible also tells us the good news of God's grace.)

So it was in Malachi's day, too. Lots of the people were eager for God's judgment because they believed it would fall on someone else. "Behold, I send my messenger to prepare the way before me," says Malachi, "and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple; the messenger of the covenant in whom you delight, behold he is coming, and who can stand when he appears?" (3:1,2). The answer: no one.

The purpose of God's judgment, according to Malachi, is not to destroy the evil malefactor, but to refine him or her. Here Malachi is using a technical term which is applied to burning a metal ore to rid it of all its impurities. "For he is like a refiner's fire...he will sit as refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi and refine them like gold and silver, till they present right offerings to the Lord" (3:2b,3).

'THE EVIL ONES'

Do you remember how bitterly disappointed Jonah was because Nineveh repented and thereby escaped God's judgment? Jonah preached doom to the people of Nineveh, not so that they would repent, but because he wanted to see vengeance against these people. Just as God sent a refiner's fire, not to destroy the sons of Levi, but so that they could again "present right offerings to the Lord," so he sent Jonah to Nineveh so that they might be spared.

We need to be very careful when we nurse the desire for vengeance in our hearts, even when that vengeance is supposedly in defense of God's honor. In his book, The Urge to Punish, Professor Henry Weihofen quotes Nietzsche: "Distrust all in whom the impulse to punish is strong." Weihofen goes on to comment, "No one is more bitter in condemning the 'loose' woman than the 'good' women who have on occasion guiltily enjoyed some purpose dreams themselves. It is never he who is without sin who casts the first stone."

But who can endure the day of his coming, and who can stand when he appears?" By ourselves, none of us. With the grace of God, all of us.

COVER STORY

Roma Downey presents a holiday gift to families

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Roma Downey

Fans of Touched by an Angel will be in seventh heaven when series star Roma Downey appears in a new CBS holiday movie on Sunday, Nov. 30.

In Borrowed Hearts, Downey plays Kathleen Russell, the strugglmg single mother of 7-year-old Zoey (Sarah Rosen Fruitman). As the holidays approach, her bachelor boss, Sam (Eric McCormack), needs to "rent" a family for a few days to impress an important, family-minded prospective buyer for his business, Javier Del Campo (Hector Elizondo).

Kathleen and Zoey sign on (for a whopping fee), and as time goes by, the business arrangement starts to give way to something else. (It is hardly difficult to guess what.)

Downey says she and her producing partner, Tom Todoroff, rejected a number of TV movie proposals before settling on this family-friendly project, which she knew would be suitable to follow her Sunday series.

"Ninety-five percent of my fan mail comes from mothers," the actress says, "and most of them write to say how nice it is to be able to relax and watch television with their children without one finger on the remote.

"For the first time I have a large fan base, and that means something to me. Just a few years ago, I couldn't get arrested (as an actress). I certainly didn't want these people to watch me as Monica (her Angel character), then see me right after that as an ax murderess."

In her executive producer function, Downey says she reined in a secondary plot point in which Zoey becomes convinced that Del Campo is an angel whose mission is to make Zoey part of a complete family.

"The nice thing is, we see Mr. Del Campo through the little girl's eyes," Downey says. "Originally, the script had several other angel references, and at one point, Mr. Del Campo simply vanished into thin air.

"Well, first I didn't want to seem that I was milking my own series too heavily," she says. "And I just felt older viewers would appreciate more ambiguity – so we're left wondering who he was, really. An angel? Maybe. Maybe not."

As for the movie as a whole, Pamela and Earl Wallace may have won Academy Awards for their gripping Witness screenplay, but their teleplay here is predictable. It won't require much sophistication or effort to keep at least two steps ahead of the plot at any point, although there are some nice moments.

As for the cast, Downey is charming without being cloying, and Elizondo lends gravity and ambiguity to a somewhat underwritten role. Most impressively, McCormack is very good as a romantic lead.

"He has a Cary Grant quality," Downey says of the relatively little-known Canadian actor. "I think he's going to be a very big star."

In a manner of speaking, of course, reviewing Borrowed Hearts is beside the point. Touched by an Angel has become a juggernaut for CBS, and airing this custom-made companion movie immediately following that hit show ensures ratings through the roof.

As far as Downey's fans are concerned, if she touches it, they will come.

IN FOCUS

ABC revs up a new version of The Love Bug with Bruce Campbell in the driver's seat as Hank, a failed auto racer. The Wonderful World of Disney presentation premieres Sunday, Nov. 30, on ABC.

After not making it in the racing world, Hank becomes a mechanic and meets a Volkswagen Beetle with a mind of its own. A rival (John Hannah) learns of the amazing car and tries to gain control of it.

Dana Gould, Dean Jones and Alexandra Wentworth also star.

Fox rings in holidays with Annabelle's Wish

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Adults may yawn, but younger viewers will fawn over the modest charms of Annabelle's Wish, an animated holiday special premiering Sunday, Nov. 30, on Fox.

Country music star Randy Travis narrates the hourlong fable based on the legend that Santa Claus gives voices to the animals for one day each year on Christmas Eve.

On this particular yuletide, Santa meets Annabelle, a newborn calf who is dazzled by the prospect of flying through the sky like one of his reindeer. Annabelle's mother assures her baby that, if she is extra good during her first year, she may ask Santa for "a special wish" next Christmas.

During that year, Annabelle befriends Billy, a boy who was traumatized and nearly killed in a barn fire when he was a small child. Since then, he has been mute. So by the time the next Christmas rolls around, Annabelle knows exactly what her wish will be.

Annabelle's Wish is nothing special for the first 45 minutes or so. Its animation is largely bottom-drawer, direct-to-video stuff, no more sophisticated than the weekly Jonny Quest episodes of three decades ago.

Cloris Leachman does some colorful voice work as a cruel aunt, but other voice veterans such as Rue McClanahan, Jerry Van Dyke and Jim Varney are lost among a generic cast of characters.

At the last moment, however, the story takes a sharp turn into an epilogue that transforms this cheaply animated fable into a modest but effective testimony to friendship, determination and sacrifice.

It is a story kids will watch until the cows come home.

A calf named Annabelle yearns to be one of Santa's reindeer in Annabelle's Wish. The hourlong holiday special premieres Sunday on Fox.

SUNDAY

It's a dog-eat-dog world for a puppy until he is adopted by a woman with Down syndrome in Smudge. The drama premieres Sunday on TNT.

TRIVIA

As an ex-President, John Quincy Adams argued the Amistad mutiny case before the Supreme Court.

Among Robert Wagner's first fans was Spencer Tracy, who picked Wagner for his co-star in 1956's The Mountain.

TRIVIA

Of TV fame, Jim Lehrer says, "Some people get recognized at a 7-Eleven store and never quite recover."

Only 18, Brandy Norwood (Moesha) has been honored with Billboard, Soul Train and American Music awards.

FSU Will Host Madrigal Dinner

Frostburg State University will present its second annual Madrigal Dinner on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 11 and 12, at 6:30 p.m. in the University's Lane Center. Tickets are available to FSU students for $12, and for all others, $18.

"After a lapse of several years, last year's dinner was so successful that we wanted to offer it again to the community," said Dr. Ellen Grolman Schlegel of the Department of Music.

The dinner will feature a menu of Medieval fare, such as: roasted beef and chicken, roasted potatoes, green vegetables, and trifle. The "feaste" will begin with a toast of Wassail. "Dialogues and exchanges between guests and participants will add to jollity of the evening," Schlegel said.

Music entertainment will be provided by the University Collegium Musicum. Serving as the group's interim conductor will be Allen Emerick. Chris McCabe will act as accompanist and stage director for the evening. Members of the group are: Howard Adams, Lauren Aycock, Jim Bowser, Leslie Buckel, Heather Chadwell, Bill Clark, Eric Coporale, Michael Hewitt, Sarah Jester, Jenny Krueger, Shane Magagna, Jennifer McClellan, Bill Moon, Mary Mumper, Brenda Pease, Barbara Resch, Amy Riffle, Renee Scott, Aaron Torgeson, and Richard Trask.

Dean of Humanities Dr. Philip Allen will serve as Lord Burg O' Frost; Lane Center director William Mandicott will portray the sheriff; Richard Trask, professor of English, will be court poet; and Dr. Joan DeVee Dixon of the FSU Department of Music will round out the cast of entertainers for the evening.

Also performing will be Jim Gleich. Known as "Juggling Jim" and currently a graduate student at FSU, Gleich brings with him a long list of performing credits as a veteran of stage combat, circus, and Medieval fairs.

"What better way to usher in the holiday season than with a traditional English Madrigal Dinner?" added Schlegel.

Tickets are available at the Information Desk, Lane Center, FSU. For more information and reservations, persons may call 301-687-4411, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

SMS Students Go Over The Top In Service Learning

By state law all students must complete 75 hours of service learning prior to high school graduation. Middle school students face a 30-hour requirement and at Southern Middle School Michelle Zollner, the service learning teacher, reports that most of her students not only hit the mark, but go beyond.

Many of the service hours are accomplished in the classroom, Zollner explained. She shows them how to use the service learning index, which lists participating organizations or agencies where students may serve.

To prepare them for entering the service learning program, which will take students out into the community, Zollner instills in her students the importance of being polite and focuses on related skills. "I teach them how to plan and how to make phone calls," she said.

Aside from having the necessary skills to perform community service, Zollner is anxious that her students have the understanding of who it is they are serving. For instance, she explained that students may assist a service club in selling food at an event to raise money for a particular cause.

It is the cause being served that Zollner wants the students to be able to see, and not just the customers purchasing food at a booth. "I want them to have some idea of who they are serving and why," she stated.

Southern Middle School students in Zollner's class have the opportunity to do some actual service outside the classroom. "Each child chooses where he or she wants to go," she said.

The more thought and effort that go into the selection of the service area, the more successful the experience will be for the student, Zollner explained.

Many of her students have been successful, if the numbers are any proof. Of those who were to complete their required hours, only five did not. Of the same group, approximately 150 students racked up extra hours. Those going over the top in hours range from one hour to 240 hours. "Some of these students have done exemplary service," Zollner added.

She noted several of the group she is currently working with who have accrued a large number of hours: Amanda Rechart, 240 hours; Logan Lewis, 198 hours; and Andrew Harvey, 134. "All of the students in the program deserve recognition for what they have accomplished," she concluded.

NPR Programming Coming To WFWM At Frostburg State

National Public Radio programming service will soon be provided to the residents of western Maryland and nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania by WFWM, the public radio station of Frostburg State University.

Approval for WFWM to become affiliated with NPR and to broadcast its programs was granted by the NPR Board of Directors at a meeting on November 20 in Washington, D.C.

Rene Atkinson, director of the campus-based station, says WFWM will begin airing the NPR news and cultural programming as soon as possible to meet public demand.

"There exists a desire by many area residents to have NPR be associated with a local, non-commercial public radio station, and WFWM is pleased to have the opportunity to make that resource available," he said.

According to Atkinson, NPR programs will be selected to enhance, not replace, the well-established program format of WFWM radio.

WFWM can be heard on 91.9 FM in the Cumberland, Frostburg, and Keyser areas, as well as on 96.3 FM in Oakland.

Several Students Complete Career Planning Class

The New Horizons/New Dimensions Programs of Garrett Community College recently completed the second FY98 series of a five-week, 10-session Career Planning class taught by Mary Kirkland, intake/counselor specialist with the New Horizons Program of GCC. The class included learning about job hunt strategies, getting to know oneself, what self esteem means to a non-traditional student returning to classes or to the work world, ways to build self esteem, what stress is and how to handle it, combining working with family obligations, time and budget management, resume writing, and job interview techniques.

Several interest tests were administered to participants to determine their career interests. These tests included the Career Assessment Inventory (CAJ), the Holland Code Self-Directed Search, and the GATB (General Aptitude Test Battery).

The recent group of students enrolled in the class included: Carol McDonnell, Patricia Dunkin, and Sheila Grimes. New Horizons Program participants enrolled in the non-credit Employment Skills Training program who completed the testing requirements of Career Planning were: Donna Frank, Elizabeth Kelly, and Tawnya Richard.

Anyone interested in enrolling in a Career Planning Class may call New Horizons weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 301-387-3071 or 301-387-3102 for complete information. "The class is a great beginning for a support group and has proven beneficial for re-entry individuals to make career decisions and to enter training in their areas of interest," stated Barbara Frey, program director for New Horizons and New Dimensions.

The New Horizons Program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grant funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the program through Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is 90% of the total program budget, with Garrett Community College contributing an additional $5,200, which is 10% of the total budget for New Horizons. The New Dimensions Program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources, Community Services Administration, Women's Services Division, in the amount of $14,998.

Taxpayers Have Right To More Info In Writing

In light of the public debate about taxes and tax administration over the past year, Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein wants Maryland taxpayers to know for certain what their rights are and what they can expect when dealing with the comptroller's office. Goldstein has expanded the section that will appear in the personal income tax booklet publicizing taxpayer rights. The information was first provided in 1988.

"We reviewed this issue again during the 1997 legislative session at the request of Delegate Michael J. Finifter (D-Baltimore Co.)," Goldstein said. "As a result, we are also publishing a new brochure to help taxpayers understand the kinds of collection notices they may get from the comptroller's office and to assure them they can speak to someone by telephone at each step along the way."

The comptroller is expanding the taxpayer bill of rights to include information on the right to have written explanations of the collection process and the hearings and appeals process, as well as the taxpayer's right to tape record any hearing regarding a case.

"These expanded efforts to publicize taxpayers' rights once again demonstrate Comptroller Goldstein's concern for taxpayers in the tax administration process," said Delegate Finifter.

"This kind of information is especially important now because we are preparing to move into the second phase of our annual compliance activity. We sent 140,000 notices to individuals who appear to owe additional Maryland income tax for one of the last three tax years, or who apparently did not file a tax return but may have an obligation to do so," Goldstein.

In many cases, taxpayers need only check a box on the notice or provide a copy of a tax return to close the matter. Those individuals who did not respond to the initial notice will begin to receive notices assessing penalties January 1, 1998. Maryland law requires interest of 13 percent per year be applied, and a penalty of as much as 25 percent of the tax due.

"As a Maryland taxpayer, you are entitled to fair and courteous treatment under the law. You are also entitled to clear and comprehensive instructions to help you comply with the law. Free assistance and individual income tax return preparation at any branch of the comptroller's office is another taxpayer right. You have the right to inspect any record held by the comptroller's office containing personal information about you. In the event that your return is examined, you may represent yourself or have someone represent you. These are a few of the important taxpayer rights we've been highlighting since 1988," said Goldstein.

The list of taxpayer rights and additional information regarding these and other changes to Maryland tax law will be in the 1997 personal income tax booklet, which will be mailed to more than two million taxpayers after Christmas. The new brochure describing the expanded taxpayer rights, "If you Get a Personal Income Tax Notice," is available on the Comptroller's Website at www.comp.state.md.us or the Forms-by-Fax system by calling 410-974-3299 and requesting Item #3011 on Index 2. For additional taxpayer assistance, persons may call 410-974-3981 or 1-800-MD-TAXES

State Number One In Offering On-Line Assistance

Maryland ranks first in the nation when it comes to offering sophisticated on-line tax assistance, forms, and information to its taxpayers, says a recently released study by the Progress & Freedom Foundation and IBM's Institute for Electronic Government. State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said Maryland scored 93 out of a possible 100 points available to states in the study. Kansas ranked a distant second with a score of 80 points.

In compiling the rankings of state tax departments in The Digital State, the researchers evaluated the accessibility of electronic tax information, availability of tax forms, ability to submit tax information via e-mail, and on-line help facilities. The study also pointed to Maryland's leadership in using imaging technology to process, store, and retrieve tax return information.

"The highest ranked states offered sophisticated on-line help to taxpayers, which is just another way of providing service. That's always been our way in Maryland, and the digital revolution has just given us another way to help businesses and individual taxpayers," Goldstein said.

The Maryland Comptroller's homepage has all 1996 and 1997 state tax forms and instructions, as well as ways for taxpayers to ask specific tax questions by e-mail. The website also has interactive features that allow taxpayers to determine if their state income tax refund was returned to the Comptroller's Office by the U.S. Postal Service and to search the 40,000 most recently reported unclaimed funds accounts. In addition, website visitors can get answers to frequently asked questions, directions to local taxpayer service offices, and state financial information.

Forms and instructions for taxes administered and collected by the Comptroller's Office are available at the Comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us or through the Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-3299.

The Progress and Freedom Foundation studies the impact of the digital revolution and its impact on public policy.

4-H Club News

SNOWY CREEK
by Shelby Glover, reporter

The Snowy Creek 4-H Club went on a field trip November 1 to Harsh Lamb Farms in Horse Shoe Run, W.Va.

First, we were taken to the downstairs of the barn, where they were shearing the sheep. Upstairs, they were packing the wool into tall sacks, later to be sold. After they were finished shearing, they took the newborn lambs and gave them a shot for overeating and also put a rubber band on each tail to dock them.

Then we went to the other barn where there were various young lambs. Some of the kids got to bottle feed the lambs. Michael and Mitchell Guard played with a lamb named Spot and taught it to follow them we were invited to stay and eat lunch in their shop.

On November 9, the club held a Demonstration Day. We had a guest, Alice Hevner, who came and gave pointers to the kids who were giving demonstrations. Michael Guard and Mitchell Guard did their demonstration about pigs. Jennifer Lowdermilk brought in her cat for a demonstration. Derek Lowdermilk did his demonstration on cookies, and he served members brownies that he made.

The monthly meeting was held on November 13 with 15 members present. The club had the election of new officers for 1998. Elected were: president, Michael Guard; vice president, Jeremiah Guard; secretary, Jennifer Lowdermilk; treasurer, Stacey Glover; and reporter, Shelby Glover.

The club voted to decorate the Friendsville Library for Christmas on December 6, as part of Community Service. They will get together November 22 to make Christmas ornaments.

Shelby Glover did a demonstration on veterinary science. Stacey Glover did a demonstration on her broiler project, and Jeremiah Guard did his demonstration on beef cows. The Clovers worked on making Christmas ornaments under the supervision of their leader, Robin Lowdermilk.

The next meeting is scheduled for December 11, and the club will be having a Christmas dinner on that night.

Books
by Ralph Hollenbeck

"The female of the species is more deadly than the male." Rudyard Kipling's remark is most apt in a genre that women rapidly — and quite entertainingly — are dominating. THE DEVIL IN MUSIC, by Kate Ross (Viking: $24.95), is a marvelous example of the change. The author, a trial lawyer in Boston, has created a most engaging protagonist in Julian Kestrel, who has appeared in three of her earlier fictions. Kestrel, a Regency Ers dandy, loves music and dabbling in crime investigation. Both involve him, his ex-pickpocket valet, Dipper, and traveling companion, Dr. MacGregor, in a murder case while touring Italy. The case involves the murder of a Milanese marquis, Lodovico Malvezzi, and the disappearance of his English singing protege, Orfeo. Kate Ross peoples her drama with an intriguing cast. Italy at die time is Austrian ruled and revolution is in the air. Other murders, numerous personal deceptions, and Kestrel's Holmesian deductions keep the pages turning toward a totally unexpected solution ... Anne Perry also populates THE SILENT CRY (Fawcett Columbine: $24.95) with familiar names. Victorian hypocrisy surfaces when Rhys Duff is accused of killing his father in a London slum where young men such as he seek out the area's prostitutes. Yet investigator William Monk and nurse Hester Latterly are concerned equally with Rhys' innocence and the brutal rapes of many of the young women, who have no standing in society or the courts. Here again the engrossing saga ends with a socko — and surprising — solution.

Antiques

Q. What is Quimper pottery?

A. It is tin-glazed and hand-painted pottery that has been made in Quimper, France, since the late 17th century.

Three firms made the pottery and decorated it with designs of peasants, or sea and flower motifs. The companies were HB Quimper, Porquier and Henriot Quimper. All three companies merged by 1968. In 1983, the merged company declared bankruptcy and was purchased by an American firm that had been importing its wares. The holding company, Quimper Faience Inc., is located in Stonington, Conn.

Q. As a youngster, I was a big fan of Vinnie Barbarino. I still have some dolls, one of the Barbarino character and one of the actor, John Travolta. Now that Travolta has had a comeback, are they valuable?

A. Absolutely! Along with other character collectibles from the 1970s, John Travolta and Vinnie Barbarino dolls are hot.

The "Welcome Back, Kotter" Barbarino doll, made by Mattel in 1976 as part of a series of dolls based on the sitcom, sells for $40 if it's in mint condition, in its original packaging. If you took the doll out of the plastic bubble and threw away the cardboard backing that pictured the "Kotter" characters, the doll alone would be worth about $20.

The John Travolta Superstar doll by Chemtoy, released in 1977, sells for $45 if it's mint in its box. You might have saved that box, because it has several photos of a dreamy Travolta.

Native American Group Proceeds With Land Buy

The Wind Hollow Foundation has purchased 140 acres in Bittinger with the plan of constructing a Native American Conference Center. Theda J. McPherson, president, and Donald Keel, vice president, closed the land deal this week, according to reports. They hope to have a dedication ceremony on June 22, 1998.

The plans for the area include a conference center surrounded by seven "clan houses," or town-house type structures, to house visiting guests. The Foundation hopes to host conferences mainly centered on rural health issues, but will also be open to other concerns and projects of the Native American peoples.

In an earlier interview with Keel, he said he and McPheron hope to become involved with the local school system, offering artists-in-residence and hosting field trips to the center. They expect to build a reconstructed tribal area, which students will be able to visit and learn about Native American traditions and history.

There are plans to grow traditional Native American crops and to raise buffalo on the land. Keel said they will probably eventually hire about 25 people to staff the center.

There has been some controversy in the Bittinger area, where residents are reportedly wary of the proposed center, but local officials have noted that Wind Hollow has followed every prescribed step needed to rightfully purchase the land and develop the center.

GARRETT COUNTY'S PEARL HARBOR SURVIVOR, Jim Jackson, who resides off Gorman Road with his wife Judy, is shown above with the parade float he built over the summer of 1996 to honor his comrades who perished on "The day that will live in infamy." An ambulance driver for the 25th Infantry Division, Jackson worked throughout that day and night tending to the wounded. The parade float, modeled on the Pearl Harbor Memorial that rests atop the submerged remains of the USS Arizona which entombs 1177 men, contains photos and maps inside that portray the attack's events in an educational and thought-provoking way. "It's amazing to hear older people who remember that day tour through the float and explain the significance of Pearl Harbor to younger people who are curious about it," Jackson said. "If I could arrange transportation (a pick-up truck with a trailer hitch) I'd like to take it to local schools and talk to kids about that day and the war. We have to work not to let it be forgotten." This Sunday marks the 56th anniversary of the attack, and the day will be marked by an open house at the Keyser, W.Va., American Legion Post on Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

GCSO Completes Investigation Of David Allan Smith

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office has announced the completion of its investigation of the alleged sexual predatory activity of David Allan Smith with the filing of additional sexual offense charges against him this week. Smith, 31, has been incarcerated since Nov. 5 on a variety of offenses stemming from a series of alleged sexual assaults dating back to 1990.

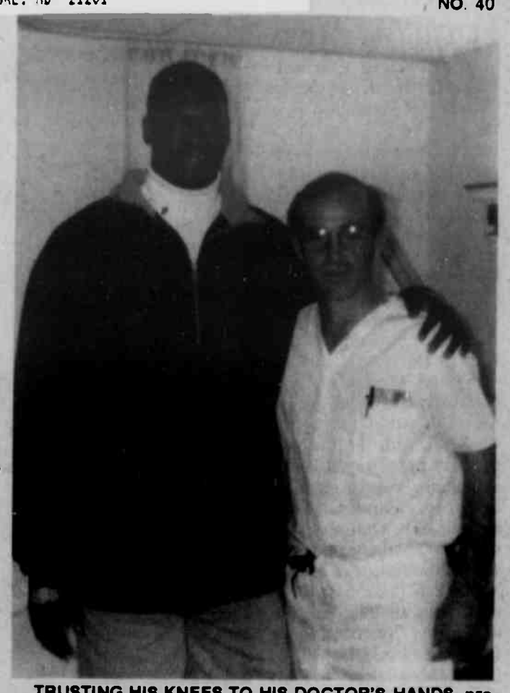
The most recent charges, filed on Wednesday, stem from an attack on an Oakland woman that occurred in September of 1996. For that incident, Smith is charged with one count each of attempted second-degree rape, second-degree sex offense, indecent exposure, and second-degree assault. Prior his bond hearing before the court commissioner on these most recent charges later today, Smith's bond stood at $175,000.

Facing a total of 26 charges involving alleged rapes or attempted rapes of six area women spanning from 1990 to this past July, Smith's potential maximum penalty at this point totals up to a 200-plus year prison sentence.

In other sheriff's news, a Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested and charged with second-degree assault after a domestic altercation with his wife on Monday evening.

Richard Wayne Wildesen, 40, and his wife Christa were allegedly arguing at their home when he reportedly became angry and violent. At this point, according to his wife, she threw food at him and he allegedly struck her in the side of the head and grabbed her by the neck, squeezing her throat. Wildesen then reportedly took their infant child and left with it in their car.

Sheriff's deputies called to the residence after Wildesen's departure noted visible abrasions on the alleged victim's neck. While the deputies were still at the house conducting their investigation, Wildesen returned with the infant and reportedly admitted to his part in the events as his wife had described them. He was placed under arrest and charged with second-degree assault, and subsequently released on his own recognizance.



TRUSTING HIS KNEES TO HIS DOCTOR'S HANDS, pro basketball player and former WVU standout Ricky Robinson, left, flew in from Poland last week for arthroscopic surgery by Oakland's Dr. David Tuel, who used a tiny scope to probe inside Robinson's knee and remove some torn cartilage. "The techniques of knee surgery today make it look like we've come out of the dark ages in the past 10 or 15 years," Tuel said. "Career-limiting and career-ending injuries to stars like Gale Sayers, Joe Namath, and Mickey Mantle, just to name a few, came just a few years too early. Each of those three athletes could have gone on to long and productive careers with the surgical techniques available today." For his part, Robinson is thankful for Tuel's skills, and for the fact that the doctor introduced him to his future wife, Tracy, while he was a student at WVU.

European League Pro Basketball Star Travels to Oakland For Knee Surgery

by David Foster

You know you trust your doctor when you travel halfway around the world to see him. That's just what pro basketball player Ricky Robinson did this week, as he flew 5,000 miles in a plane from Poland to the United States to see his orthopedic surgeon here in Garrett County.

Robinson, a power forward for the Torun Elanas, one of the top teams in the European professional basketball league, was operated on at Garrett County Memorial Hospital Friday morning by Oakland's Dr. David Tuel. Robinson, who suffered a knee injury in a game in Europe last week, has known Tuel since his playing days at West Virginia University, where Tuel was a member of the WVU orthopedic department.

"Dr. Tuel is a good friend of mine and I believe in him," Robinson said from his hospital bed, which barely contained his 6'8", 240-pound frame. "When something's being done to your body you have to be able to trust your doctor to do the best he can."

The 25-year-old Robinson, who grew up in Roselle, New Jersey, just across the Hudson River from New York City, now plys the hardwood courts a long way from the playgrounds of his youth. After a stellar collegiate career at WVU from 1990 to 1994, he was drafted by the Atlanta Hawks but never quite caught on in the NBA. For the past three years he's played in Torun, where he's become a star in the same town where 16th-century astronomer Nicolaus Copernicus once searched the night skies.

"The European game is a combination of American college basketball and the NBA," Robinson commented. "They allow zone defenses, like in college ball, but the play is a lot more physical, which is more like the pros here.

"The fans are just like American fans," he continued. "They're very receptive and supportive of their home teams, and they especially like American players

Yoder Gives Report On Progress Of Western Maryland Fisheries Initiative

Gary Yoder of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources met with the Garrett County Commissioners Tuesday to update them on the progress of the Western Maryland Fisheries Initiative. The initiative was developed by the Outdoor Caucus and is contained in the Western Maryland Fisheries Initiative Master Plan. Yoder reported that the sport of fly fishing is growing hugely in the county, and that the county offers a great deal to those who enjoy the sport.

As a result of the initial meeting concerning the topic, held this past June, a standing committee made up of local business persons and governmental officials was established to continue the development and implementation of the Western Maryland Fisheries Initiative. Yoder said the committee has met monthly since its inception and has established several working subcommittees.

The committee is chaired by Don Hershfeld, who is presently employed by the Army Corps of Engineers as

Christmas Rotary Project Thriving; Widely Supported

The spirit of Christmas is alive and well according to David Bolinger, Rotarian and Christmas Project chairperson. He indicated that most local businesses, where trees are located, have reported that "Christmas-spirited" shoppers are once again opening their hearts and wallets to purchase the requested items listed on the gift need cards. The 17th Rotary Annual Christmas Project goal this year is to provide clothing and toys to needy children and a Christmas dinner to their 450 families. All children and their families have been determined as needy by local social service agencies working with the Rotary club.

Other Garrett county civic clubs and organizations are joining with the Rotary club by making monetary contributions,

Emily H. Keene, Jane Lightfoot Soloists For "Messiah" Concert

Emily Hastings Keene

Jane Lightfoot

Among the guest performers for the Garrett Choral Society's presentation of Handel's "Messiah," slated for December 12-14, will be mezzo soprano Emily Hastings Keene, who is an adjunct lecturer with the voice faculty of West Virginia University, and Jane Lightfoot, who is currently pursuing a master's degree at WVU.

Ms. Hastings Keene has compiled a long list of performances in the United States and Europe during her nearly 20-year career. She received her early training from June Swartwout at West Virginia University, and later studied with Metropolitan Opera mezzo Helen Vanni at the Cleveland Institute of Music. Later teachers and mentors included Mary Makower, Marlena Malas, Phyllis Curtin, Mimi Lerner, and John Haber. She received her performer's diploma from the London Opera Center and then made her international opera debut with Haydn's "Il Mondo della Luna" at the Wexford Festival in Ireland.

She began her association with the Metropolitan Opera in New York at the age of 25, and performed such diverse roles as Rosina in "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" to Smaragdi in Zandonai's verismo opera "Francesca da Rimini." In 1985, Ms. Hastings Keene turned her sights to Europe and became a noted interpreter of trouser roles, especially Octavian in "Der Rosenkavalier," a role which took her to the stage of the Berne Opera in Switzerland, as well as to numerous German theaters.

In the midst of a career which encompassed some 50 opera and musical theater roles, political changes in Germany forced Ms. Hastings Keene to leave the country, and she established herself in England as an alto soloist in concert and oratorio. Now residing in the United States, she has recently performed Brahms' "Alto Rhapsody" at the Fulton Theater in Pittsburgh, and the "Messiah" alto solos with members of the West Virginia Symphony at Charleston's Municipal Auditorium, as well as roles with the Opera Theater of Pittsburgh in its American Opera Series.

Ms. Hastings Keene holds a master's degree from West Virginia Univer-

Bear Cub Shot In Vicinity Of Keysers Ridge

The Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) is soliciting the public's assistance as they investigate the illegal shooting of a black bear cub which occurred on Saturday on property located west of Keysers Ridge.

The wounded cub was discovered by a hunter who reportedly came upon the severly wounded animal, paralyzed with a bullet to the spine, as two suspects dressed in fluorescent orange hunting garb were attempting to shoot it a second time. The pair fled when the third hunter called out to them.

The concerned hunter called the NRP immediately and was given permission to euthanize the animal due to the severity of the injury.

Citizens with any information concerning this violation are encouraged to call NRP at 1-800-628-9944, or the Catch-A-Poacher Hotline at 1-800-635-6124.

A reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the individual(s). All information, including the identity of any callers, will remain anonymous.

VOLUNTEERS SWARM TO HELP FARMING ACCIDENT VICTIM - A young local man was the victim of a grisly farming accident on the morning of Thanksgiving Day in Pleasant Valley, the result of which was the amputation of his right hand. Steve Paugh, 28, got his hand caught in a corn picking machine. The call for help came in at approximately 9:20 a.m., and it took emergency workers about two hours to extricate him from the apparatus. They are pictured above as they strive to release him. Those responding to the accident site were members of the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad and the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. The Trooper 5 helicopter from Maryland State Police arrived on the scene and transported Paugh to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. The emergency personnel are pictured below as they carry the injured man to the aircraft.

Missing Person Report Filed On Accident Man

A missing person report was filed recently by a neighbor of a disabled man.

Delbert Friend, 60, Accident, was listed as a missing person after an absence from his apartment of more than a week. According to a spokesman at Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Friend was last seen Nov. 21.

Reportedly, prior to leaving his apartment Friend had told a neighbor he was going to visit family in Cumberland. Police said this became a concern because Friend had not taken his medications with him.

Friend was described by police as a short man, about 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds. His hair was long and gray as was his beard. Both of Friends legs are crippled snd he walks with two metal canes, police said.

A neighbor said that Friend kept very much to himself and it was quite unusual that he would have gone out alone. He reportedly had great difficulty in walking.

Police are continuing the investigation and ask that anyone with information about Delbert Friend contact the state police at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Oakland Police Report Cemetery Vandalism Cases

The Oakland Cemetery has been the site of dozens of cases of vandalism over the past week. John Sines, police chief for the town, said that the situation is the worst he has seen in 15 years.

The damage, which extends to 36 grave markers, was first noticed and reported by Bud Lewis, a town employee, whose duties include being caretaker for the cemetery.

Several incidents of the destruction of stone monuments occurred during the weekend, with the majority of them perpetrated in the afternoon and evening hours of Sunday, Sines stated. He estimates the cost of the damage to be several thousands of dollars.

Though there have been no arrests in this case, investigation is continuing. Chief Sines said he will be interviewing some people this week. He has asked that anyone with information about this crime call the Oakland Police at 301-334-2100.

SENSELESS VANDALISM was discovered this week in the Oakland Cemetery. These pictures are but a sample of the 36 cases of destruction to grave markers. In this case, a picture is truly worth a thousand words.

Correction Noted

The Republican published a story two weeks ago concerning a bank account used by former sheriff Randy Sines. The story stated that memos were being sent to the county finance office from the state to inform the local personnel that certain funds had been forwarded to the sheriff. It should be noted that the notation was in fact not provided to the local office; that the monies should have legally gone through the finance office, but they did not. There was no way the local personnel could have known that state money was being sent directly to the sheriff if he, himself, did not report it.

The staff has since initiated an effort to emphasize to all remitting agencies that the county's policy requires that all county money must first come to the finance office before being distributed to any other office. This has been the policy for many years, but some remitting agencies are unaware of it.

Bid Accepted For Jail Expansion

The Garrett County Commissioners Tuesday approved a bid proposal submitted by the A.D. Naylor & Co. for the plamed jail expansion project. The plan is to renovate the space formerly used as sheriff and deputy offices into additional cells. The local company submitted a bid of $176,700 -- the lowest of three received, according to Gary Mullich, general services director.

The project will include new bunking space for seven inmates. Also to be constructed is a required handicapped-accessible area, as well as an isolation unit.

The money for the project is coming from the county, which is giving $100,700, and from grant funds totaling $76,000.

Construction should begin soon, with completion expected in the early spring of next year.

December BOE Meeting Noted

The next regularly scheduled meeting for the Garrett County Board of Education will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 9, in the Board of Education meeting room at the board offices in Oakland.

The meeting will be called to order at 3 p.m. followed by acceptance of public comment. At approximately 3:05 p.m. the board will go into executive session.

The public session of the meeting will re-open immediately following the executive session. A second period of public comment is scheduled for 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend the meeting.

which will go toward the purchase of much of the 30,000 pounds of food to be distributed to the families of these needy children. Turkey or ham, sweet potatoes, dressing, vegetables, cranberry sauce, rolls and more will be donated to each family to help ensure that "they too will enjoy a wonderful Christmas meal," said Bolinger. The food, clothing, and toys will be delivered on December 20 by volunteers from throughout Garrett County.

Jack Fridinger, Rotarian, reports that monetary contributions and bundles of toys have been arriving daily at the Arrowhead Market. Many of these donations and contributions are coming from visitors and weekend residents who come to Deep Creek Lake, he said. "Every year, the increased participation of these visitors and lake residents show just how much they too care about our needy children and their families," said Fridinger.

David Bolinger agreed that the generosity of part-time residents is noteworthy." This is a wonderful expression of community support," he said. "With this type of reaction by the shoppers throughout Garrett County, these needy children and their families will have a Merry Christmas."

Persons desiring to make a monetary contribution in lieu of purchasing a gift from a need card may do so by mailing their contribution to: Oakland Rotary Christmas Project, P.O. Box 741, Oakland, MD 21550.

Drug Arrest At Swallow Falls Nets Guilty Plea

A Baltimore man pleaded guilty in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings to possession of marijuana and was handed a probation before judgment.

Jeffrey Lance Williamson, 28, had been arrested by park rangers at Swallow Falls State Park in August along with three other individuals, Donna Beth Feddock, 28, Baltimore, James Lloyd Williamson, 31, and Robin Ellen Tillotson, 25, both of Pasedena. Each subject was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

While all charges against the other three persons were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office, as was Jeffrey Williamson's possession of drug paraphernalia charge, Williamson was prosecuted on his possession of marijuana charge. After pleading guilty he was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, ordered to complete 30 hours of community service, and placed on six months of unsupervised probation.

The probation before judgment ruling means that the case will not reflect a criminal conviction against Williamson if he complies with all the terms of his probation agreement.

In other recent district court news, an Oakland man who was arrested for disorderly conduct during October's Autumn Glory festivities appeared for his hearing.

Roger Lee Keiper, 44, had been arrested by sheriff's deputies for yelling obscenities at Autumn Glory parade watchers near his house, and was charged with two counts of disorderly conduct and one count of disorderly intoxication in public. The judge placed all charges onto the stet docket, meaning that they could be recalled for trial within the next 365 days if the court doems it necessary. Keiper was further ordered to complete 30 hours of community service as a condition of the stet order.

Couple Injured In One-Vehicle Mishap On I-68

An elderly Grantsville couple were injured Nov. 26 in a one-vehicle mishap on 1-68.

According to a report filed with Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Theodore Bittinger, 87, the driver, and his wife Genevieve, 87, were eastbound on 1-68 west of Shade Hollow Road around 4:45 p.m.

The vehicle apparently experienced some steering problems, the report said. The car left the roadway and traveled onto the median, struck a sign support pole and culvert, then entered the westbound lane of the highway. Bittinger's vehicle finally came to rest in the median.

Northern Rescue Squad transported Mr. and Mrs. Bittinger to Sacred Heart Hospital, where they were treated and released.

FAILURE TO YIELD

Police responded to an accident on Route 219 last Friday around 10:37 a.m.

The report stated that Gary L. Wiles, 38, Smithfield, Pa., was northbound on Route 219 at the time. Mary L. Everette, 51, McHenry, traveling eastbound on the McHenry spur, stopped at the stop sign and then proceeded to cross the intersection, failing to yield the right of way to Wiles. police said.

Everette was injured in the ensuing collision and transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial, where she was treated and released.

Everette was charged in the incident.

ONE MAN INJURED

One man was injured in an accident on 1-68 near Chestnut Ridge Road, Nov. 26, at 4:49 p.m. The police reported that Bret T. O'Neil, 31, Point Marion, Pa., was northbound on the ramp from the westbound lane of I-68 onto Chestnut Ridge Road.

Charles T. Stanton, 45, Grantsville, was traveling northbound on Chestnut Ridge Road at that time and O'Neil allegedly turned left in front of Stanton's vehicle. Stanton struck O'Neil's vehicle.

Police charged O'Neil and Stanton was taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospsital by private vehicle. He was treated and released.

DEER STRUCK IN FOG

On Monday, at 12:30 a.m. police responded to an accident on Route 219 near Haenftling Road. William J. Murphy, 41, Accident, was reportedly south bound on Route 219 when a deer ran in front of his vehicle.

Murphy was injured when his vehicle collided with the deer and was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment and was later released. Heavy fog and wet road conditions were noted in the police report. No charges were filed.

FAILED TO REDUCE SPEED

Failure to reduce speed resulted in a rear end collision on Route 219 Monday at 6:50 p.m., according to a police report.

Carroll W. Deem Jr., 42, Oakland stopped his car on Route 219 and prepared to turn left into a private drive. A juvenile who was traveling in the northbound lane of Route 219 at that time, allegedly failed to reduce speed and struck the Deem vehicle in the rear.

The juvenile driver and a passenger were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital by Southern Rescue Squad.

DWI

Sandra L. Stewart, 44, McHenry, was charged with driving while intoxicated on Nov. 26.

Statue Theft Reported; MSP Investigating

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, received a report on Monday of the theft of a statue from in front of an Oakland business.

Sometime between 6 p.m. on Nov. 29 and 8:30 a.m. on Dec. 1, a black and gold aluminum statue of an Indian was taken from in front of the Shawnee Trading Post, which is located on the corner of Sand Flat Road and Pysell Crosscut Road, police said. The statue is six feet high and weighs 120 pounds.

In order to remove the statue, a block pedestal was destroyed. Because of the size of the statue and the pedestal, the police said it may have taken some time for the suspects to complete the theft.

Anyone who has any information concerning this case is asked to contact Maryland State Police at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

ARC Bloodmobile Collects 87 Units At Monday Visit

Ninety people took time out from the holidays and hunting season to help others by donating blood at the American Red Cross bloodmobile in Grantsville on Monday. From those responding, 87 units of blood were collected.

"During the holidays every donor is very dear. Donations tend to drop but not the need," stated a local ARC representative. "The units collected on Monday will be processed to help as many as 348 people. I think every one of us knows somebody who's been helped by those who willingly give of their time and themselves to donate or help at a bloodmobile."

Three new people joining the ranks of blood donors for the first time were Patricia Durst, Kevin Yoder, and Shelly Yoder.

Gallon milestones were reached by several people. Carol Yoder reached the two-gallon mark, the three-gallon milestone was reached by Rufus Yoder, Clifford Bender and Susan Summers achieved the five-gallon milestone, Olen Brenneman reached the six-gallon mark, and Marvin Beachy topped the eight-gallon mark. Jessie Shirley was top donor for Monday, donating for the 80th time to achieve the 10-gallon milestone.

Volunteers assisting Lela Bender, bloodmobile coordinator and greeter, were: Glenda Yoder and Lila Maust, registration; Debbie Haning and Missy Fazenbaker, walkers; Fannie Beachy, canteen; Lula Brown and Anna Belle Folk, kitchen; and the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department, custodians.

The next Garrett County bloodmobile has been moved to Monday, Dec. 22, at the Oakland Armory from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone age 17 or older who weighs at least 105 pounds and is in generally good health may donate blood every 56 days. Those with a question on donor eligibility may call the Johnstown Region American Red Cross at 1 800-54BLOOD.

Stately Halls...

Photographic Works and Writings of

Leo Beachy

Volume III

Compiled by

Matthew W. Novak

"STATELY HALLS" is the name of the third volume of photographic works and writings of Garrett County's renowned photographer Leo Beachy (pictured below), which has just come off the presses at Sincell Publishing Company and is now for sale at various locations throughout the county. The book, like Volumes I and II, was compiled by Matthew W. Novak and Maxine Beachy Broadwater, who is a niece of the late photography master. Copies of the book, which make good holiday gifts, may be purchased in Grantsville at the library, Dream Weavers, Penn Alps, Yoder's Locker, and the Grantsville office of The Republican; in Oakland at the Book Mark'et, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, and Gregg's Pharmacy; and at Deep Creek Lake at Expanding Horizons book store.

an aquatic ecologist in the Huntington, W.Va., corporation office. Hershfeld recently purchased property on the Youghiogheny River near Hays Run and plans to leave the corps in the spring of 1998. He apparently wishes to establish a fly fishing school and a bed and breakfast at the site, Yoder reported.

He also told the commissioners that a fly fishing brochure is being developed by the committee. Several drafts have been edited and it is anticipated that it will be ready for a spring mailing of approximately 10,000, as part of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce Vacation Guide. The brochure will also be placed in visitor centers, distributed at sport shows, and sent out as a selected mailing. The cost for the development and printing of the brochure will be shared among the advertising sponsors, Yoder said.

The brochure will consist of a location map with directions to local fisheries, a description of the fishery, general information about the Garrett County area attractions, hatch information, and phone numbers for angling-related services.

As a result of the fisheries initiative, Yoder said articles have been published in local and regional newspapers and magazine. Most notable of these appeared in the December issue of Fly Fisherman Magazine and a feature article in the Virginia Outdoor Weekly. In one of these reports, the Savage River was referred to as the Yellowstone of the east.

Yoder went on to report that the advisory committee is examining the most effective means of coordinating local and state-wide information systems, such as the 1-800 numbers available through the Maryland Office of Tourism and local 1-800 numbers and vendors of related services. The goal is to connect consumers with service providers through the most efficient means possible. He said Neil Jacobs, a Baltimore businessman and member of the conunittee, has agreed to review what is presently available and develop recommendations on the issue.

Yoder said the advisory committee is also making an effort to provide some degree of quality assurance in guide service. The committee, in conjunction with the Adventuresports Institute, has formed a subcommittee to develop criteria for the certification of guides. Certification would be on a voluntary basis and designed to encourage guides to develop multi-level skills, including safety, knowledge of laws and regulations governing the sport, basic freshwater ecology, fly fishing knowledge and skills, as well as knowledge of local streams, rivers and lakes. In addition, it is the goal of the certification process to encourage guides to act as a conduit of information not necessarily related to fly fishing but essential to the visitor's perception of a quality experience.

"We want the guides to know some county history and to know the local hospitality industry," Yoder said. "That way, when a visiting fisherman asks where to eat, the guide can give him several options. This of course will help the local restaurants and hotels. And if the fisherman asks in the middle of the river, 'Where are we right now?' the guide can give him a knowledgeable answer.'"

Yoder said the actual certification process would include both a written and practical skills examination.

He also reported on the success of a "Fly Fishing for Beginners" seminar, which was held on Oct. 18. The DNR, in cooperation with the Adventuresports Institute, conducted the course at New Germany State Park. The seminar attracted 20 participants (which was the maximum allowed) and drew them from six states -- Ohio, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland. Given the overwhelming response to this event, the organizers are planning a similar course in April of 1998.

Yoder reported that a private investor is in the process of developing a pilot for a children's outdoor television show. It is to feature children being introduced to hunting and fishing, and would be marketed to sponsors such as Cabella's (which has recently announced a children's clothing line), Jeep, Orvis, and others.

DNR fisheries staff is apparently working closely with the investor and producer and have recently completed shooting the fishing segment of the pilot. This was done on the Youghiogheny River and on Deep Creek Lake. Fisheries employees appear on camera with children, explaining fisheries management, stream entomology, fly-tying, and other issues. Yoder said the Discovery Channel has expressed some interest in the show.

He said one of the next steps for the committee is to develop a quality assurance monitoring program, which would include surveying fisherman to develop a data base on drawing areas, user satisfaction, needs assessment and response to problems, stocking requirements, and other topics. He said the DNR is very aware of the potential for overuse along the rivers and, while there is no current problem, officials will continue to monitor the use.

He also noted that the committee wants to identify sponsors for the development of a 15-minute regional fisheries video, which would be provided to local access cable channels for gratis air time. Several slots would be made available for local sponsor sales. The video would also be supplied to regional libraries, to be included on travel and leisure shelves. An article for the vacation guide is also planned to highlight regional fisheries.

SENIORS AND YOUTH CAME TOGETHER for an early Thanksgiving celebration recently at Meadow Woods East seniors residential home. "There was a lot of talking and laughing," said Crystal Uphold, pictured above serving the hearty diners. "Everyone kept telling me how they liked the dinner, and I enjoyed the day there with them. It was a fun thing to do." The seventh-grader from Southern Middle School waitressed along with classmate Jessica Livingood, and other volunteers who helped make the special day a success were Tracy and Patricia Uphold, Carrie Miller, and Michele Mouré. Food Lion of Oakland, IGA of Mtn. Lake Park, and the Brookeside Inn of Aurora, W.Va., all donated food, time and service in preparing and serving the delicious dinner.

It's Like a Plague...

Prejudice, bigotry, and intolerance take many forms and nearly always result in a negative outcome. While the enslavement of black Africans by the early residents of our nation is perhaps the best known example, there are numerous other illustrations of this behavior/attitude that prevail in more subtle ways throughout all facets of our society today. Garrett County is no exception.

This issue of The Republican contains at least two stories - one a feature article and the other a straight news story (and probably many others) - with prejudice being the central theme, or at least an underlying factor. The feature story, which can be found in this section, is a heart-wrenching personal account of a local mother who lost her son to AIDS a few years ago. The young man, who had left his hometown here years before in a quiet exodus in order to find himself, was basically disowned by some members of his own family because of his sexual orientation; then the cruel blow of AIDS struck, to which no community is immune, and which carries its own spectre of social outcasting. But his mother stuck with him through the entire nightmare, and she has a profound message for all of us.

The news story to which we refer concerns the purchase of some property by some Native Americans in the Bittinger area, who claim that they want to construct a cultural/conference center on that site. Such a center would be a tremendous asset to our county, both in terms of the financial implications for the local economy and, more importantly, in terms of the educational opportunities it would bring to our schools and the community at large.

There is great suspicion by some residents, however, that the real goal of these individuals is to erect and operate a casino on the property. We understand their concern, and we would fight like wildcats right along with them to keep that from ever happening. But the fact of the matter is, gambling is illegal in Maryland, so no one, including Native Americans, will be allowed to operate a casino in Garrett County. If gambling is ever legalized in the state, we will have a much bigger problem anyway, even if the Native Americans stay true to their word, because we guarantee that there will be a whole string of casinos erected at Deep Creek Lake.

We realize that there are other significant concerns about the proposed Native American project that are legitimate: increased traffic, disruption of the rural environment, etc., and we know that not everyone in Bittinger is prejudiced toward Native Americans. But we have also witnessed and heard in recent weeks examples of nothing but pure prejudice. "The only good Indian is a dead Indian" was a popular saying in the late 19th century, and sadly, the same attitude lives today in the minds of some.

It also infuriates us that some other local print media continue to sensationalize the Bittinger issue, day after day, week after week, by highlighting the gambling concern in the headlines and in the story leads. This is manipulative, inciteful writing that is destructive and should be confined to the editorial page.

So many wonderful relationships among people are destroyed, or never established, because of prejudice and suspicion, which are usually the result of nothing but fear, ignorance, and bull-headedness. It's like a never-ending plague. What a different and incredible world it would be if there were no bigotry and intolerance among the races, the sexes, the nationalities, the religions, the socio-economic classes, and in the realm of politics.

by Sherry Frantz

She would have been 46 years old this week, the first week in December, and she would have been intensely joyous at the prospect of the holiday season coming around again. The brisk air exhilarated her senses, stirred up all the magic within her. And it spread from her, contagiously.

During those weeks before Christmas, Pam was in her glory because, during that time, her shining ability to make things nice and good and right for other people was most concentrated.

At Christmas, it seems there are two kinds of people -- those who would rather just get it over with and those who are carried away with the spirit. Pam, most assuredly, was part of the second group. No, she was the leader of that group, simply savoring all the warmth, comfort and joy it had to offer.

She completely involved herself in helping Lou (Santa) Stouffer get the word out about what items were needed to provide gifts for all the children in the area. She enthusiastically planned and produced the yearly office party. She baked. And cleaned. And decorated, accommodating all the wishes of her family and friends.

She was the embodiment of what we all seem to strive for during the holiday season, whether we choose Christmas or Hanukkah or just the flavor of something less concrete in the air.

For Pam, it just happened to be Christmas that inspired her glorious aura, her memories of Christmases past never fading, always vivid.

Pam held onto them. And if she had lived another 50 years, she would still have held onto them, never allowing anything or anyone to shake her faith in those memories or to hold her back from providing her family with the ones they still carry.

She would become frustrated at her human limitations, though, working into the wee hours of the morning (as her mother had done) to make everything storybook perfect for the people she cared about, coming to work the mornings after with little sleep. But her spirit still never faltered. Not in December. She could do without the sleep then, energized by her excitement.

And she didn't stop with her children, her husband, or her other family members and friends. Pam was the master at including those people who could easily be forgotten. Her power was striking.

It still is.

How fitting it is that Pam's birthday seems to mark the beginning of "the holidays."

It's been almost four years since we lost Pam, and those of us who knew what a profound effect the Christmas season had on her are painfully reminded of how much we miss her. But we are also the ones who were fortunate enough to grab a piece of her effusive holiday spirit and allow her the pleasure of sprinkling it all around us.

That's what keeps us going.

To the Editor:

Several years ago I was a donor to the fundraising of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Never once did I think it would come back to me two-fold.

Recently, my 88-year-old mother fell and was hospitalized there for two weeks. What a beautiful facility!

I wish to commend Dr. Richter, the staff and support help, especially Sandy Kulak, for their positive support and care. The sub-acute unit is beautiful, a great addition, and we as Garrett Countians should be proud of a great facility.

To the Editor:

Thank you very much for placing the Southern Garrett Band's picture on the front page of your last edition, promoting their sale.

The band will be selling Christmas trees and wreaths at the Christmas Chalet; however, the Christmas Chalet is only providing the location for the sale. The trees and wreaths are being purchased by the band locally at Maple Lane Nursery. Some wreaths are also coming from MacFarline Tree Farm.

All proceeds from the sale of the trees and wreaths will go to the Southern Garrett Band, which is raising funds for a spring trip to Disney World. The band members and parents will be handling the sale.

Trees and wreaths will be available from now until Christmas at the Christmas Chalet from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Your support for the Southern Garrett Band is greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
Gary and Jan Shafer

To the Editor:

It is very sad when people who dislike animals steal or kill the pets of people who love them.

I am an animal lover and I do everything I can to stop abuse, but some people feel they can starve, beat, and tie animals with a short chain to an old box they call a dog house for the rest of their lives. (They need to be tied this way for awhile; I bet they would change their ways.) Many ignore sickness and let them suffer in all ways possible.

Then there are the people who love their animals and treat them as family. These are the type of people who lost their yellow Lab mix November. Being friends, I know this dog was the "other kid" in the family.

Yet someone, and we think we are pretty sure we know who, took it upon themselves to dispose of the dog.

We are now offering a $100.00 reward for the whereabouts of the animal. (There is still a $500.00 reward for the return of a live dog.)

This family needs to know, dead or alive, where their beloved pet is. I know from experience what heartbreak it is to lose a pet. Anyone who can help us, please call 301-746-5725 or 301-746-7528.

Gratefully,
Bernadine Friend
Executive Director

P.S. There is also a white German shepherd from the same area which has been missing for several days.

To the Editor:

Since moving to Garrett County I have discovered that there are some traffic laws that apply only to this area. I know I am still learning, but thus far I have noticed the ones below to be most sacredly held by local residents. I am sure there are many more so maybe others can help me complete the list.

Garrett County Driving Laws:

1. All STOP signs in Garrett County are really YIELD signs. Further, you may pull out in front of other vehicles as long as they are not so close as to crash into your side (crashing into your rear is acceptable).

2. All streets and roads are one way, the direction you are traveling, and you may drive in either lane you wish. UNLESS you meet someone else who also assumes the road is one way. In that case, you must steer back to your side of the road. Do this at your leisure, making sure the other driver goes into panic first. Waiting 'til the last minute assures that the oncoming call considers ditching their car before seeing that you are relenting.

3. Even if you choose to drive on your own side of the road most of the time at least go around blind curves in the middle of the road.

4. Never, never turn on your lights during rain or fog. This is either a sign of driving weakness or you are trying to save energy by keeping lights off. The exception to this is when you can no longer see your dashboard in a fog, you may turn on parking lights only. Letting other people see you coming in rain or fog makes driving in that kind of weather too easy for them.

5. With the new law in Maryland that requires the use of headlights whenever your wipers are on, we must realize that Garrett County must be exempt. See number 4 above.

To the Editor:

When we are going along the road of life and everything is running smooth we don't realize just how much our religious leaders in our community mean to us. It seems we don't think of their hardships and family matters, as often we should. It is when we are in a situation that has us up against a wall we call them for all of the answers. Our call is usually promptly answered in such a way that our burdens are lifted and we see things more clearly. Our heartfelt thanks goes to these chosen leaders in faith, hope, and charity.

The poem "Footprints in the Sand" tells how we are carried when the burdens in our life become more than we can carry ourselves. These leaders help convey us in our journeys through our lives. They visit when we are sick and pray for us when we are in despair. One such man and his wife is Pastor Bill Vanhoosier and his wife Lillie. These wonderful people have been such a gift to our lives in a time when they were going through some of life's most difficult times themselves. They had been told that their baby granddaughter Amber would not live after she had open heart surgery in late September of this year. Many times after the surgery they were told there was no hope. What the medical experts found was that God does provide miracles when they are prayed for. After many, many days and weeks Amber came home for Thanksgiving. Two days later another granddaughter was admitted to the hospital with pneumonia. This granddaughter also is home safe and sound. Prayers are answered all of the time, we just have to believe in God's healing powers and that he knows what is best for us.

During this Christmas season we have already received the most precious gift of all. That is the love and caring from our friends and families, and more importantly, the love of God.

Thankfully,
Sandra Deal Sukow

"BIODIVERSITY"

"Biodiversity" is a big, strange sounding and strange looking word. "Bio-" means life, as in biology or biography. "Biodiversity" means "diversity of life."

A surprising discovery is that, in spite of how wild and crazy the world is today, the varieties of life are becoming fewer, not more. That fact is expressed, for example, in legislation to protect endangered species of wild animals and plants.

We are losing entire species of animals, but just as serious is that we are losing a lot of variety within a given species. As examples of how diverse a species can be, a zucchini and a field pumpkin are both varieties of the same species, cucurbita pepo.

In 1800 it is estimated that there were 9,000 varieties of apples. Today there are about 1,000 varieties. That is a loss of over 80%. Of all commercially produced apples today, half are either Red or Golden Delicious. That means the other 998 varieties constitute the other half.

In fact, nearly all the commercially produced apples are from about 20 varieties. Probably less than five percent--maybe less than one percent--come from the other 980 varieties. So what?

A few weeks ago about 200 people gathered at Penn State University to discuss the various answers to that question. The group itself was diverse. The guru of veganism, Will Bonsall, was there (a vegan is a vegetarian who won't eat or use animal products; e.g., he won't eat cheese or wear leather).

Kent Whealy, co-founder of the Seed Savers' Exchange and guiding light to everyone in the American seed savers movement, gave the closing keynote speech. There were policy activists, U.S. Department of Agriculture plant scientists, farmers, owners of small seed companies, community gardeners, and some folks who were there just because they care.

The first answer to the question "So what?" is that genes are like blocks in a foundation. Every time a gene is lost, it is like pulling out a piece of the foundation. At some point the foundation is so weakened that the structure built on the foundation collapses. That building is life as we know it on the planet Earth.

Apples have been a strong interest of mine over the past few years, and that is why many of my examples have to do with apples. One of the varieties I grow is called Roxbury Russet. It is an ugly apple, misshapen, with blotches of brown russeting all over it. It is also one of the most delicious apples I have ever tasted, sweet and juicy with a cinnamon-like twang to it.

Besides being a great cider and eating apple, it is also one of the oldest American apple cultivars, dating back to the 1670s in Roxbury, Mass. Roxbury Russet trees witnessed the Battle of Bunker Hill and soldiers going off to fight for the Union and liberty in the Civil War. It is, in the most literal sense, part of who the fathers and mothers of our country were.

As a third answer to "So what?" I have to say, it would be a sad world where our experience of apples is limited to Red and Golden Delicious.

Delicious apples are pretty, but--as I am fond of saying in more than one context--"pretty is as pretty does." For looks, I'll take a drive in the country or go to an art gallery.

There is a revival of the hometown seed company and the roadside stand. There is a revival of farming on a human scale. These are settings for a diversity of fruits and vegetables, in part, because they are settings in which things can be sampled and explained. It is in the local setting that we can demand and offer the whole cornucopia of cultivated nature.

In the orchard, the garden, and the farm fields we need genetic diversity for pleasure, for history, for life.

sity and was the first recipient of the Valerie Canady Foundation - H.J. Heinz Scholarship. Besides being an adjunct member of the WVU voice faculty, she teaches voice for the Community Music Division of Seton Hill College in Greensburg, Pa., and continues an active performing career.

Ms. Lightfoot is a "non-traditional" graduate student at WVU, having earned her bachelor's degree in music from California State University some years earlier. Before attending WVU, she pursued a mostly operatic career, performing with such companies as Santa Fe Opera, Wolf Trap Opera, Florida Opera West, and with various other companies in New York and Los Angeles. She has held leading roles in "Cosi fan tutte, Regina," "Tosca," "La Boheme," and "Die Fledermaus," as well as other operas. As a concert soloist, her repertoire includes prior performances of "Messiah," as well as Handel's "Gloria," and "Stabat Mater" by Poulenc.

Ms. Lightfoot is married to Peter Lightfoot, a professional opera singer and assistant professor at West Virginia University.

The Garrett Choral Society's December 12 performance of the "Messiah" will be performed at the Maranatha Assembly of God Church in Grantsville, with piano accompaniment and the solo parts being narrated. It will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The December 13 and 14 performances, which will include the soloists and accompaniment by the West Virginia University Symphonette, will both be held at St. Peter's Catholic Church in Oakland, with Saturday's program beginning at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday's at 1:30 p.m.

Performing prior to the Dec. 12 (Grantsville) and Dec. 14 concerts will be the Marsh Mountain Consort, while the Young Guns Brass Quintet, which includes Oakland resident Amanda Stewart on trombone, will play prior to the Dec. 13 performance.

Tickets for the concert at the Maranatha Church are $5 for adults and $3 for children, age 12 and under. Those for the concerts at St. Peter's Church are $8 for adults and $4 for children. They are available at Englander's Pharmacy in Oakland, Beachy Pharmacy in Grantsville, and from all Choral Society members.

Funding for the concerts is being provided in part by the Garrett County Arts Council, Hobby House Press, Inc., and First United National Bank & Trust.

Nancy Learey, director of the Garrett Choral Society, said the tenor soloist for the concert will be featured in next week's issue of The Republican. Singing the bass solo part will be Gene Galvin, who was featured in last week's issue.

"Christmas In The Village" Set At Penn Alps

WINTER FESTIVAL AT PENN ALPS will feature the talents of the Glorybound Singers, a country gospel group, shown above, and Katie and Otto Ross, below, who combine music and storytelling. The 12th annual Christmas in the Village Festival will be held Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5 and 6, at Spruce Forest Artisan Village. See story.

Spruce Forest Artisan Village, nestled between the historic 1813 Casselman Bridge and the former stagecoach stop now known as Penn Alps Restaurant in Grantsville, has set its activities for the 12th Annual Christmas in the Village on Friday, Dec. 5, and Saturday, Dec. 6.

The winter festival opens on Friday, Dec. 5, at 4 p.m. and will remain open until 9 p.m. Visitors will be treated to the complimentary refreshments, door prizes, raffles, "Peoples' Choice" voting for favorite cabin, storytelling, demonstrating artisans, hands-on Cookie Art for children in the Compton School and the evening events. On Saturday, the festival is open from noon to 9 p.m.

"One of our main attractions is the Live Nativity, produced by the Oak Grove Mennonite Church Youth Group," said Trish Morgan, village administrator. "These young people, under the guidance of Barry Beal, do a tremendous job of re-enacting the Christmas story and bringing back days gone by," she added. The Live Nativity begins each evening at 7 p.m.

Following the nativity, the Glorybound Singers will perform their "olde-tyme" country gospel in the Village Church, beginning at 7:30 p.m. both evenings. This group has been together for three years, performing throughout the tri-state area. The nine-member gospel band is comprised of four vocal singers: Jean Durst, Kim Harold, Wilma Hutzel and Linda Lancaster. The group's leader is Merle Durst, who also plays drums. Other members are Nevin Hutzel, guitar; Bradley Durst, bass guitar; Chuck Lancaster, guitar; and Harry Minnick, rhythm guitar. The band plays primarily southern gospel and old gospel music. They have appeared at the Meyersdale Maple Festival, Mt. Zion Methodist Church, Jennings Church of God and have ministered at Goodwill Mennonite Home.

Featured at 6 p.m. on Saturday evening in the Village Church will be Otto and Katie Ross. Otto has been playing music on the banjo, accordion and guitar for more than 30 years. His main career is teaching math at Beall High School, Frostburg, and he also gives music lessons and provides background music for Katie's storytelling. Katie plans to tell stories about a special Christmas as seen through the eyes of a Polish woman living many years ago in Krakow. The Ottos' stories appeal to ages 10 to 100, and visitors attending the activities inside the Village Church will find it warm and festive," said a spokesperson.

New this year to the festival is the "My Favorite Stuffed Animal Friend" contest. Interested children may bring their favorite "friend" with them to the village church on Friday evening between 4 and 6 p.m., where "friends" will be assigned numbers and placed on display for visitors to select and vote for their favorite. Prizes will be awarded to the top three vote-getters and will be awarded Saturday evening at approximately 8 p.m. Children entering the contest must leave their "friends" overnight in the Village Church and pick them up on Saturday evening after votes have been tabulated.

Sojourners will also find one thousand candle lunuaries throughout the village, softly lighting the pathways to the log cabins, schoolhouses, Casselman Bridge and Village Church. Ten artisans will be on hand inside the heated cabins, demonstrating their "olde-tyme" craftsmanship. Those artisans and their crafts are Meriam Brode, basket-weaver and spinner; Jim and Mary Ann Cummings, stained glass; Lynn Lais, potter; Ann Jones, weaver; John Daugherty, soap maker; Susan Holt, quilter and doll-maker; Jody Best, blacksmith; Diane James, stipple art; and Connie Stark, teddy bear artist and herb specialist. These artisans ntake their work by hand at Spruce Forest and will have numerous items exclusively for sale in their studios on campus.

Admission to the festival is free, although donations are welcome to assist with the complimentary refreshments and onset expenses related to the event. Spruce Forest is a nonprofit organization and is co-sponsoring this festival along with the Maryland State Arts Council. More information may be obtained by calling Morgan at 301-895-3332.

The Story Of A Mother's Love:

"Thank You For Being My Mother, But Most Of All For Being My Friend."

by David Foster

Could any bond be stronger than that of mother and child?

This year's theme for World AIDS Awareness is "Children Living in a World With AIDS," an especially poignant motif when one pauses to consider that every person who has ever had, or ever will have, AIDS is someone's child. People with AIDS are no different than anyone else - we all have mothers. In a perfect world, a mother's love, indeed everyone's love, would be given with without strings, without judgments, without having to be earned or brought. We realize we don't live in a perfect world, yet offer this story as a beacon of hope to help light the way to a better world for someone, somewhere, who needs to receive love, and needs to have someone to give love to.

Stella is a Garrett County mother with several adult children. She spent two hours on Monday afternoon, World AIDS Awareness Day, telling the story of Adam, one of her sons. Although she clutches a Kleenex in her hand, her voice is calm and quietly strong as she speaks of memories that are still painful, but have brought growth. Stella is not a mother who simply stood on the sidelines and shook her head, or wagged her finger; she put her love into action, and put her love where it was needed; and where one puts love, one will always find love.

The story of Stella and Adam is simply, and nothing more than, the story of a mother's love.

Although the names have been changed, the voice, and the love, are Stella's. "If I can reach just one person with this story and tell them, get them to reach out to love another person who needs it, then it will all be worth it," she said as she began...

A beautiful little boy...

"Adam was born in the early 1960s, a beautiful little boy who stole my heart right from the beginning. You love all your children, every mother does, but there's always one who draws you closer than any of the others; Adam and I were exceptionally close. He had several brothers who were very close to their dad, and they gravitated towards him and his activities, while Adam seemed to naturally gravitate more towards me.

Growing up, Adam was very active and involved throughout his school years. He was involved in sports in middle school, and in high school he was president of the student council, and was selected for both county and all-state chorus, of which he was very proud. He was very popular in school, and had many friends, both boys and girls.

He tried so hard to fit in...

Years later Adam told me that when he was 12 years old he knew he was different, that he would have thoughts he didn't understand and couldn't control, but he kept it all to himself for years. He went out with girls, he dated, he went to the prom, he was even engaged at one point but had to break if off, even though his fiance said she loved him the way he was and still wanted to marry him - even though she knew he was gay.

He tried hard not to 'be gay' as a teenager, but it was terrible for him, he was so confused and torn apart inside. Looking back later, I remembered that I had said to one of his high school friends, who was a girl, 'I can't understand why he can't have a steady relationship with a girl,' and she answered 'It's because he tries too hard.' I know he tried so hard to do all of the 'right' things to fit in with society, but he finally realized that he couldn't be happy, and that he couldn't be two different people and be true to both of them.

I love you the way you are...

I feel Adam was born gay, and eventually so did he. Even though I knew it, I never told him I knew, until one day when he was 20 years old, after he had moved to a big city, he called me and said, 'Mom, there's something I have to tell you.'

I said to him 'No, you don't, because I already know what you're going to tell me.'

'Know what?'

'I know that you're gay.'

'How do you know?'

'I've just known for a long time, that's all.'

'What are you going to do?'

'Nothing,' I answered, 'You're my son, and I love you the way you are.' He was very quiet for a minute, then said, 'I love you, Mother.'

I had kept quiet about Adam's sexuality for a long time, not because I was ever ashamed of him, but to protect him. In a small town it would have been very tough for him to be himself, even with some of his own family, those whom he loved and who loved him.

One of the first people Adam told about his sexuality after he told me was his father, my first husband, who was living downstate at the time. His father immediately called me and said, 'What are we going to do about Adam?' I asked him what he meant, and he said that Adam had told him he was gay. His father then went on to use foul, bigoted language to express his opinion of homosexuals to me. When he finished talking I said to him, 'I don't know what you're going to do about it, but I'm going to love him. He's my son, and I loved him before I knew this, and I'm going to continue to love him the same afterwards.'

It's sad, but I found myself having to explain this to other members of my family, Adam's family, again and again.

It was who he was...

Adam was a very special person, very giving, very kind, gentle, and thoughtful. After he moved to the city, whenever he'd see something that he thought I'd like, he'd send it to me. He did this with the many people who were special to him. He would also call me quite often, and if he sensed I was having a bad day, he'd send me a rose with a note to cheer me up; if I was having a joyous day, he'd send me a rose to share in my joy. It wasn't something he did, it was who he was.

Adam wasn't a stereotypical gay, whatever that is, that people have prejudices about and make fun of. He also didn't engage in any of the negative behaviors that gays are labeled with; he didn't go bar-hopping, he didn't go to bath houses. He didn't really acknowledge or accept his being gay until he met the one person he loved, but that didn't change his personality one bit. They stayed together in a committed relationship for the rest of Adam's life.

Did I condone that relationship when he told me about it? No, but I eventually learned from it by seeing them together with my own eyes. I saw a love that you seldom see between a married heterosexual couple. They were completely devoted to one another, completely in love.

'You don't know what it means...because we can't go home.'

Looking back on the way I was brought up, I remember being taught that homosexuality was wrong and against nature. I still don't fully understand homosexuality, or

IN HIS OWN HAND, Adam wrote this note to his mother on his own 25th birthday, telling her what she meant to him. In taking the risk to openly love her son under difficult circumstances, Stella said that she "gained from Adam a deeper understanding of what it means to be a mother, and for that I will always thank him."

STELLA RECEIVED THIS MESSAGE OF COMFORT from her son one year to the day after his death. "Adam was so kind and thoughtful that, even as he faced his own death, he was thinking of others," his mother said. "He gave instructions to his partner to deliver this card to me on the first anniversary of his death, to let me know he was at peace and that I could be at peace as well. He was a very special person, as are all my children."

Clarification To Article Regarding Stock Donations

Last week's article concerning the donation of shares of stock or other appreciated assets to the Garrett County Historical Society should have contained a sentence reading "The donor can avoid capital gains tax on the increased value, may be able to claim a charitable deduction, and may realize a reduction in current federal and state income taxes." even fully agree with it, but it's not my business to understand or agree; it's my business to love, which can take some effort and learning.

When I went to the city to meet Adam's partner and their friends for the first time, it was a learning experience. The gay community was close-knit, but not in the 'slum' way that they are often portrayed. They were middle to upper-middle class economically, from all walks of life, most of them very well-educated, and all of them very warm and very kind, which is really all that matters.

One of the most striking things about that visit was that many, many of Adam's friends came to me and said, 'You don't know what it means to us for you to be here and show your son that you love him, because we don't have that...we can't go home.' This broke my heart, because you could tell they wanted love from their families and that it was being denied to them. I answered every one of them, 'I just love him, that's all. He's my son, and I don't fully understand all of this, but he's still my son and I love and accept him.'

I think he changed because of love.

Adam came home to spend time here in Garrett County once in a while, not too often though. Some of our family had some difficulties with his homosexuality, which he never pushed on anyone, any way.

One time when he was home visiting us, something was different in the way he looked, although he didn't let on that anything was wrong. I said to myself then, 'You're very sick, Adam - you've got AIDS.' A week later the phone rang, and it was his partner, who was crying on the phone, and I could hear Adam crying in the background. 'Adam is very sick,' his partner began, then he started crying again. I said, 'I know, he has AIDS.' They asked how I knew and all I could say was, 'I just knew, that's all.'

For the next three years, as Adam got more and more ill, I would travel to the city to care for him on my weekdays off from work. I didn't go on the weekends, because that was when his partner was off from work and he asked me to let him care for Adam on the weekends. That was hard to accept, but I honored the request.

Their whole gay community rallied around Adam and his partner. It was just unbelievable, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, there was always a friend there with him, feeding him, bathing him, reading to him, taking care of him. You hate to compare, but if only we could come together like that whenever anyone in our community needed support, whether facing death, sickness, poverty, or anything...what a difference I saw with those young men.

Another very important and beautiful thing - by the time Adam was sick, his birth father had come back into the picture, and they had become very close. He even cared for Adam one day a week. I think he changed because of love.

A church is a hospital for sinners...

Adam died almost three years ago, and was buried from his church with a beautiful funeral ceremony attended by the many people who loved and cared for him. He was very religious - that's the wrong word, anybody can be religious - he was a Christian. He tried very hard to live a Christian life the way Jesus taught. He didn't always succeed, but then none of us do, we all make mistakes. That's why we go to church and ask God for forgiveness.

After he died I read his Bible, and he had highlighted all the scriptures about love, and had written all kinds of notes in the margins. There wasn't an overwhelming emphasis on judgment and punishment, although some of those passages were noted too. We all know the part of Romans where it condemns homosexuality, but right after that it goes on to say that if they believe they will be saved, it doesn't say for us to judge them. A church is a hospital for sinners, of which I am one, not a synagogue for saints.

After I came home from the funeral, a turtle dove, a bird not native to this area, came to my house and nested in the tree by the kitchen window for six months. I truly believe that God sent it as a sign that Adam was all right, and in His loving arms.

My healing process...

For the years after Adam told all of us in the family that he was gay, and all through his sickness and death, even to this day, some of the family members have not been able to accept him for what he was. It was hard as a wife and mother to see this happen. For many years before and for over two years after his death, I couldn't share my feelings for him with some of the rest of the family who chose not to accept him.

Since Adam's death, not a day has gone by that I haven't cried over him, but now I can cry in the open, not alone to myself or behind closed doors. Grief is grief, but grieving in silence is the worst kind of grief; sometimes you feel like you'll explode. My healing process came from my church and my belief in God, knowing that the Lord was with me no matter what, and finally deciding that it was OK to cry out loud.

I could say to God, 'Just put your arms around me,' and I could physically feel a hug, or He'd send someone to hug me. I drew more and more strength from close friends, especially at my church. Although they didn't condone his homosexuality, they had known him and what a special person that he was, and they loved both him and me. They let me rattle on; friends should just let grieving friends talk, put their arm around their shoulder and say 'I don't understand all you're going through, but I'm here to listen.'"

There's not a day that goes by...

There's not a day that goes by that I don't miss him, and there's not a day that goes by that I don't pray for those who are suffering alone, who don't have a parent or a brother or a sister there loving them.

When I became a Christian, I learned God's two greatest commandments, 'Love God with all your heart,' and 'Love your neighbor as you love yourself.' That doesn't just mean the neighbor next door, but also the man down the street that everyone thinks is a little weird, the teenager who has a child out of wedlock, anyone, everyone, everywhere. If they need our love at any time, they need it then.

...you have to love unconditionally...

My message to people who read this story, to anyone who will listen, is that you have to love unconditionally; not just homosexuals because one of my sons was gay, not just people with AIDS because one of my sons had AIDS, but everyone, all the time. Everyone has a flaw, if that's what you want to call it, but you have to look beyond the flaws as Jesus does and reach out and love unconditionally.

That's what I learned from my son being gay and having AIDS - that I couldn't separate my love from him just because he may not have met my standards. And as I gave him my love, I found myself growing more and more proud of him, and more accepting of him for who he was.

You don't judge - you learn.

...put that love into practice...

Garrett County is a larger family - you have to look at every community, every county, every country, the whole world, as a family. Just like a family, the people of Garrett County need to reach out, not just to those with AIDS, but to the hungry, to the downtrodden, to the poor. We all need to be more like Mother Theresa - we need to learn the meaning of love and to put that love into practice.

Leave the judging to God; my God is a loving father, and I can go to him when I need forgiveness, which I do every day, and I'm confident I'll get it, because He said so. I had a loving earthly father, so my God is an even greater extension of that.

Maybe the greatest message is, 'Don't turn your back; reach out your hand in love and what a wonderful world it could be. Through all of that experience I came to learn a deeper love for all of my children, even the ones who didn't accept Adam for who he was. You love all of your children, whatever their flaws, and we all have flaws. This is what the world needs to learn - that people with AIDS are among the many lepers of today - and where was Jesus to be found? Among the lepers, among the downtrodden. They need our hugs, and even though we may not know it, we need their hugs, too.

I'll always be so proud of him.

"Adam's life and death taught me that the love you give out, if only this much," at which point Stella held up her finger and her thumb, less than an inch apart, "comes back so much more.

"I am so thankful I had Adam, even if for what seems now to have been a terribly short time. He's my son, I love him, and I'll always be so proud of him. I never condoned his lifestyle - I just loved my son."

Postscript: There will be those who will have read Stella and Adam's story to this point who will have strong reactions to the subject matter and its presentation. Everyone is entitled to his or her opinion, but we ask that everyone keep in mind Stella's own words as she described what her son taught her...

"You don't judge - you learn."

RAMS TO OPEN FRIDAY - The Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, coached by Tom Bosley, will kick off its challenging 22-game schedule this Friday evening with a major test at Bishop Walsh. Rams To Open Tough 22-Game Schedule At BW This Friday

The Southern Boys' Varsity basketball team will open its 1997-1998 season on the road this Friday against Bishop Walsh of Cumberland. The Rams will play a difficult 22-game schedule that includes area powers Fort Hill, Allegany, Tucker County, as well as the consolidated Preston High School.

A highlight again will be the 22nd annual Snowball Classic, which will feature Bishop Walsh, Beall, Preston, and the host Rams.

"This is the toughest schedule we have played in the school's history. We play several schools that have an excellent chance of winning a state championship, and that should help us improve," stated Ram coach Tom Bosley.

Friday's opener against Bishop Walsh should be one of the toughest games on the schedule, Bosley said, adding that the Rams have only won three times at BW in the past 20 years. The Spartans are currently 2-1 with an impressive victory over St. Maria Goretti of Hagerstown. They are led by Travis Jessie who is generally thought of as the top returning player in the area. They also return 6-7 sophomore Nelson Guerin and two other starters. "Bishop Walsh will play a variety of defenses and will rely on their athleticism to force turnovers," Coach Bosley said.

 JV Games begin 1½ hours before the scheduled varsity game.

Southern returns five lettermen from last year's 9-14 season. The roster includes four seniors and 10 juniors.

The top returning scorer is 6-0 junior John Andrews, who scored 189 points and demonstrated poise during his sophomore season.

Nathan DiSimone, a 5-7 junior, also returns and is expected to be Andrews' back-court partner.

Three seniors return from last year's squad and all will play key roles this year. Josh Helbig, 6-3, could be the starting center and he should be one of the top rebounders and defenders. Derek Everd and Mike Bittinger also return and will be providing defense and leadership to the squad. Everd is currently injured and, Bosley hopes, will be playing soon.

Eight juniors moved up from last year's outstanding junior varsity team. Mike Paesani was the top performer on that team and his versatility will be needed throughout the year. Mike Pamepinto, Chris Ewing, Jayson Garland, and Jonathon Price have all played well in the pre-season and could work their way into the starting line-up.

Other juniors include: Jesse Coddington, Mike Harvey, and Reggie Ridder. Senior Aaron Janes, 6-5 rounds out the roster.

"We will have a junior dominated team this year. We are hoping our seniors can provide effective leadership and our underclassmen can continue to improve. I think we have the potential to have a fun and exciting season. Our progress has been good and I feel we could have one of the surprise teams in the area. We want to be very good by the time February and March roll around," stated Bosley.

Bosley is beginning his 12th year at the helm of the Rams. His overall record at Southern is 157-101 and includes a district championship in 1982 and an area championship in 1992. The assistants are Dave Bender and Matt Redinger.

The junior varsity team plays a 20-game schedule. Their games are a preliminary to all the varsity contests, except for the Snowball Classic. The team is coached by Jim Bosley, assisted by Biz Tasker.

Deer Hunters Are Advised To Respect Bears

With deer firearms season in full swing, hunters are reminded that deer are not the only large mammals who make the woods of western Maryland their home. "Hunters in Garrett and Allegany counties should be aware that their chances of coming in contact with a black bear are quite possible," said John R. Griffin, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources.

"Black bears are generally not aggressive," Griffin continued, "If you do see one, make loud noises and wave your arms in an attempt to scare them," he said.

Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) superintendent John Rhoads reminds hunters that it is illegal to shoot a black bear in Maryland. Recently there have been several illegal black bear kills and attempted kills reported, all found in the bear's natural environment. The NRP are investigating these incidents. (See related story.)

Citizens are encouraged to report any illegal hunting activity to the NRP Catch-A-Poacher Hotline at 1-800-635-6124. Anonymity is guaranteed.

Lakers Steamed By Red Devils, 103-83; Fall to 6-2

After getting off to a 6-1 start in the 1997-98 season, the Garrett Community College men's basketball team recorded its second defeat of the campaign last night at Baltimore, as the Lakers were whipped by Baltimore City Community College, 103-83, in a Maryland JUCO contest.

The Lakers stayed right with the Red Devils until midway through the first half. At that point Garrett was ahead by two, 17-15, but Baltimore proceeded to outscore the Lakers by a 37-14 margin through the rest of the half to assume a commanding 52-31 halftime lead. The Lakers could get no closer than 15 points in the second half.

The player that Garrett simply could not stop was Anton Jennifer, who recorded a third of his team's points, as he finished with 34 and also dished out five assists.

Also reaching double figures for the Red Devils were Dante Webb with 16 points and Lamar Prilliman with 11. Webb also grabbed eight rebounds.

Michael Fields netted 22 points to pace the Laker offense, while Lionell Sewell finished with 16 and Jerome Adams and Timmy Pitcher each chipped in with nine. Fields and Rob Wheeler each pulled down eight rebounds and Adams was credited with four assists.

The Lakers played almost evenly with the Devils in rebounding, as they were out-boarded by just two, 49-47.

"We learned a lot about playing on the road tonight," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson. "We played poorly in every phase of the game, and the Devils' Den is a tough place to play anyway."

The Lakers, who are 2-1 in the JUCO standings, will host Harford CC this Saturday, with tip-off set for 7 p.m.

Lady Lakers Drop A Pair, Stand At 1-2

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team, which had opened its season with a victory last week, met with defeat at the hands of Frederick and Baltimore City community colleges. The Lakers record stands at 1-2 going into their Saturday evening match against Catonsville.

The Lakers fell to Frederick at home by a four-point margin on Monday night in a closely fought game. After building a 13-point halftime lead, GCC came out cold at the start of the second half while Frederick went on a 12-0 tear.

Mary Walters led Garrett with 22 points, eight assists and five steals, while Stephanie Quattro added 16 points and Andrea Barrick pulled down eight rebounds. Frederick was led by 22 points and eight rebounds from Judy Whims.

Last night in Baltimore the Lakers were dominated by the Red Devils, who rolled to a 77-60 victory. After taking a nine-point halftime lead, Baltimore kept distancing itself from its visitors throughout the second half by taking control of both ends of the court, and 34 turnovers by the Lakers sealed their fate.

GCC's Erica McBride tallied 14 points in the losing effort, while Mindy McCarty and Mary Walters added 12 points apiece. Laker rebounding was led by Barrick and Walters with six each. Garrett's 14 assists were led by the 10 contributed by Walters, who also led the steal stats for GCC by nabbing six of the team's 18 takeaways.

Four Red Devils scored in the double digits as Scherry Cofield led all scorers with 15 points, while Emily Jones added 13, Dana Pone netted 12, and Deshawn Coleman tossed in 10.

RUNNIN' RAMS HONORED BY COMMISSIONERS - The Southern Garrett Runnin' Rams boys' and girls' cross country teams were recognized by the Garrett County Commissioners this week at the courthouse. The boys won their fifth consecutive West Region I-A and Maryland State 1-A championships this year, with a season record of 130-2 snd a cumulative record of 436-23. They also placed this season in the Mt. Saint Mary's Invitational Championship, the Frank Keyser Boonsboro Invitational Championship, the Cumberland Area Championship, and several other competitions. The team has five all-state runners, who are noted in the picture identification by an asterisk(). The Southern girls' team had a record this year of 103 wins and 16 losses. The team was the regional and state runner-up. The commissioners congratulated the students as well as Carl Booth, the boys' coach, and Louis Newcomb, the coach for the girls. Commissioner Roger Glotfelty also complimented the parents and teachers of the students, who all play an important part, he said, in the successes of the team. The commissioners are shown seated in both pictures and are, left to right, Wayne Wilt, Glotfelty, and Gary Fratz. In the photo above, standing left to right, are Coach Booth, Richard Cornelius, George Tichnell, Eric Rexrode, Pete Porcaro, Sean Conroy* (co-capt.), and Rusty Strubin*. In the second row are Ted Wolf, Jonathan Browning, Andrew Sisler, Mike Bittinger (co-capt.), Daniel Shafer, Casey McBee*, and Dan Sincell (co-capt.). (Not present for the photo was Beau Gibson*.) In the photo below, standing left to right in the first row, are Maria Hines, Nicole Frazee, Annie Neville, Erin Lucas, Rilene Lloyd, Katelyne McBee, Megan Conroy, Erin Hoalcraft, Angie Sincell, Katie Moomau, and Keri Strubin. (Not present was Elizabeth McDonald.) Also given recognition at the gathering were two Northern High School runners, Rachel Leverenz and Joe Weimer, both of whom qualified for the state finals, with Rachel coming in second, and both of whom are academic achievers. They will be honored next week at the commissioners' Tuesday meeting.

Knee Surgery

because we symbolize Michael Jordan, whom I've played against, and all that the NBA and American basketball stands for. Everyone in Europe knows who Michael Jordan is," he said.

Robinson's athletic skills have been his ticket to see and learn about the world in a way that many professional athletes don't. "I've played in Hong Kong, Puerto Rico, Santa Domingo, Turkey, and of course, all over Europe," he said, "and going to other countries has taught me to appreciate the things we have back here in the States. You see so many people in other countries who are really poor; it's unbelievable to see how a family lives in Poland, where the average household income is $100 a month.

"Lots of Polish kids in Torun want to see us play but just don't have the money," Robinson continued, "so I buy lots of tickets to get them into the arena. You never know if that could make a difference in helping a kid staying out of trouble and set a goal to work for. When I go talk to kids, both in Europe and here, I tell them that I'm no different than any of you, and that I had to set goals and cross bridges to get where I am now. They can do that too, if they put their minds to it."

Robinson directed some advice specifically at student-athletes considering extending their athletic careers into college and beyond: "Don't be afraid to dream, it's great to dream, and it's even greater when your dreams come true through your hard work. You have to have your priorities set, and always put academics first, because if you work hard in the classroom it will translate over onto the basketball court or any playing field," he said.

"Basketball, like any athletic activity you can name, is 25% athletic ability and 75% smarts. People have a hard time believing that, but it's true. Just look at Larry Bird -- he couldn't run, couldn't jump, but through hard work he was able to make the most of what physical talent he had, and by using his mind to study his opponents he was able to pinpoint their weaknesses and capitalize on them.

"My number one piece of advice to high school student athletes," Robinson emphasized, "is that they get their academics together. They have to realize that the better players work even harder off the court than they do in practice. They hit the books harder, they hit the weight room harder, they will try and do everything the best they can. That gives them an edge on most everyone, on and off the court," he said.

Robinson walked out of Garrett County Memorial Hospital on crutches just a few hours after he was wheeled in, to finish spending the Thanksgiving holiday with his wife Tracy and their daughters Jazmine, 7, and Jordan, 2, at their stateside home in Mathias, W.Va. He will be playing professional basketball on the European courts again in a month.

FLUBBER

Rated PG - Running time: 1:32

Hey, moms and dads, remember all those fun toy substances you (or your kids) used to play with? Silly Putty, Play-Doh, Slime...? Well, get ready with the sponge: this Christmas, it's flubber you'll be cleaning out of the carpet. Disney's remake of its own classic The Absent-Minded Professor (1961) is sure to start a craze for the stuff, and we should see it popping up in stores any second now.

Robin Williams stars as Phillip Brainard, the kindly scientist who has already missed two attempts at his own wedding. At the beginning of the film, his fiancee, Sara (Marcia Gay Harden), advises him that their upcoming planned nuptials will be his last chance. Also early on, we meet Wilson Croft (Christopher McDonald), Phillip's competitor not only for scientific ideas, but for Sara's hand. Wilson does nothing to conceal his plans to steal Phillip's girl, and even admits to having gotten wealthy off several of Phillip's inventions. He's comfortable admitting this because he knows that Phillip will forget the conversation minutes after it's over. After this brief period of exposition, the balance of the film is devoted to Phillip's pursuit of his elusive new substance and Wilson's pursuit of the ambivalent Sara.

The plot is really little more than a '90s rehashing of the 1961 Fred MacMurray film, including the rivalry between the two local schools, the underdog basketball team being aided by the addition of flubber to their sneaker soles, and the flubberized flying car. Considering this along with the recent remakes of 101 Dalmations and That Darn Cat, Disney is obviously issuing an environmentalist hint: don't produce, recycle. Notable updates include a robot character called Weebo, a sort of flying R2-D2 (featuring the voice of The Little Mermaid's Jodi Benson), and the fact that in this version, the flubber seems to have a mind of its own. There is a spectacular dance number featuring the transparent green substance and a house full of robotic appliances, but no humans.

As expected, there is not a huge amount of social commentary or burning moral issues present in this film. Just about every character is a stereotype of the kind found in most Disney features, and there are a lot of running gags and slapstick comedy. But it is a lot of fun, and a great way to spend a rainy Sunday afternoon, as I found out this weekend with my 6-year old son. He absolutely loved the film, and I have no doubt that flubber will be on his Christmas list this year (and Flubber will be next year). ★★★★

ALIEN RESURRECTION

Rated R - Running time: 1:50

When I heard that Sigourney Weaver was returning yet again in a new Alien movie, I thought, "that can't be! She insisted that Alien 3 be the last one--that's why her character was killed in it!" Then I found out she co-produced this one. That explains it: now she's got the bread, not just the fans, on her side.

In director Jean-Pierre Jeunet's foray into the Alien saga, Weaver's character, Ripley, is cloned from blood samples found on the planet of her demise. (Boy, even if cloning is unethical and impractical in real life, it sure has given the movie industry a new avenue of storylines!) A new version of Ripley is grown for the sole purpose of being a surrogate mother for a new alien queen. This is done by a team of unscrupulous scientists who breed and feed the animals with the intention of "studying" them. After the baby queen is removed from Ripley's body, she is tossed into a sort of cell, and no one really knows what to do with her. The thing is, in the cloning process, her DNA was mixed with that of the dreaded beastie, and so her new persona is a mixture of the two. I'll give the genetecists out there a few minutes to settle down and get a hanky.

The queen starts laying eggs, and next thing you know, boom--you've got a family. The scientists take great measures to protect the creatures, but there are others (notably Annalee Call, played by Winona Ryder), who want just as much to see them vaporized. As usual, the little buggers get loose, and a bloodbath follows. Soon, almost everyone still alive agrees that the aliens have to go. But there's a little problem: although Ripley was previously devoted to the destruction of the ferocious, drooling varmints, now she kind of digs them. However, she's the only one who knows their tricks, so the other people in the movie have to form a kind of uneasy alliance with her.

This series has undergone an interesting metamorphosis. Alien (1979) was a science fiction movie, pure and simple. Director Ridley Scott gave us a quiet, realistic, and riveting presentation of a group of astronauts faced with a problem. There were no commandos, no political overtones, no smart-aleck wisecracks. There were only eight people in the film, and the acting and directing were excellent. The now famous stories of the special effects-on-a-shoestring, using such things as rubber hose and raspberry jam, have elevated Alien into the sci-fi hall of fame.

When it was wildly successful, the producers had the budget to go big, and big they went. The sequel, Aliens, while still an excellent film, was a completely different style, moving unreservedly from sci-fi to action/adventure. From then on, all the movies have been huge-budget, action-packed, and decidedly flat in their characterizations. Ripley has changed from a scientist/astronaut into a kind of comic-book superheroine, and that change is really complete in this movie, since part of her alien gene makeup gives her superhuman strength and acidic blood. Hubba, hubba.

Weaver has done a good job of altering Ripley's characterization ever so slightly, into a kind of Frankenstein's monster version of her former self, but she's still much shallower than in the original, and Ryder and the others are even flatter. As with most action/adventure fare, the film is exciting and enjoyable, but mainly because of excellent special effects rather than any semblance of reality with which we can identify. ★★★½

Part Two In A Series

by Peggy Santamaria

It is not often easy to pinpoint the time of onset of Alzheimer's disease. There can be many little signals that something is amiss before the effects are noticed and recognized by those close to a victim of this illness.

Incidences of mental impairment or loss of memory may be fleeting. They may be overlooked as just the sort of thing that anyone could do when distracted by multiple concerns. Which of us has not put something away for safe-keeping only to be unable to remember where the item is when we later need it?

Family members of those diagnosed with Alzheimer's will often say that in retrospect there were signs for a long time. Are the signs missed because it doesn't seem possible that anything like memory loss could occur to alter a loved one? Is it an unconscious response which blocks out the possibility of a loved one's behavior being a symptom of mental deterioration?

The time comes when the nature of the illness manifests itself in such a way that it can no longer be ignored or denied. When the diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease is finally made, it heralds a total alteration in the relationship between the person afflicted with the disease and other family members who will become caregivers.

After being together most of a lifetime and offering mutual support and love in a marriage, a man or woman has much over which to grieve as a spouse slips from reach into the dark recesses that Alzheimer's can carve.

Such is the case of a gentleman I spoke with recently.

YEARS OF STRESS

"...there were various stages. Then it got to the point I had to watch every move she made."

Together for 65 years and married for 60 years, Alfred said he missed the early signs of Martha's illness, but he is sure they must have been there. When the problem became a glaring one, the confirmation of what was expected was given by the physician -- Martha was a victim of Alzheimer's disease.

The sign he remembers as clearly as if it had happened yesterday. It concerned a bank statement. An astute business woman, Martha had always handled the family finances. She could sit down with the bank statement each month and just zip through the settlement process, Albert said.

One night she was absorbed with the statement figures for many hours, he remembered. Had she run into problems? he asked later. Just a simple yes was the response she gave. But the following month Martha again labored over the statement.

In frustration she went to Albert laden with canceled checks, statement, and scraps of paper. "I can't do this," she told him. "I knew right then; and there was no doubt. Something was seriously wrong," Albert told me.

When the diagnosis was made, Albert took his wife home and assumed the role of primary caregiver. There were no other family members in the area to share the difficulties that would grow more taxing over time.

Martha's disease progressed. "There were various stages as time went on," Albert reflected. He described that her level of comprehension was erratic. "I would never know what she was thinking. Sometimes she understood what I was saying to her. Other times she didn't."

Albert had to experiment with various levels and types of approach. If he simplified his speech with Martha, and she was functioning at a higher level at that moment, she would become upset, he explained.

With time Albert got better at anticipating his wife's level and ability of comprehension. "Every person with Alzheimer's disease is different. Only the caregiver really knows. The caregiver is the expert," he said.

Martha's forgetfulness increased. "Everyday she would loose something, and I would spend hours going through the house and looking through all the drawers," Albert reflected.

As the years passed, the strain of the situation took a toll on the caregiver, as is most often the case. As Martha became more unreliable in her ability to reason, her behaviors began to pose more of a threat to her own safety and to Albert's health. "I had to watch every move she made, I gave up my few activities," he said.

Martha, it seems, could be categorized as a "sundowner," Albert explained. This term is used to describe a patient who becomes active at night. "During the night she would just slither out of bed. I'd wake up and she would be gone," he stated. When he found Martha, she would frequently refuse to go back to bed. And so, as caregiver, he would sit up all night with her.

Albert's fear, he explained, was that his wife would slip out of the house at night without his knowledge. So he devised a method to try and stem that possibility. "I had to be creative," he noted. "I hung bells on the door so that if she opened the door, the bells would jingle and I would know what she was doing."

Though he was constantly on the alert, his fears of her venturing out alone were realized more than once. Martha did slip out of the house and away. It was with police assistance in one case and friends seeing her in other cases that Albert's terror was put to rest with the return of his wife.

One day on a visit to the doctor, the issue of Albert's health became the focus. "The doctor said he was more worried about me than about Martha, at that point." He had not been getting enough sleep and the stress was wearing Albert down.

A family conference was called. Representatives from the geriatric health services were present, as was Martha's physician. "They told me it was time," Albert recounted solemnly. He was no longer able to provide the level of care his wife required. Her well-being and his health were both at risk under the current conditions.

Albert then faced separation from Martha. She would go to stay at a nursing home, where she would be protected and cared for. He said it broke his heart to take her there. "I had taken care of her for the better part of eight years," he said. But he knew this had to be done.

What was really hard for Albert, he said, was preparing to leave her the evening he took her to the home. "She said to me, 'Can we go home now?'," he recalled. Tapping his fingers lightly on his chest, over his heart, he said quietly to me, "That hurt."

Oakland Update

by Mayor Asa McCain

The town employees would like to wish everyone a happy holiday season. This Friday, Dec. 5, 6-8 p.m., is the Fresh Air Christmas Festival, made possible by GOBA and WKHJ. In addition to the festivities (crafts, foods, carolers, Santa and Mrs. Claus) stores will be open to serve you. Thanks to Scott Atwill, we have a wonderful train display in the window at the corner of Second and Green streets. The building is now owned by the First United National Bank and Trust and used for museum displays. Thanks to both of them for making the space available. (While you are in town, check out the special toy display at the museum.)

There are only a few weeks until Christmas, so why not consider helping save the Oakland Station by purchasing the Oakland Station ornament or a frameable print of the station available at the model train display Friday evening as well as at City Hall (301-334-2691) and these local shops -- Christmas Chalet, Englander's Pharmacy, Expanding Horizons, Herbal Treasures, Interior Expressions, and Water Street Market Place. REMEMBER TO SHOP THE MOUNTAIN TOP.

Look for next week's update for the latest on the train station purchase effort.

Statewide Park Reservation System To Be Delayed

Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary John R. Griffin has announced that the contractor hired to provide a new statewide park reservation system will not have the system ready as planned in January.

"Since the reservation system will not be operational, effective Jan. 12, people who wish to make reservations for cabins, camping, or pavilion use at a state park should contact that park in order to make reservations, just as they have done in the past," Griffin said.

No reservations will be taken prior to Jan. 12 for the 1998 camping season. Reservations for cabins, camping, or pavilion use may be made up to nine months in advance, and, as may require a minimum in the past, reservations length of stay.

FLUBBER

Rated PG - Running time: 1:32

Hey, moms and dads, remember all those fun toy substances you (or your kids) used to play with? Silly Putty, Play-Doh, Slime...? Well, get ready with the sponge: this Christmas, it's flubber you'll be cleaning out of the carpet. Disney's remake of its own classic The Absent-Minded Professor (1961) is sure to start a craze for the stuff, and we should see it popping up in stores any second now.

Robin Williams stars as Phillip Brainard, the kindly scientist who has already missed two attempts at his own wedding. At the beginning of the film, his fiancee, Sara (Marcia Gay Harden), advises him that their upcoming planned nuptials will be his last chance. Also early on, we meet Wilson Croft (Christopher McDonald), Phillip's competitor not only for scientific ideas, but for Sara's hand. Wilson does nothing to conceal his plans to steal Phillip's girl, and even admits to having gotten wealthy off several of Phillip's inventions. He's comfortable admitting this because he knows that Phillip will forget the conversation minutes after it's over. After this brief period of exposition, the balance of the film is devoted to Phillip's pursuit of his elusive new substance and Wilson's pursuit of the ambivalent Sara.

The plot is really little more than a '90s rehashing of the 1961 Fred MacMurray film, including the rivalry between the two local schools, the underdog basketball team being aided by the addition of flubber to their sneaker soles, and the flubberized flying car. Considering this along with the recent remakes of 101 Dalmations and That Darn Cat, Disney is obviously issuing an environmentalist hint: don't produce, recycle. Notable updates include a robot character called Weebo, a sort of flying R2-D2 (featuring the voice of The Little Mermaid's Jodi Benson), and the fact that in this version, the flubber seems to have a mind of its own. There is a spectacular dance number featuring the transparent green substance and a house full of robotic appliances, but no humans.

As expected, there is not a huge amount of social commentary or burning moral issues present in this film. Just about every character is a stereotype of the kind found in most Disney features, and there are a lot of running gags and slapstick comedy. But it is a lot of fun, and a great way to spend a rainy Sunday afternoon, as I found out this weekend with my 6-year old son. He absolutely loved the film, and I have no doubt that flubber will be on his Christmas list this year (and Flubber will be next year). ★★★★

Rated R - Running time: 1:50

When I heard that Sigourney Weaver was returning yet again in a new Alien movie, I thought, "that can't be! She insisted that Alien 3 be the last one--that's why her character was killed in it!" Then I found out she co-produced this one. That explains it: now she's got the bread, not just the fans, on her side.

In director Jean-Pierre Jeunet's foray into the Alien saga, Weaver's character, Ripley, is cloned from blood samples found on the planet of her demise. (Boy, even if cloning is unethical and impractical in real life, it sure has given the movie industry a new avenue of storylines!) A new version of Ripley is grown for the sole purpose of being a surrogate mother for a new alien queen. This is done by a team of unscrupulous scientists who breed and feed the animals with the intention of "studying" them. After the baby queen is removed from Ripley's body, she is tossed into a sort of cell, and no one really knows what to do with her. The thing is, in the cloning process, her DNA was mixed with that of the dreaded beastie, and so her new persona is a mixture of the two. I'll give the genetecists out there a few minutes to settle down and get a hanky.

The queen starts laying eggs, and next thing you know, boom--you've got a family. The scientists take great measures to protect the creatures, but there are others (notably Annalee Call, played by Winona Ryder), who want just as much to see them vaporized. As usual, the little buggers get loose, and a bloodbath follows. Soon, almost everyone still alive agrees that the aliens have to go. But there's a little problem: although Ripley was previously devoted to the destruction of the ferocious, drooling varmints, now she kind of digs them. However, she's the only one who knows their tricks, so the other people in the movie have to form a kind of uneasy alliance with her.

This series has undergone an interesting metamorphosis. Alien (1979) was a science fiction movie, pure and simple. Director Ridley Scott gave us a quiet, realistic, and riveting presentation of a group of astronauts faced with a problem. There were no commandos, no political overtones, no smart-aleck wisecracks. There were only eight people in the film, and the acting and directing were excellent. The now famous stories of the special effects-on-a-shoestring, using such things as rubber hose and raspberry jam, have elevated Alien into the sci-fi hall of fame.

When it was wildly successful, the producers had the budget to go big, and big they went. The sequel, Aliens, while still an excellent film, was a completely different style, moving unreservedly from sci-fi to action/adventure. From then on, all the movies have been huge-budget, action-packed, and decidedly flat in their characterizations. Ripley has changed from a scientist/astronaut into a kind of comic-book superheroine, and that change is really complete in this movie, since part of her alien gene makeup gives her superhuman strength and acidic blood. Hubba, hubba.

Weaver has done a good job of altering Ripley's characterization ever so slightly, into a kind of Frankenstein's monster version of her former self, but she's still much shallower than in the original, and Ryder and the others are even flatter. As with most action/adventure fare, the film is exciting and enjoyable, but mainly because of excellent special effects rather than any semblance of reality with which we can identify. ★★★½

Part Two In A Series

by Peggy Santamaria

It is not often easy to pinpoint the time of onset of Alzheimer's disease. There can be many little signals that something is amiss before the effects are noticed and recognized by those close to a victim of this illness.

Incidences of mental impairment or loss of memory may be fleeting. They may be overlooked as just the sort of thing that anyone could do when distracted by multiple concerns. Which of us has not put something away for safe-keeping only to be unable to remember where the item is when we later need it?

Family members of those diagnosed with Alzheimer's will often say that in retrospect there were signs for a long time. Are the signs missed because it doesn't seem possible that anything like memory loss could occur to alter a loved one? Is it an unconscious response which blocks out the possibility of a loved one's behavior being a symptom of mental deterioration?

The time comes when the nature of the illness manifests itself in such a way that it can no longer be ignored or denied. When the diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease is finally made, it heralds a total alteration in the relationship between the person afflicted with the disease and other family members who will becomc caregivers.

After being together most of a lifetime and offering mutual support and love in a marriage, a man or woman has much over which to grieve as a spouse slips from reach into the dark recesses that Alzheimer's can carve.

Such is the case of a gentleman I spoke with recently.

YEARS OF STRESS

"...there were various stages. Then it got to the point I had to watch every move she made."

Together for 65 years and married for 60 years, Alfred said he missed the early signs of Martha's illness, but he is sure they must have been there. When the problem became a glaring one, the confirmation of what was expected was given by the physician -- Martha was a victim of Alzheimer's disease.

The sign he remembers as clearly as if it had happened yesterday. It concerned a bank statement. An astute business woman, Martha had always handled the family finances. She could sit down with the bank statement each month and just zip through the settlement process, Albert said.

One night she was absorbed with the statement figures for many hours, he remembered. Had she run into problems? he asked later. Just a simple yes was the response she gave. But the following month Martha again labored over the statement.

In frustration she went to Albert laden with canceled checks, statement, and scraps of paper. "I can't do this," she told him. "I knew right then; and there was no doubt. Something was seriously wrong," Albert told me.

When the diagnosis was made, Albert took his wife home and assumed the role of primary caregiver. There were no other family members in the area to share the difficulties that would grow more taxing over time.

Martha's disease progressed. "There were various stages as time went on," Albert reflected. He described that her level of comprehension was erratic. "I would never know what she was thinking. Sometimes she understood what I was saying to her. Other times she didn't."

Albert had to experiment with various levels and types of approach. If he simplified his speech with Martha, and she was functioning at a higher level at that moment, she would become upset, he explained.

With time Albert got better at anticipating his wife's level and ability of comprehension. "Every person with Alzheimer's disease is different. Only the caregiver really knows. The caregiver is the expert," he said.

Martha's forgetfulness increased. "Everyday she would loose something, and I would spend hours going through the house and looking through all the drawers," Albert reflected.

As the years passed, the strain of the situation took a toll on the caregiver, as is most often the case. As Martha became more unreliable in her ability to reason, her behaviors began to pose more of a threat to her own safety and to Albert's health. "I had to watch every move she made, I gave up my few activities," he said.

Martha, it seems, could be categorized as a "sundowner," Albert explained. This term is used to describe a patient who becomes active at night. "During the night she would just slither out of bed. I'd wake up and she would be gone," he stated. When he found Martha, she would frequently refuse to go back to bed. And so, as caregiver, he would sit up all night with her.

Albert's fear, he explained, was that his wife would slip out of the house at night without his knowledge. So he devised a method to try and stem that possibility. "I had to be creative," he noted. "I hung bells on the door so that if she opened the door, the bells would jingle and I would know what she was doing."

Though he was constantly on the alert, his fears of her venturing out alone were realized more than once. Martha did slip out of the house and away. It was with police assistance in one case and friends seeing her in other cases that Albert's terror was put to rest with the return of his wife.

One day on a visit to the doctor, the issue of Albert's health became the focus. "The doctor said he was more worried about me than about Martha, at that point." He had not been getting enough sleep and the stress was wearing Albert down.

A family conference was called. Representatives from the geriatric health services were present, as was Martha's physician. "They told me it was time," Albert recounted solemnly. He was no longer able to provide the level of care his wife required. Her well-being and his health were both at risk under the current conditions.

Albert then faced separation from Martha. She would go to stay at a nursing home, where she would be protected and cared for. He said it broke his heart to take her there. "I had taken care of her for the better part of eight years," he said. But he knew this had to be done.

What was really hard for Albert, he said, was preparing to leave her the evening he took her to the home. "She said to me, 'Can we go home now?'," he recalled. Tapping his fingers lightly on his chest, over his heart, he said quietly to me, "That hurt."

GC Agency Reps Attend Domestic Violence Conf.

Local agency representatives recently attended a conference on domestic violence held in Greenbelt and sponsored by the U.S. Attorney's Office, District of Maryland, and the Attorney General's and Lt. Governor's Family Violence Council.

Titled "Fighting Domestic Violence - New Federal Domestic Violence Laws: Federal, State and Local Partnerships," discussions focused on building relationships between state and federal prosecutors in an effort to better fight domestic violence. Federal domestic violence laws were also a topic of discussion, according to Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney for Garrett County.

Federal laws often provide for longer sentences and no pre-trial release on bond for the abuser, stated Welch, adding that federal laws have also been enacted that make it a crime to "possess a firearm and/or ammunition while subject to a qualifying protective order or after conviction of a qualifying misdemeanor crime of domestic violence."

Local representatives attending the conference included Lt. Larry Gnegy, Garrett County Sheriff's Office; Brenda Arnold and Tina Dick, domestic violence/sexual assault victim advocates for the Garrett County Sheriff's Office; and Carolyn Hegerman, Garrett County State's Attorney's victim witness coordinator.

Copies of the "Federal Domestic Violence Laws" brochure are available from any of the above named individuals.

"Soup And Story Night" Event Is Deemed Success

The Mountain Top Storytelling Guild this year joined in the global TELLABRATION! tradition with a "Soup and Story Night" produced recently by the Garrett branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and Kate Daniels of Traders' Cafe. The event benefited the AAUW Garrett Community College Scholarship and girls' soccer uniform fund.

"At the same weekend we shared stories here in Garrett County, Md., people all over the globe told and listened to their own tales," said Katie Ross, a teacher of Spanish and French at Braddock Middle School in Cumberland. "It's exhilarating to know that we were part of a worldwide event right here in Western Maryland. Many people have never experienced a story sharing performance before."

Besides Ross, tellers for the evening included Gary Yoder, a locally known storyteller, who related his experiences about becoming a father; Paul Shogren, who presented "A Dissertation on RME's; Herb Sutcliffe, who told a French Christmas story; Larry Cosner, who shared his story of a traveling salesman; and Charlie McIntyre, who told "The Traveler"; Gail Herman, who told a feminist tall tale; John Grant, who shared a true Garret County history tale; Becky Archer, a Southern Middle School student, who told two stories (one of which was her winning tale from the 1997 Tall Tale Liars Festival and one that she learned from her father); Bill Kolbe, Northern High School teacher; Steve Schlosnagle, Garrett County Arts Council; and Jeanne Walton, Keyser, W.Va.

TELLABRATION! - Larry Coanar is shown above as he spins a yarn about a talented sports equipment salesperson to a sold-out audience at "Soup and Story Night" held recently at Traders' Cafe. The event was sponsored by the Garrett branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) in conjunction with the National Storytelling Association's (NSA) worldwide Tellabration. See story.

A modern version of "Soup and Story Night" began at the Vernon Styles Inn in Connecticut in the 1980s when Gail Herman would tell her stories after a soup dinner. The Garrett AAUW decided to carry on the New England winter tradition and will sponsor another "Soup and Story Night" on February 2 at Trader's Landing, Rte. 219, Deep Creek Lake.

"The February 2nd Groundhog Night of Soup and Stories will be an evening devoted to Gary Yoder's stories and to banjo music by Otto Ross," said Herman, who added that those interested in more information should call her at 301-387-9199.

Persons are asked to call Kate Daniels at 301-387-7216 to purchase tickets, which must be reserved in advance. Proceeds will benefit the AAUW's educational and scholarship fund.

Savage-Wildesen Couple United In September Wedding Ceremony

Jessica Elizabeth Savage and David Wellington Wildesen were united in marriage on September 27 in a double wedding ring ceremony performed by Russ McConnell at the Oakland Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Ross and Carolyn Savage, Friendsville, and the groom is the son of Gerald and Sheila Wildesen, Mtn. Lake Park.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a white Alfred Angelo gown with a high illusion neckline accented with delicate Alençon lace which also graced the fitted bodice, and was trimmed with iridescent sequins and simulated pearls. The gown featured long pouf sleeves with cut-out appliqués which fell into finger points. The Basque waist dipped into a straight full-length skirt with a back slit. The detachable full cathedral-length train was also adorned with appliqués, sequins, and pearls. Her veil, something borrowed, was a crown of Austrian crystals and simulated pearls, and had a fingertip veil. As something new, the bride wore a pair of emerald and diamond hoop earrings given to her by the groom. The bride carried a bouquet of silk white roses touched with pink, white lilies, and ivy.

The matron of honor, Lee-Ann Rinker, friend of the bride, and bridesmaids Danielle Willetts, cousin of the bride, Kristi Coddington-Durst, friend of the bride, and Lana Smith, friend of the couple, wore emerald green crepe princess gowns with gathered sleeves designed and made by Christa Wildesen. The flower girl, Sarah Gaspar, friend of the bride, wore an emerald green princess gown with a white and gold sash made by Roberta Gaspar.

The groom and best man, Travis Rinker, friend of the groom, wore black tuxedos with tails, black jewelry and vest with emerald green, black and gold pinstriping. The groomsmen were Jason Savage, brother of the bride, Darren Wildesen, brother of the groom, and Rick Warnick, uncle of the groom. The ringbearer was Tommy Gaspar, friend of the bride.

During the ceremony a special prayer was said by Randy Cook. Music was performed by Tim Frey. After the lighting of the unity candle a single long-stemmed red rose was given to each of the mothers and grandmothers by the bride and groom. An arrangement was placed on the unity candle table in memory of Howard Warnick, grandfather of the groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Elks Club in Oakland, catered by the Elks. A two-tiered cake was made by Tina Walkling of Oakland. The cake was decorated in a basket weave with real daisies, ferns, and baby's breath. Music was provided by Mark Falkenstein of Terra Alta, W.Va.

A rehearsal dinner was held at Uno's Restaurant by the groom's parents.

The bride was honored with a bridal shower hosted by Danielle Willetts and Kristi Coddington-Durst. She was honored with a luncheon by her co-workers at the Dental Health Group and a surprise shower by Chris Wildesen and the ladies of the Church of Christ.

After a honeymoon to Opryland in Nashville, the couple established residency in Mtn. Lake Park.

Horse Salve Eases Arthritis Pain
LOUISVILLE KY. – An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflamation in racehorse's legs, has now been approved by government researchers for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx®. ARTH-Rx comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.
Developed by the Ptullins Gulf Corporation. ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.
Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messeger substance that send pain signals to the brain.
ARTH-Rx is available in a converuent roll-on applicator without a preacription. According to a spokeaperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446

DNR, Deep Creek Beer Company Working To Aid Bears, Farmers

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and a local business have announced renewed efforts to raise funds to help reimburse Western Maryland's farmers for black bear damage to crops.

DNR is holding a drawing for an opportunity to go along with DNR wildlife biologists next March as they check on a female black bear and tag her cubs.

The winner of the Jan. 15 drawing will be able to take along a second person on the bear cub tagging activity, held each spring since 1986, when DNR staff will tranquilize a black bear mother and remove her cubs from their den in order to study, catalog, and tag them before releasing them back to their mother unharmed.

The black bear research and tagging program has tagged nearly 100 bear cubs since its inception 11 years ago. It is a major component of DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division's efforts to study black bear habitat and home range requirements, reproductive rates, and mortality factors influencing the state's black bear population.

As part of this special promotion, the lottery winner will also receive one night's complimentary stay in a New Germany State Park cabin the night before the research activity.

Those who purchase one of DNR's black bear stamp products - from the $5 stamp to a $25 matted print with the stamp and a Maryland black bear history - can have their name entered into the contest drawing.

Lottery entries may also be made by submitting a letter with name, address, and phone number to the DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division, Black Bear Conservation Program, 580 Taylor Avenue, E-1, Annapolis, MD 21401.

A local business has brewed up a bear-and-farmer-aid project of its own.

David and Lee Saba, owners of Deep Creek Beer Works in Oakland, are donating five cents for every case they sell of Deep Creek Gold and Youghioheny Red beer, and two dollars for every keg of beer sold, to DNR's Black Bear Conservation Fund.

In addition, for $19, bear and beer supporters can purchase a Deep Creek Beer Works T-shirt with a bear on the back and receive a DNR black bear conservation stamp, which is included with the purchase of the shirt.

The sale of the black bear stamp is intended to raise funds to compensate farmers who have experienced agricultural damage from black bears in excess of $200. "Help a farmer and help a bear," Saba said. "Farmers need help now. It's not their fault that bears are ending up in their fields."

Although Saba said that he felt that "it's too early for a bear hunt, I'm not against hunting. There may come a time when responsible, regional black bear population management will be required, but we would like to support the black bear stamp program first. If the stamp were successful, DNR would be hard pressed to go ahead with a (hunting) lottery," he added.

The T-shirt and black bear stamp may be purchased by sending $19 to Deep Creek Beer Works, 318 Spring Glade Road, Oakland, MD 21550.

DNR black bear conservation products may also be purchased locally at the DNR Regional Service Center in downtown Cumberland, or by calling 1-800-TREES-MD to place an order by phone.

More information about DNR's black bear conservation program is available on the Internet, through DNR's home page at http://www.gacc.com/dnr/.

AFBF Reports 1997 Thanksgiving Dinner Cost Was Slightly Higher

The cost of the traditional Thanksgiving Day dinner increased ever so slightly this year, but the traditional holiday meal remained a relative bargain, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF).

In its annual survey of the price of basic items found on the Thanksgiving Day dinner table, Farm Bureau found the average cost of this year's traditional holiday feast for 10--including turkey, cranberries, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings--at $31.75, a modest 9-cent increase from last year's $31.66 average.

"Again, Americans had plenty to be grateful for as they sat down with their families to enjoy Thanksgiving dinner," said American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner. "The American farmers and ranchers work hard all year to secure a safe, affordable food supply for all Americans. Those same farmers and ranchers make it possible for us to enjoy this annual feast with our families."

Basic market adjustments appeared to be the biggest factor in the 9-cent increase in the overall average, according to Farm Bureau economists. Of the items on the survey, five increased in price--but only slightly. The largest increase was a 10-cent jump in the price of sweet potatoes, which averaged $1.92 per three-pound bag.

"The cost of living in the United States is going up," said Mark Jenner, an economist with the American Farm Bureau Federation. "If there is a price differential from year to year in certain commodities, that's pretty much normal. We can't expect wages to go up and not have the cost of certain food items go up just a little.

"These prices appear consistent from the numbers I'm seeing in each region of the nation."

The AFBF shopping list included turkey, stuffing, sweet potatoes, rolls with butter, peas, cranberries, a relish tray of carrots and celery, pumpkin pie with whipped cream and beverages of coffee or milk.

Turkey prices increased just 1 cent per bird from last year's survey. A 16-pound bird cost survey shoppers an average of $13.47--84 cents per pound.

Other increases on the survey included: a half-pint carton of whipping cream, 94 cents, up 7 cents; a 12-ounce package of brown-and-serve rolls, $1.26, up 1 cent; and a 16-ounce package of frozen green peas, $1.05, up 1 cent.

Five survey items decreased in price from last year's average. A gallon of whole milk averaged $2.44, a 16-cent drop. Other decreases included: a 14-ounce package of cubed stuffing, $2.17, down 10 cents; a combined pound of celery and carrots, 64 cents, down 7 cents; a package of two nine-inch frozen pie shells, $1.37, down 1 cent; and a 12-ounce package of fresh cranberries, $1.95, down 1 cent.

A 30-ounce can of pumpkin pie mix, costing $1.50, remained the same.

A combined group of miscellaneous items, including coffee and ingredients necessary to prepare the meal (onions, eggs, sugar, flour, evaporated milk and butter) cost $3.04, a 24-cent increase from last year's survey.

Although the $31.75 price represents the highest average price since the survey was started in 1986, the 9-cent increase represents the smallest climb. Prices on the survey have increased for six consecutive years. And this year's average was only $3.01 higher than the inaugural 1986 survey price of $28.74.

Prices of past surveys include: 1996 - $31.66; 1995 - $29.64; 1994 - $28.40; 1993 - $27.49; 1992 - $26.39; 1991 - $25.95; 1990 - $28.85; 1989 - $24.70; 1988 - $26.61; 1987 - $24.51.

The Farm Bureau survey is unscientific, but prices reflect actual trends across the nation. Bargain shoppers in all areas should be able to purchase these items at a price comparable to the Farm Bureau survey. Supermarkets in some areas offer ready-to-eat Thanksgiving meals for up to 10 people, with all the trimmings, for approximately $40.

Ninety-nine shoppers from 32 states participated in this year's Thanksgiving dinner survey. The results are based on the best in-store price, excluding special coupon deals and purchase requirements. Farm Bureau's survey menu has remained constant since 1986 to allow for valid price comparisons.

Call For Animal Health System Urged By FB

Farm Bureau and other commodity groups are urging senators to sign a letter to USDA calling for a new National Animal Health Emergency Management System. The program would assist federal, state and local governments in preventing and responding to any emergency affecting animal agriculture.

Food Safety Bill Introduced

Sens. Dick Durbin (D-Ill.) and Robert Torricelli (D-N.J.) have introduced legislation to create a single independent agency with jurisdiction over food safety, labeling and inspection. The proposed Food Safety Administration would consolidate functions currently divided among the Agriculture Department, the Food and Drug Administration, the Commerce Department and the Environmental Protection Agency. Farm Bureau opposes the legislation in its current form.

USDA To Appeal Milk Ruling

The Agriculture Department last week asked the Justice Department to appeal a recent federal court ruling that effectively trashed parts of the federal milk marketing system by ruling the current regimen, which bases prices on the distance from Eau Claire, Wis., "arbitrary and capricious."

U.S. District Judge David Doty of Minneapolis on November 3 ordered USDA to stop enforcing Class I differentiais in most milk marketing orders. Doty's ruling included all federal milk marketing orders except the Southeast order, the Carolina order and the three Florida orders.

USDA also requested a stay of the ruling, pending appeal, which will allow more time for the department to work out a congressionally mandated restructuring of the national milk pricing policy. The stay also would allow continued enforcement of Class I differentiais in all milk orders throughout the appeals process.

The potential impact of the ruling on dairy producers nationwide is a top Farm Bureau concern. American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner recently wrote USDA Secretary Dan Glickman, expressing concern about the court ruling and its potentially negative impact on milk prices. Kleckner worried that the decision could force a slowdown in the marketing order reform process.

AFBF dairy policy specialist Ken Olson said some producers could see price drops of up to $1 per hundredweight if the judge's ruling holds. And with the industry at its current state, a cut that steep could hurt many farmers.

"Some people are talking about figures larger than that, but it could be a pretty significant impact," Olson said. "Producers are under a lot of stress right now so it is something that is causing a lot of concern out there."

Kleckner said he shares Glickman's concerns about the low prices paid to dairy producers. He said Farm Bureau efforts, through the AFBF Order Reform Working Group, and ongoing USDA reform work should not be slowed. The farm leader urged Glickman to "take necessary action to avoid any market disruption that might occur as a result of the recent court ruling and proceed with all haste to complete the federal order reform."

Clinton Signs Agriculture Spending Package

President Clinton signed a $49.5 billion spending package last week to pay for 1998 Agriculture Department and Food and Drug Administration programs.

The spending bill, which is down $4.4 billion from last year, includes $25.1 billion for the food stamp program, $5.8 billion in crop subsidies and $1.9 billion for the conservation reserve program.

The president also used his line-item veto authority to strike parts of the bill, including $1.9 million in research projects.

Nutrient Management Guide For Crops & Water Quality Available

Nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, and other nutrients are brought onto farmland in the form of two commonly purchased essentials--feed and fertilizer. Nutrients are removed from farms in marketable produce such as milk, meat, or crops. On most livestock and poultry farms, however, more nutrients are brought onto the farm than removed, and the resulting accumulation not only wastes nutrients, it also threatens to contaminate ground and surface water. Nutrient management involves developing a planning strategy for nutrient recycling with minimum loss to the environment. Nutrient Management: Crop Production and Water Quality, NRAES-101, is a 40-page, color-illustrated guide to designing and sustaining an economically and environmentally sound nutrient management program.

Nutrient Management was authored by Stu Klausner of the Department of Soil, Crop, and Atmospheric Sciences, Cornell University. After an overview of basic principles, the book summarizes major concerns of field management, including eliminating unnecessary purchases of feed and fertilizer; using manure as the primary source of plant nutrients; controlling the rate, timing, and placement of fertilizer and manure applications; and implementing soil and water conservation practices. It also covers monitoring nutrient management by planning optimal ratios of animals to cropland; analyzing feed rations; testing soil to determine crop nutrient requirements; assessing the nutrient content of manure; and implementing a crop rotation that maximizes feed quality, economic production, and nutrient cycling.

Available for use with Nutrient Management: Crop Production and Water Quality are two companion workbooks. Nutrient Management Workbook, NRAES-102, is a 24-page publication developed by Klausner and Rob Halbohm, USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, Delaware County. It provides work sheets for recording information and performing calculations necessary for developing a nutrient management plan consistent with soil analyses and nutrient recommendations from the Cornell soil testing program. The 12-page workbook Estimating a Mass Nutrient Balance, NRAES-103, was prepared by S. Telega and N. Leonard of the Pre-Dairy Program and by Klausner. It offers the reader a framework for estimating mass balances for nutrients, which is the first step in developing a nutrient management plan.

The 1997 revision of Nutrient Management is an update of earlier publications that have served as the basis for nutrient management program development in New York and elsewhere. It is the first publication in the Cornell University Whole Farm Planning Program series, which represents the scientific basis for the New York City Watershed Whole Farm Planning Program. With the two workbooks, it serves as the technical base for the Pro-Dairy nutrient management course and will be an essential resource for producers, farm consultants, and planning teams.

Nutrient Management: Crop Production and Water Quality, NRAES-101, is priced at $8.00 per copy (plus shipping and handling); Nutrient Management Workbook, NRAES-102, costs $2.50; and Estimating a Mass Nutrient Balance, NRAES-103, is $1.50. All are available from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853-5701. Quantity discounts are available. The shipping and handling charge is $3.50 for orders totaling $20 or less within the continental United States. Major credit cards are accepted, and checks should be made payable to NRAES. For information about quantity discounts, or for a free publications catalog, those interested may contact NRAES by phone at 607-255-7654, by fax at 607-254-8770, or by e-mail at nraes-@corness.edu. Conference On Nat. Resources Income Planned

Private landowners will want to take a few minutes during the hectic holiday season to register for an important conference being held April 5-7, 1998. As its name suggests, the Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is designed for farmers, woodland owners, natural resources professionals and others interested in learning how to successfully choose and manage a private land income opportunity. The three-day event will be held at the Ramada Inn Convention Center in Hagerstown.

More than 35 speakers from Vermont to Arkansas--including landowners, consultants, foresters, and Cooperative Extension Service faculty from several states--will share their expertise on a variety of income-generating opportunities, including fishing, hunting, timber management, ecotourism, aquaculture, and the production and marketing of such products as maple syrup and ginseng. They also will explore issues involving finances, liability, insurance and environmental impact.

"Private landowners are becoming increasingly interested in income opportunities that make use of natural resources, and they need the best possible information to make wise decisions," says Jonathan Kays, regional natural resources specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "This conference is designed to give them that information." Participants will qualify for 13 Society of American Foresters continuing education credits (category one).

The Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of University of Maryland, Cornell University, Ohio State University, Pennsylvania State University, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia University, along with several federal, state and regional agencies and organizations. The registration fee is $95 and includes a complete copy of the conference proceedings.

For a brochure and registration form, those interested may call their local Cooperative Extension Service office; phone numbers are included under county headings in the blue pages of the telephone directory. Alternatively, call Cindy Mason at 301-432-2767, ext. 301, or send an e-mail message to ct11@umail.umd.edu.

Biodiesel May Have Saved Ketch After It Was Struck By Lightning

by Susanne Hammond of the Maryland Soybean Board

No one was aboard the sailing yacht "Beyond" when a bolt of lightning struck the top of the mainmast, sending a powerful charge through the electrical system and starting a smoldering fire in the port side of the 41-foot ketch.

The strike, sometime between 6 and 9 p.m. Sept. 27, vaporized weather equipment, antennae, and navigation lights before traveling through the wiring to the electrical panel, shooting three of the fuses across the cabin "like they had been fired from a gun," according to Capt. Jim MacNeil of Beyond.

MacNeil, and Rebecca Payne, both of Salisbury, have been cruising in Beyond since November 1996, using a blend of new soybean-based diesel called "biodiesel" with regular petro-diesel, in their boat.

The Maryland Soybean Board and Florida-based NOPEC, manufacturers of the fuel, have provided fuel for their trip, which has been one of the first long-distance demonstrations of the 20 percent biodiesel blend. Brian Peterson of Iowa navigated the globe on 100 percent biodiesel in 1992 in the Zodiak "Sunrider."

The blended fuel may be the reason there is still a "Beyond" today. Biodiesel's flash point - the temperature at which the fuel will ignite - is more than 300 degrees Fahrenheit, more than twice that of petroleum diesel.

MacNeil and Payne have previously reported that they liked the blended fuel because it burns cleaner, adds lubrication and the neat fuel is safe to store, non-toxic and biodegradable. Now, they believe, it may have prevented the boat from exploding.

No one, except Brewser the sailors' cat, who survived the ordeal, knows exactly what happened that night. MacNeil and Payne were having dinner at a cafe on the island of Hispaniola at 6 p.m. that night, admiring what MacNeil remembers was a "spectacular light show" put on by Mother Nature. The thunderstorm soon caused a power outage, and the couple finished dinner by candlelight.

"It was around 9:30 when we motored across Lake Luperon to our anchored boat and noticed a sinister fog across the water," MacNeil recalls. "We remarked that fog must be terribly infrequent in the Caribbean. Then we detected the smell of smoke. Rebecca wondered if a local farmer was burning trash in nearby fields. I prayed she was right.

"In the dim light, however, I noticed the smoke led to our boat but went no further."

As they drew alongside Beyond, Brewser met them at the rail, whining. MacNeil leaped aboard and sent Rebecca after flashlights and fire extinguishers from nearby anchored boats. The fire had already had a chance to burn and smolder for perhaps two hours. "I was lost in a noxious cloud of thick black smoke when I threw open the doors," MacNeil says. "Holding my breath and feeling in the dark, I shut off all the batteries and barely made it to fresh air again."

Help arrived quickly. Nearby boats shone floodlights on the scene as the firefighters donned Scuba gear to re-enter the cabin. Fellow sailors in dinghies pulled alongside Beyond shouted that the port side felt hot, and MacNeil entered the cabin of the boat he's lived on and lovingly restored for eight years, into a cabin that now seemed so hostile, so unfamillar in the swarming black smoke.

"When I learned to Scuba dive 18 years ago, I never dreamed I'd use the gear for this: the scariest descent and the darkest dive of my life lay ahead...-and it was not even into water," he says. Unable to find the fire, he returned to the deck, just as Annapolis sailor Jack Snyder of the Dolphin noticed the paint beginning to blister on the port side.

Several fire extenguishers discharged into the area only momentarily cooled the fire. Then enforcements arrived from shore: the cafe where they had eaten had heard the distress call, and enlisted some local welders and the Marina de Guerra (similar to the Coast Guard). "My head was spinning from the smoke and everyone's frantic questions when someone yelled, 'We got flames!'" MacNeil says. The intense heat had ignited the upholstered seats of the dinette, on the port side.

The local welders took over, Rene Williams wrapping his head in a wet T-shirt and Rafael "Felo" Urena donning the Scuba gear. Manuel Jiminez, a night watchman on a nearby fishing vessel, fired up a powerful water pump. "I helped prime the pump," MacNeil says. "But I couldn't look, as they discharged a powerful wall of water into the cabin, flooding the boat until things were floating around the cabin and the deck was almost level with some of the dinghies tied alongside. By midnight the fire was out, but our world was upside down. Thankfully, there were no injuries."

Damage to the boat, which is an unusual CT with elaborate woodcarving below deck, exceeded $30,000. Clean-up and repairs are still in progress.

MacNeil believes the biodiesel blend helped save the boat from worse damage, and possible an explosion. "If you could see the proximity of the fuel tank to the most badly damaged area, you would understand how important any gains in the flashpoint of the fuel was," he says. "The fire was hot enough to burn fiberglass. It may be because of biodiesel that we still have a boat."

Stay tuned for more adventures aboard Beyond.

Pharmacists Can Help with Health Problems

Pharmacists are one of several health care providers that can help you with all types of health problems. Since pharmacists are trusted and are more accessible than most other health professionals, they are often asked questions about diseases and symptoms about which people have concerns. Recent graduates from some colleges of pharmacy have been trained to take histories and perform limited physical assessments that can be useful in determining whether or not someone should be referred to a physician or hospital emergency room for care.

Some health problems tend to be self limiting, and/or they can be managed appropriately with over-the-counter (OTC) medicines. Pharmacists are considered OTC product experts and can assist family members in selecting cost effective products for such problems as headache, fever, allergic reactions, sunburn, skin rash, and gastrointestinal problems such as heartburn, constipation, and diarrhea.

Pharmacists also are knowledgeable about prescription drugs and can provide information about medication dose, length of therapy, potential drug interactions, and side effects. In order to receive useful information from pharmacists, they occasionally may ask you to provide information about yourself and members of your family.

The Homemakers Corner

by Joan Schultz

Public Relations Chairperson

The Christmas season started early for the Garrett County Association for Family and Community Education and the Extension Homemakers. They held their Christmas Workshop in mid-October, with members from Meadow Glede, Sunnyside, Deer Park, Bloomington and Casselman Valley in attendance. After a few brief comments, everyone joined in a group singing of Christmas songs, followed by a show and tell of the many crafts brought in for display by the members. After a covered dish lunch, door prizes were awarded and craft demonstrations were given, with a hands-on craft closing the fun-filled day. Thank you, Meadow Glade Club, for hosting the workshop and making the Christmas favors, which were given to all attending.

On November 15, a Holiday Treats program was held at the Extension Office, with Opal Fazenbaker, Irmgard Koscielniak, Loretta Wotring, and Joan Shultz presenting a variety of homemade cookies, breads, and confections. Despite the inclement weather, the programs were well attended. Many compliments were made on the food presentation, and all enjoyed sampling the homemade goodies, punch, and coffee which were offered.

WELCOME BACK, BLOOMINGTON

We are delighted to announce that the Bloomington Club has decided to rejoin our county organization. Their presence, as well as their intellect and talents, have been greatly missed. We look forward to their participation at our various functions and their valuable input on important issues at the board meetings. Don't hesitate to call the Extension Office if assistance is needed on any matter. It is our hope that other clubs will follow their decision in rejoining our organization.

MEADOW GLADE CLUB

The Meadow Glade Club will hold its Christmas dinner at the Cassehnan Restaurant on December 11 at 11 a.m. A brief meeting will be held along with a Christmas ornament exchange.

The Garrett County Association for Family and Community Education and Extension Homemakers wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy, Healthy New Year.

BITTINGER NEWS

Emmanuel Church will be having a special Christmas program on December 28 during the regular worship service. Pastor Mark Klawonn has submitted his resignation effective December 26 and will be returning back to his home state of Illinois.

Beulah Moon entertained 12 family members with Thanksgiving dinner. Grandchildren Amy and David Moon spent several days with their grandmother.

Carol and Kevin Bass and children spent the Thanksgiving holidays with his parents in Anderson, S.C.

Rodney and Marci Glotfelty entertained with a Thanksgiving dinner at their home on Friday. Guests were: Lynn Farmer, Baltimore; Lisa Shierer, Frostburg; Barry Glotfelty, Frederick; and Joy Malinowski, Philadelphia. Joy has just completed a screen play for her producer in England. Other family guests were Dale Glotfelty and Ruth DiPaolo. Lynn Farmer spent several days with the Glotfeltys.

Elmer and Ida Maust had a family Thanksgiving dinner at which guests were Conrad Maust, Philadelphia, Gerald and his wife and children from Chrichton, Pa., David Maust and family, Christina Maust-Graham, Charlotte Tice and family, and Twila and Darrel Yoder and family, including new son Jordon, who was born on November 25.

David and Donna Buckel, Lexington, Ky., and Rose Buckel, as well as Kandi and Leslie, are home for the holidays, and had their Thanksgiving dinner at Sharon and Gary Buckel's home. A buckwheat cake breakfast was served by the Gary Buckel family on Sunday morning for their out-of-town guests. Also joining them at breakfast were Phillip and Sondra Buckel.

The Southerly Thanksgiving dinner was celebrated with additional guests present: Blair Buckel, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Resh, and Max and David Buckel. Dave and Max returned to the hills for some tramping around in the woods and meeting up with many other city men who also enjoy deer hunting.

Bittinger is great turkey country and deer hunting country, so last week the woods were full of hunters. The road sometimes looked like the main highways filled with pick-ups and loaded down with hunters. The early mornings sounded like a war zone. Large families try to solve the puzzle of conflict schedule; work, hunting, traveling to in-laws, and scheduling a family Thanksgiving dinner.

The Thanksgiving service at Cherry Glade Mennonite Church was held Wednesday evening. Several couples shared with the congregation how they deal with problems in their families, such as disabilities, etc. A collection of food for the Bittinger Pantry was given.

The Thanksgiving Service was held at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, with the parish participating. The Youth of the Church took part in the service, along with the Joint Choir of all three churches Tuesday evening.

Holiday visitors of Maxine and Bob Legeer were Patsy, Tona and Todd McDonald, Fort White, Fla., and Terry, Mike and Nicholas Caparella, and Victor Mellen, Annapolis.

Ellen and Sam Housley, Margaret Hershberger-Wagner, and Dan and Kitty Hershberger, Vienna, Va., and Ann and Pat McLister and children, Frederick, celebrated the Thanksgiving holiday with Ruth Hershberger, Grantsville.

The Kyle Morrison family moved to McHenry over the weekend. Their formerly rented house will be occupied by Tanya Beitzel. She returns to her childhood home after attending college in the Washington, D.C., area, and graduating from the University of Maryland, College Park. The new address for Kyle, Valerie, Ryan, Paige, Ben, and Kelsey Morrison is 293 Mosser Road. Their new phone number is 301-387-2969.

Violation Of Probation Cases Heard In Court

Two cases involving violation of probation charges were heard in Garrett County Circuit Court two weeks ago. In one, a local man pleaded guilty to violating probation, and in the other, the defendant entered a motion to revise his sentence.

Judge James Sherbin accepted the guilty plea of Phillip A. Pepe Jr., Oakland, who apparently violated probation by relocating his place of residence without notifying his probation officers and by failing to make payments ordered by the court.

Sherbin reimposed a two-year sentenced given to Pepe in April 1996, and then suspended all but seven days, which were to be served in the local jail. The defendant was originally convicted of battery, according to the court report.

William P. Clemons, 37, Oakland, asked Sherbin to revise the sentence given to him -- which was for 11 months in jail -- for his conviction of probation violation. He was originally charged with resisting arrest, according to the court report.

Sherbin did revise the sentence, releasing Clemons and suspending all of the 11 months except the time he had already served (135 days).

GARRETT COUNTY

GA96G003/1 - Garrett County Sanitary District, Inc., 313 East Alder Street, Old Courthouse, Room 200, Oakland, MD 21550, has applied for an appropriation of an annual average of 18,000 gallons per day (gpd) of ground water and 27,000 gpd during the month of maximum use, for a community supply for the Table Rock-Gorman area. The water is to be taken from two wells in the Greenbrier and Mauch Chunk Formations, located on the west side of Mountain Road, 0.5 mile north of the junction of Mountain Road and U.S. Route 50, 0.5 mile north of Table Rock, Garrett County, Maryland.

The production wells, installed in a water table fractured rock aquifer, will be about 200 feet deep. Impacts to the resource and nearby users were evaluated using data from geological reports and investigations available to the Water Resources Administration and an on-site aquifer pumping test. Pumping during periods of maximum use may lower the water table less than five feet in the nearest domestic well. In making the evaluation, it was assumed that all water was pumped continuously for 60 days, with no recharge to the aquifer.

Christmas Tour Of Accident Homes Slated

A tour of homes in Accident is slated as part of the Christmas In Flowery Vale weekend. From 3 to 6 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 13, visitors are invited to enjoy the Christmas decorations and hospitality of churches and private homes along Main Street.

Opening their door in welcome, as part of this year's walking tour, will be George and Helen McDonald. Their house, one of the older ones on Main Street, has undergone extensive renovation in past years.

The McDonalds' home will reflect childhood Christmases in North Carolina, where Mr. McDonald's father worked in the cotton fields. The family Christmas tree was decorated with cotton ornaments. Without the benefit of electric lights, there was a natural simplicity to the decoration of the McDonald home.

Among household family treasures displayed in the McDonald home are antiques, artifacts, imported glass, and copper.

MCDONALD HOME

Carol Slawson and her daughter, Laramie Slawson, will again open their home to walking tour visitors, as will Rev. and Mrs. Roland Nairn.

St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Zion Lutheran Church will also host tour visitors.

The tour will conclude with a historical glimpse of Christmases past in the Drane House.

Tickets for the tour, which are $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12, will be available at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. A portion of the proceeds collected will be donated to needy families in Garrett County.

In Loving Memory of our Grandmother
Wilma Bittinger

In memory of our grandmother sadly missed by all.
So many memories of times with her we still recall.

On November 30th—it's been seven years gone by.
We will never forget her but no more will we cry.

For we know she is at peace and where she must be
In our hearts she will remain and her face we still see.

Her Grandchildren all loved her, we know she could tell.
She has new great-grandchildren who will know her as well.

Her memory will forever linger and others will know
Just how special she was as we tell them so.

In memory of you, Grandma, this we must say:
You're still missed by all and will be every day.

Your Grandchildren,
Lisa Brenneman
Paul Roderick Jr.
Theresa Miller
Jeff Helbig
(Plus six great-grandchildren now)

Oakland Update

by Mayor Asa McCain

The town employees would like to wish everyone a happy holiday season. This Friday, Dec. 5, 6-8 p.m., is the Fresh Air Christmas Festival, made possible by GOBA and WKHJ. In addition to the festivities (crafts, foods, carolers, Santa and Mrs. Claus) stores will be open to serve you. Thanks to Scott Atwill, we have a wonderful train display in the window at the corner of Second and Green streets. The building is now owned by the First United National Bank and Trust and used for museum displays. Thanks to both of them for making the space available. (While you are in town, check out the special toy display at the museum.)

There are only a few weeks until Christmas, so why not consider helping save the Oakland Station by purchasing the Oakland Station ornament or a frameable print of the station available at the model train display Friday evening as well as at City Hall (301-334-2691) and these local shops -- Christmas Chalet, Englander's Pharmacy, Expanding Horizons, Herbal Treasures, Interior Expressions, and Water Street Market Place. REMEMBER TO SHOP THE MOUNTAIN TOP.

Look for next week's update for the latest on the train station purchase effort.

Statewide Park Reservation System To Be Delayed

Maryland Department of Natural Resources Secretary John R. Griffin has announced that the contractor hired to provide a new statewide park reservation system will not have the system ready as planned in January.

"Since the reservation system will not be operational, effective Jan. 12, people who wish to make reservations for cabins, camping, or pavilion use at a state park should contact that park in order to make reservations, just as they have done in the past," Griffin said.

No reservations will be taken prior to Jan. 12 for the 1998 camping season. Reservations for cabins, camping, or pavilion use may be made up to nine months in advance, and, as may require a minimum in the past, reservations length of stay.

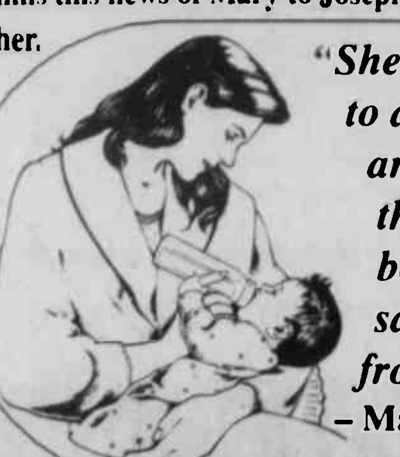
An impending birth...how thrilling...always a busy time of anticipation and preparation. A baby shower, a nursery to ready, announcements to choose...

Yet, when the angel of the Lord proclaims this news of Mary to Joseph, we know immediately that this would be a birth like no other. The gifts came from the Wise Men of the age sent by a king, though the nursery was only a stable. A star guided strangers working in the fields to drop everything and travel miles to visit the child they knew nothing about. Amazing!

During the last several weeks before a child is born we make final preparations for the birth. As we worship each week and light another candle on the Advent wreath, may we take this time to prepare our hearts and minds to celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ...a birth like no other.



"She will give birth to a son, and you are to give Him the name Jesus, because He will save His people from their sins." – Matthew 1:21

The answer is Diabetes! And at this time of year, an extra special effort is made to find those people who have Diabetes, and because they may have none or few symptoms, do not know it. Testing is simple and painless so have it done soon.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ARE YOU A GNOSTIC?
December 7, 1997

Background Scripture:
1 John 1: through 2:11
Devotional Reading:
John 1:1-14

In early Christianity many Greek words became part of Christian vocabulary. Two of these words were orthodoxia and hairesis, which we render in English as orthodox and heresy. Orthodoxy meant "right opinion" and the term came to represent Christian beliefs which were judged to be true Christian doctrine.

Originally, hairesis had no negative implications. It meant a "system or school of thought." It implied a choice of one's way of belief. In the early Church, however, hairesis came to represent the choice of what is not true.

Early Christianity struggled constantly with a variety of heresies: Marcionism, Montanism, Sabellianism, Arianism, Eutychianism, Monophysitism, Nestorianism, Pelagianism and Gnosticism.

Orthodox Christianity eventually prevailed over each of these heresies which eventually died out and have simply become part of Christian history. Except that, from time to time, some of these beliefs spring up, although generally not under the name of the ancient heresy they represent.

HERESY! HERESY!

Heresy is a term which is usually not part of Christian vocabulary today. We may know what it means, but we never use it ourselves and rarely, if ever, hear others use it. The idea that someone might consciously choose to believe in something heretical is foreign to most of us. We grant that people sometimes believe in something untrue, but if so, we think of it as simply a mistake, not a purposeful unorthodoxy.

It is therefore interesting to discover that Gnosticism, one of the most pervasive early heresies, taught that evil was simply error and ignorance, unfortunate beliefs for which a person could not be held responsible. They believed that Christ came into the world primarily to bring us knowledge (gnosis) of the truth. Knowing the truth was tantamount to salvation. So what people needed, Gnostics taught, was not forgiveness but illumination.

Christian orthodoxy, on the other hand, taught that sin is the root of evil, willful disobedience of God. Under this concept people were responsible for their sins and very much in the need of forgiveness. True discipleship was not to be found in what one believed, but in what one did about his or her beliefs. Here we find the true connection between beliefs and deeds: what we believe should affect how we live. Knowing the mysteries of God is of no use whatsoever if we do not live righteously and penitently before God.

JESUS: A REAL HUMAN

All of the above is by way of introduction to 1 John. The author, probably the same man who wrote the fourth gospel, is writing to people who are being besieged by Gnostic teachings. The Gnostics taught that Christ was not a real human being; he only appeared to be. So, the author begins by saying as strongly as he can that Jesus was a real man which the apostles themselves experienced: "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon and touched with our hands..."

The imagery of light to describe God was a popular Gnostic teaching. John says, yes, "God is light and in him is no darkness at all," and you cannot live in darkness and have fellowship with the light. "Darkness" here means sinful behavior, which is more than ignorance, it is rebellion against God and calls for repentance. Christians need to live righteously, avoiding sin, but, if they sin, and all of us do, the gospel has a remedy: "but if any one does sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; and he is the expiation for our sins..."

Neither, says the author, can we share in the light and be illumined if we fail to believe and live by the old commandment which is ever new: love one another. "He who says he is in the light and hates his brother is in the darkness still." You cannot have right beliefs without love. You cannot hate and be correct in your beliefs.

We don't call it Gnosticism today but the heresy is still with us here and there, now and then. You can know the truth and fail to love your neighbor.

Read. Then Recycle.

ONCE UPON A TIME, CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK was marked in a special way by students from Jane Avery's theater class at Southern High School. The group visited Kitzmiller, Swen Meadow, and Dennett Road schools to read stories to the children. The adventure in reading at Kitzmiller library followed the theme of a camping trip as students spread out on sleeping bags in front of a tent and campfire. The high school students read by flashlight to small groups of children gathered round. Campfire songs and skits added another dimension to the fun. Snacks for everyone completed the campfire experience. In the photo above, Jane Avery talks to the whole group. In the picture above right Aimee Parrack shows pictures to the children as she reads the story. Below right, Charlena Reeves seems to be enjoying the story as much as the children. Below, the children are pictured concentrating on the story that Brandon Heselbach is reading.

Banking for real life.

Mary Lou Stemple understands the value of long-term relationships. As the owner of Grandmother's House, a craft and gift shop, and the Party House, a party supply store, Mary Lou knows what her customers want. She has provided the Oakland community with a reliable source for home, craft and party items for more than 15 years.

And relationships are why Mary Lou has remained a My Bank/First United customer for more than 30 years. "I like the fact that I can walk into the bank and know the employees who serve me," claims Mary Lou. "I've known many of them for years, so they understand what I need, and they really care about helping me."

Local ownership also is important to Mary Lou. "I appreciate the fact that My Bank is locally-owned and independent. I enjoy being a name and not a number, and I like knowing that my bank is a member of our community."

That's what makes First United the first choice for Mary Lou. My Bank is more than helping people. It's banking for real life!

COVER STORY

Lifetime's Second Day at top of wish list

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Mary Stuart Masterson

A voice like a bell, an ascetic with a sweet tooth, a ghost story retold as a struggle for equality and a pickpocket with a heart of gold – there is no lack of variety among the week's Christmas movies and specials.

Among the best of these is On the Second Day of Christmas, airing Monday, Dec. 8, on Lifetime. Mary Stuart Masterson stars as a pickpocket working the aisles of a New York department store with her young niece (Lauren Pratt) when they run into Bert (Mark Ruffalo), a zealous security guard and lonely guy.

It's clear enough where the film is headed as soon as the store's owner orders the thieves to spend Christmas in the guard's custody. But it turns out to be a pleasant journey, with humorous twists and a bit of Santa Claus magic. Among the supporting characters, Arlene Meadows' portrayal of Bert's mom is a gem, and Howard Hesseman adds last-act fun as the tallest member of Santa's New Jersey staff.

Also on Monday, A&E Network presents A Judy Collins Christmas at the Biltmore Estate, featuring Collins' crystal-clear voice in an intimate setting. Selections run the gamut from "Let It Snow" to Collins' signature "Amazing Grace."

The week's other music specials include The Soul of Christmas: A Celtic Music Celebration With Thomas Moore, airing Tuesday, Dec. 9, on PBS (check local listings for all PBS programs). The program is a feel-good "festival for people of all faiths" with Celtic and Appalachian renderings of well-known Christmas songs.

Thursday, Dec. 11, mezzo-soprano Denyce Graves sings carols and songs of the season at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., in PBS' Denyce Graves – A Cathedral Christmas.

The holidays are usually haunted by the specter of A Christmas Carol, and this year is no different. Alas, the USA Network's Ms. Scrooge, airing Wednesday, Dec. 10, should be a marquee attraction, but instead is a disappointment. With Cicely Tyson in the title role and Katherine Helmond as Marley, inspiration seems to turn on and off like a string of lights. A back story about growing up in the segregated South is defeated by the production's thoughtless inconsistencies. Tyson alternates growls with baby talk, affecting a mumbling speaking style more suggestive of a stroke patient than a tight-lipped miser.

On the nonfiction shelf, PBS offers The Saints With Sister Wendy, an art-and-anecdote special drawing on the illuminated manuscripts of the Vatican library and other religious art. The hourlong lesson airs Sunday, Dec. 7.

Sister Wendy Beckett gives a warm portrait of Mary Magdalene and shares her childhood horror at the suffering of St. Agatha. She shows her sense of gallows humor on the subjects of St. Lawrence and Thomas a Becket. Side trips include a stop at Assisi in Italy, where Sister Wendy reveals that the dying St. Francis asked for marzipan candy.

The week is a mixed bag – or should that be stocking? But if you need a little Christmas right this very minute, something good is bound to shake out.

TV-PIPELINE

Q: Is James MacArthur the son of Helen Hayes? I seem to remember reading something about that recently. –James I. Shadden, Pine Bluff, Ark.

A: Yes, James is the son of Hayes and playwright Charles MacArthur (The Front Page).

Q: On a recent episode of Fired Up, a character paraphrased a quote I remember from a children's show. It went something like this: "Drizzle, drazzle, druzzle, drome, time for this one to come home." I am losing sleep trying to remember who originally said it and where it first appeared. –Sleepless in Au Sable Forks, N.Y.

A: In the early 1960s, cartoon characters Tooter Turtle and Mr. Wizard, the Lizard of the Great Forest, were a regular feature of King Leonardo and His Short Subjects.

At Tooter's request, Mr. Wizard would send him to various places and times in history, where Tooter invariably got into trouble.

At those times, he'd scream, "Help, Mr. Wizard!," and Mr. Wizard would use the incantation you mentioned to bring Tooter home to safety.

Q: I love the music from Ally McBeal. Is a soundtrack in the works? Does vocalist Vonda Shepard have any CDs of her own out? –Jessica Lindsey via e-mail.

A: There's no talk of releasing a soundtrack yet, but Shepard has three CDs on the Vesper Alley label.

Q: About two years ago I heard a rumor about an X-Men movie based on the comic-book characters. What happened? Is the project still on? –Sleeper28 via e-mail.

A: Director Bryan Singer (The Usual Suspects) is scheduled to direct an unknown cast in X-Men in 1998.

Helen Hayes

Q: What was the name of the robot on Lost in Space? –D.D., Streator, Ill.

A: A surprising number of people think it had a name – the most often mentioned being "Robby," which was another robot altogether – but original cast member Jonathan Harris (Dr. Zachary Smith) says the character simply was called The Robot, not that Dr. Smith didn't address it rather colorfully at times.

Q: Please provide the titles of two '80s sitcoms for me. The first starred Diana Canova and Jane Leeves at a record company; the second had Dee Wallace Stone and Elliott Gould as adoptive parents of an ethnically mixed home. – Tania in Massachusetts.

A: Respectively, they were Throb (syndicated, 1986-88) and Together We Stand (ABC, 1986-87).

1,000 Men and a Baby relief from holiday routine

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Why do many TV producers get so confused this time of year? It's the holiday season, but they treat viewers like trick-or-treaters, handing out programs that are like heaping helpings of syrupy candy.

An exception to this tradition is 1,000 Men and a Baby, premiering Sunday, Dec. 7, on CBS. The poignant TV movie starring Richard Thomas and Gerald McRaney tells the true story of a Navy crew that "adopted" an abandoned Korean-American infant.

The story is set in 1953, when an American soldier finds a baby left at a military depot. An Irish nun, Sister Philomena (Doris Roberts), quickly determines the Korean assistants in her orphanage will not care for a baby who is part American.

She and the USS Point Cruz's chaplain, Father Edward O'Riley (Jonathan Banks), conspire to get the baby boy on the ship. Capt. John Hayward (McRaney) approves the idea, correctly guessing that it will improve his crew's morale.

But getting a child of mixed ethnic heritage to America is fraught with endless red tape. The efforts of Hayward, O'Riley and medical officer Hugh Keenan (Thomas) appear fruitless – and they know if the boy is left in Korea, he will die.

Baby takes time with its story. It allows viewers to share the frustration as one senseless complication after another arises.

The characters, sharply drawn individuals with high-stakes goals in mind, make for a refreshing holiday movie that takes on some weight.

When the sentimental ending arrives, the tears it earns are honest ones.

Jonathan Banks, Richard Thomas and Gerald McRaney star in 1,000 Men and a Baby, the story of a Navy crew that rescued a Korean War orphan, airing Sunday on CBS.

Meet Garrett County's NEW TEACHERS

Editor's Note: The Garrett County Board of Education employed 14 new teachers at the beginning of the school year. Each was assigned a mentor by the school principal to assist with new employees transition to the school system. This is the first in a series of articles that will focus on the new teachers and their mentors. Each article will focus on one of the nine schools to which these teachers have been assigned.

At Northern Middle School, Helen Stephens, a Garrett county native, teaches seventh grade math and language arts. Her mentor, Nancy Frank, is a veteran with more than 20 years of service as a teacher with the Garrett County Board of Education.

Stephens was an honor student both at Garrett Community College, where she received an award at graduation for the highest GPA in her class, and at Frostburg State University, where she completed her B.S. degree in elementary/middle education with a 4.0 average.

Stephens completed her assistant and internship experiences in Garrett County classrooms in association with FSU and the "professional development school" at Southern Middle School, where she worked closely with Sharon Grant in the seventh grade math program.

At Dennett Road Elementary School she completed a two-week assistant experience working with Norma Rickman's fourth grade class, and at Broad Ford she completed an internship under the supervision of Suzanne Wilburn in a second grade classroom.

She credits her mentor with providing her with much needed encouragement during a "rough" first month of classes. She appreciates the helpful cooperation which Frank has provided. "Nancy has been like a mother to me," Stephens said of her mentor.

Frank, who has served as a mentor for other new teachers in the past, earned an undergraduate degree at FSU, a master's of education degree from the University of Maryland, and now has more than 30 graduate credits beyond her master's degree.

A seventh grade language arts teacher, Frank also serves as advisor to the yearbook. In addition to her regular assignment at Northern Middle School she has taught summer school and is currently teaching evening high school. Prior to her years as an educator for the Garrett County Board of Education she had been employed as a teacher in Howard and Montgomery counties.

In speaking of Stephens' assignment to Northern Middle School, Frank commented, "She is a great addition to the team. She is very dedicated and wants to make a difference."

She noted a willingness to go beyond what is expected, a willingness to try new approaches, appropriate contact with parents and good classroom control as some of the things which she believes makes it easy to work with Stephens and things which will help her become a very good teacher.

Helens Stephens and her husband Mike reside in Oakland with their three children, Justin, Matthew, and Sarah. Her parents are Oliver and Dorothy Niner, also of the Oakland area.

Nancy Frank resides in Accident.

Highway Deaths During Holiday Down This Year

Six Maryland residents died in highway vehicle accidents during the 1997 Thanksgiving holiday weekend. According to a report from Maryland State Police headquarters in Pikesville, this number reflects four fewer fatalities than at the same time last year. None of the fatalities occurred on Garrett County highways.

"During the Thanksgiving holiday, nearly 3,000 speed citations were issued across Maryland. Addtionally, troopers arrested 98 drivers for operating vehicles while intoxicated," David B. Mitchell, MSP superintendent, noted. In Garrett County there was one arrest for DWI.

Mitchell also noted that this was the first holiday during which the primary seat belt law was in effect. MSP issued 1,164 safety belt citations, and 252 warnings, he said. There were an additional 51 citations for child restraint violations during this period. Mitchell indicated these traffic statistics are up dramatically from last year's while highway collision statistics are down significantly.

Of the fatal highway accidents, Mitchell pointed out that 50% involved use of alcohol. To help prevent accidents caused by alcohol use, state police will participate in National 3D (Drunk and Drugged Driving) Prevention Month during December. "Historically, December has been one of the deadliest times of the year on our nation's highways," Mitchell said.

The theme of the national campaign for this year's 3D Prevention Month is "Take a Stand Against Impaired Driving." Mitchell said the state police will coordinate efforts for DWI detection and enforcement during the holdiay season.

Herman Among Presenters At NAGC Meeting

The 44th annual convention of the National Association for Gifted Children (NAGC) was held Nov. 5-9 in Little Rock, Ark. Among those presenting sessions for educators and parents at the convention was Dr. Gail N. Herman, Swanton.

NAGC is the principal membership association for educators and parents who believe that challenging and appropriate educational opportunities for all children are necessary to enable every child to achieve his or her full potential and to improve education in the United States.

Approximately 2,500 parents from across the United States, Canada, and other countries participated in convention sessions and special activities designed to address the needs of talented and gifted youths. Herman was asked to provide two presentations and a workshop.

In the presentation titled College and Me: A Rural County-Wide Community College Enrichment Partnership, she described the genesis of the College and Me program, a partnership between local school and college boards, which provides active exploratory experiences in domains not ordinarily studied in the fifth grade curriculum. The program, directed by Nancy Pagenhardt of Garrett Community College and the Garrett County Board of Education, is designed to stimulate new interests that may kindle academic desires and later career pursuits. Parent meetings provide opportunities to learn about financial assistance.

The second presentation was titled Image Processing At the Maryland Summer Center for the Integration of Math and Science. It focused first on training local county teachers and then on residential study for students with special talents in science and math.

Using materials developed by Image Processing for Teaching at the University of Arizona, these students are taught to use computer images from NASA, the National Institute of Health, and the Center for Image Processing in Education to solve complex problems in biology, mathematics, chemistry, and physics. The students participate in research, where they gather data and express their findings.

During the following year, teachers who are trained in the project use their knowledge with students in their classrooms. The program is directed by Dr. Nancy Priselac of Garrett Community College.

Herman's workshop was titled Making Connections in Literacy, Math, and the Arts. The teachers in this session discussed why connections in these areas are important, and experienced examples at various grade levels which can be used in their math classes. A foundation for the workshop dealt with Howard Gardner's theory of multiple intelligences, which claims that human beings have not just one general intelligence but a group of culturally and/or neurologically separate intelligences which have served human beings throughout history. According to this theory, using certain activities as "entry points" into a unit or subject helps students make connections and become motivated because they may be utilizing their intellectual strength areas.

Herman has given similar workshops in multiple intelligence theory and practice over the past year to West Virginia teachers in the Orton Dyslexia Society, the West Virginia Benedum Project, the PRO ED/WVU Project, and the Monongalia County schools.

Anyone wishing more information may contact Gail Herman, Nancy Pagenhardt, or Nancy Priselac at Garrett Community College or Peter Rosenstein, executive director of the National Association for Gifted Children, 1707 L St. NW, Washington, DC (202-785-4268).

AND THE WINNER IS - This Yamaha Timbarwolf was recently raffled off by the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. The winning ticket for 4x4 vehicle, purchased at Snowy Creek by the OVFD Auxiliary, was selected by Jack Michaela, assistant warden of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Dan Brenneman of Loch Lynn held the winning number. He is pictured here, in the center, with Christine Brenneman, left, and Marsha James, auxiliary member.

PANELCRAFT

Radically Different?
Your Bet!
Cool When It's Hot
Cozy When It's Not!
PANELCRAFT
These houses are built with Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs).
Using SIPs requires less construction time and leaves the customer with a draft-free Energy Efficient Home at an affordable price!
At Panelcraft, these Panels go through a special bonding process to create a Structural Panel far superior to using just the insulation by itself in a conventional frame building.
The material used for the insulation is called Polystyrene, the same thing that is used for styrofoam coffee cups. Not only does 1/16 of an inch of Polystyrene protect your fingers from being burned from the scorching hot coffee, it also keeps them dry!
Now if only 1/16 inch will do this, imagine what 4 to 6 inches will do in your home to keep the warm and the dry inside and keep the cold and the dampness outside!
Oh! By the way all you carpenters and do-it-yourselfers, etc., no more itching and scratching and coughing while insulating a house!
Panel homes have withstood earthquake activity where others crumbled.
If you would like to know more about Panelcraft and why SIPs are one of the fastest growing building techniques in the industry, call or write:

Antiques

A cane was an important accessory for a man from the late 17th century through the early 20th. A cane made of quality wood, with a silver or gold handle, told of wealth and importance.

Cane shafts usually were made of wood, but some interesting examples were made of dried animal skin, animals' spinal columns or even glass.

Collectors search for canes from the past as well as modern folk canes. Canes with hidden features — a sword, a camera, a tiny picture or a bottle to hold a swallow of liquor — are popular with collectors.

Cane handles have been made of silver, gold, bone, glass, porcelain and other substances. Many were carved or decorated with special features, such as snakes, dogs, humans, hands, feet and the heads of famous people.

Q. I collect old dress patterns. Is there any way to date them? I usually guess from the style of the dress.

A. Before 1880 or so, patterns were made of tissue and folded with a sketch, and instructions.

Then, a pattern envelope was used. The envelope had a small picture of the dress and some type.

By 1900, the picture and the type had become much larger.

By 1920, the picture covered almost the entire front of the envelope.

Today's standard-size envelope was used by 1932.

The dates printed on a pattern can be confusing. The patent date is only an indication of the earliest the pattern might have been used. The package design, the logo or the instruction format was patented, then sometimes used for years. It was not the dress design itself that was patented.

Copyright dates are usually for the dress design itself. But even those are only a guide. The pattern might have been issued a few years before or after.

CASSEROLES — Spray the serving spoon with nonstick vegetable oil before dipping into a casserole that is topped with cheese or one that contains cheese. This makes cleanup a lot easier. Wilma C., Bogalusa, La.

CLEAN HAIR — When washing my hair, I put a small amount of baking soda in the palm of my hand, add the shampoo on top of it, mix together and wash my hair with it.

The baking soda strips my hair of all the built-up hair spray, gel, etc. I wash my hair the second time with just shampoo, then condition as usual. This is certainly less expensive than purchasing specially-made shampoos that strip the hair of built-up materials.

The baking soda works great. I do this every other time I wash my hair. It keeps it clean and shiny. Olivia K., Blacksburg, Va.

COPPER CLEANING — I use the free packets of ketchup from fast-food stores to clean my copper-bottom pots. It seems the acid from the tomatoes does the trick! Theresa M., Royal Palm Beach, Fla.

Biography

MUHAMMAD ALI: STILL THE GREATEST

The on-screen image, viewed by billions worldwide, was at once heartrending and uplifting: Hands trembling with Parkinson's disease, Muhammad Ali, ever the champ, lit the flame opening Atlanta's 1996 Olympic games.

As chronicled in the December issue of Biography magazine, it all started when he was 12 and his bike was stolen. A sobbing youngster, then known by his birthname Cassius Clay, promised officer Joe Martin he would "whup" the thief when he caught him. Martin, who also trained boxers, suggested the 89-pound stringbean learn to box first. The rest is history.

Martin guided Cassius through a brilliant amateur career including more than 170 wins, a few losses and an Olympic gold medal. He turned pro, astounding viewers with his fancy footwork and correctly-called knock-out rhymes. ("Ain't no jive, he'll go in five.") Three years into the game, he snatched the title from Sonny Liston, shrieking the now-classic, "Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee."

He joined the Nation of Islam (where he changed his name) and defied Uncle Sam in 1966 with his celebrated quip, "I ain't got no quarrel with them Vietcong." Ali chose to endure exile from boxing and a long court battle rather than fight a war he didn't support.

In 1970, a Supreme Court ruling allowed him to return to the ring to such legendary bouts as "Fight of the Century," "Rumble in the Jungle," and "Thrilla in Manila." But everyone agreed, he stayed in too long. In 1984, he was diagnosed with Parkinson's. His passage from brash, loudmouthed showoff to revered hero was gradual but steady. Thanks to his fourth wife, he stabilized both his finances and his condition, adopted a son and devoted himself to humanitarian causes. No request goes unheeded. In adversity, Ali has shown that he is indeed the greatest.
